SWEET VANITY by RICHARD GOYNE

"Oh well, we might as well be hung for sheep as lambs. Just once more, then."

"That's thunder, Dicky!" She had always had an instinctive fear of thunder. Invariably it unnerved a girl in whom nothing else could rouse either fear or hysteria.

But it was not the storm to which he had been listening. He had heard the faint whirring of a car's engine and now it had stopped. He realised that the moment he had planned had come, and he must make the most of it.

In a flash he had recommenced the recital of his first speech in the scene they were rehearsing, and Cynthia was moving slowly towards him. It was a love scene, specially written for this moment did she but know it. A scene between two lovers who had fled together to their rendezvous. A scene of passion where-in the man's overpowering persuasion was made to challenge and to break a woman's fear of consequence.

A moment later Cynthia was in his arms, her lovely face upturned to him. It was possible that both their voices had carried beyond that room. She was speaking her lines with realistic effect:

"I'm sorry, dear. I was afraid. But I'm not afraid any longer. I feared for you, because of the brute I am leaving. I feared for our love, because of all that our love must overcome in the years ahead. But I do not care now. I am not afraid of anything."

It was while she was speaking these words that the door of the room was flung unceremoniously open, and the pair inside started apart as they saw, standing upon the threshold, Peter Cavendish in his dripping cap and motoring coat, his face crimson with fury, his eyes blazing with indignation.

Dicky Smythe could have laughed aloud at the complete way in which his plans had carried through. That was why his consternation and embarrassment were so well feigned. Cynthia Marland was stupefied, staring helplessly at Peter.

What on earth had brought him to this out of the way place at such an unearthly hour? What meant the blazing fury in his eyes? For a moment she was afraid, and then indignance as she met his gaze.

"Peter, what are you doing here?" He did not speak at once, but looked round the room, at her cloak and hat lying on the sofa near her case, at Dicky's case standing upon the table—Smythe had seen to it that the papers of the play were out of sight—and at the remains of supper.

Dicky in his grey eyes, he turned to Cynthia. His lips parted, but he changed his mind and swung round on Smythe.

"I want you, Smythe, outside." Dicky stiffened, though his pulses were racing with a sense of his triumph. He strode forward angrily.

"Look here, Cavendish, I don't know what the idea is, but—"

Peter was not the sort of man to beat about the bush. In one gesture, as it were, he gripped Smythe's arm and the case on the table, and pushed both out into the passage. Cynthia's cry of angry protest to Dicky came too late. The door slammed in her face, and she was still too dazed to give vent to her anger, when a moment or two later, Peter returned.

It's SAFE!

Everyone accepts the fact that Aspirin is the swiftest form of relief for headaches, neuralgia, neuritis, periodic pain, and other suffering. If you've tried it, you know. But no one need hesitate to take these tablets because of their speed. They are perfectly safe. They do not depress the heart. They have no ill effect of any kind. The rapid relief they bring is due to the rapidity with which they dissolve.

So, keep these tablets handy, and keep your engagements—free from pain or discomfort. Carry the pocket tin for emergencies; buy the bottle of 100 for economy. The new reduced price has removed the last reason for trying any substitute for Aspirin.

ASPIRIN

Trade-mark Reg. But now, mystified or not, Cynthia could bear it no longer. Flaming with indignation, she checked his entry with a cry of angry challenge.

"I'm still waiting to know what this interference means. Where is Dicky?" she demanded, and stopped at his short, rough laugh. His grey eyes seemed alight with disgust.

"Smythe has gone," he announced, tersely, "and you're coming, too, in my car." She fell back in helpless dismay as he moved to take up her cloak, and then she ran after him, caught the hand that held the expensive garment, and swung him round, big man that he was.

"Peter, have you taken leave of your senses? You mean to tell me that you dared to send Dicky—?" For the second time her words died on her lips as she met his gaze. Enlightenment flooded upon her, and she saw, in his eyes, a glimmer of the truth.

Somehow he had learned of their coming here, and he had made a terrible mistake. She remembered the words of love he must have overheard. The situation suddenly dawned upon her in its humorous aspect, and hysterical laughter came harshly from her lips.

"Oh, Peter, whatever have you done?" she mocked. "My dear man, you surely didn't think that—?" But again she could not go on. There was something upon his face that struck terror into her heart. And he was speaking, too, in a voice crisp with bitterness.

"This is hardly the time for surmising," he replied. "Happily I was warned, and I came to take you back. If anything in the way of confirmation was lacking, I think I got it when I reached the door. There is one car outside, Cynthia. That is mine. There is a storm. You have the choice of coming with me, back to your home or of remaining here, alone, until tomorrow."

So he was convinced, was he? He had not even asked her to explain. He actually believed she had come here with Dicky, intending to stay? She could not laugh, now. She was filled with a fury of not un-natural resentment. A simple plan had caught them both in its mesh.

Two Important Announcements by International Harvester Wheat Price Guaranteed...

As evidence of our faith that the prices of wheat and other farm products must soon improve, we are offering the farmers of Canada an assurance of higher prices for wheat with which to purchase the machines vitally needed to produce and harvest the 1933 crop.

Details of Offer

On purchases made on and after April 1, 1933, you will be entitled to the benefit of a price of 75 cents per bushel, Winnipeg quotations, for No. 1 Northern Wheat as applied to cash paid on delivery of machines and on notes due in 1933 if paid in full within ten days of maturity.

Twice a month, on the 10th and 25th, the average Winnipeg price applying to No. 1 Northern Wheat will be announced, to hold good for the ensuing two-weeks' period. This price will represent the average Winnipeg market quotation for the five-day period prior to and including the 10th or 25th of the month.

If the average prices for the periods during which payments are made are less than 75 cents per bushel, you will be credited with an adjustment of one-half of one per cent for each one cent that the price of wheat at Winnipeg is below 75 cents a bushel.

Thus, if the market price is 50 cents, you will be credited on the basis of a spread of 25 cents, or 12 1/2 per cent.

This offer applies to the entire McCormick Deering line, excepting only motor trucks, industrial tractors, attachments when sold separately, binder twine, and repairs.

While this price guarantee is based on wheat, it is not necessary that you raise wheat for market in order to take advantage of the offer. Any farmer in Canada is entitled to buy machines under the favorable terms outlined above. Your McCormick-Deering dealer is fully informed as to all details.

Interest Rates Reduced...

As a measure of relief to our customers in all parts of Canada, we have reduced the rates of interest for payments made on both old and new notes. The amount of reduction applicable to your particular note, covering either former purchases or new business, may be learned by inquiry of the McCormick-Deering dealer nearest you or by writing us direct. In all cases the reductions are substantial and will be welcome. As a special arrangement for payments made in 1933, the rate of interest is reduced to 5 per cent on all notes, whether future or past due, from January 1 to date of payment, including notes taken for 1933 purchases.

We urge you to take advantage of this offer. It enables you to replace your worn-out and obsolete equipment under favorable terms with the chance of a remarkable saving. Don't delay. See your McCormick-Deering dealer at once and get the terms on the equipment you need.

FERILIZERS

We have in stock a full line of fertilizers—both chemicals and factory mixed. The mechanical condition of our goods is the very best and we can make deliveries 100% perfect condition. Our deliveries are not subjected to the uncertain arrival of steamers. We can make delivery when you want it made. Our goods being freshly ground, screened and packed prior to shipment at Charlottetown show no shrinkage.

We believe we have sufficient fertilizers in stock to fill all our orders during the month of April and early part of May.

Our package containing 100 pounds is meeting with great favor. The bag when washed and dried is very suitable for 50 pounds of potatoes.

Our factory mixed fertilizers are we understand lower in price than those in any other part of Canada. We consider that at the present low prices money spent in them is spent to better advantage than in the purchasing of chemicals.

Many authorities have strongly advocated the use of factory mixed fertilizers when one ton cost the farmer about $5.00 more than the cost of the same amount of plant food in the form of chemicals. Then the argument in favor of factory mixed is many times stronger when the difference in price is as now only about $1.50.

You can save $6 a ton by taking delivery from our plant. "ISLAND GOODS FOR ISLAND FARMERS" The Island Fertilizer Company Limited, Charlottetown, P. E. Island.

IMPERIALS

Successful fox ranchers feed IMPERIAL FOX BISCUITS because they contain food elements essential for health, strength and successful propagation.

IMPERIALS should be fed liberally now to vixens as they supply elements necessary to ensure large litters of strong pups and maintain health and vigor of vixens.

IMPERIALS fed during this season richly repay in generous results.
