

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-coloured liquid. Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

Rinso is as splendid for the regular family washing as Lux is for fine fabrics.

Wedding Bells

MORRIS — DUNCAN

A charming summer wedding took place on Wednesday, August 15th in the Hillhurst Presbyterian Church, Calgary, when Miss Marion Reta Duncan, formerly of Summerside, became the bride of Mr. James Morris of Calgary. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Magowan in the presence of a large number of friends. The church was beautifully decorated with ferns and sweet peas and the guest presents were marked by white silk streamers.

The bride who was given away by her brother, Dr. W. Mac L. Duncan, looked graceful in her gown of white satin brocaded crepe with French lace trimming and wore the conventional bridal veil and orange blossoms, and carried a magnificent bouquet of Orphelia roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern. She was attended by Miss Doris Willey, who was daintily gowned in shell pink crepe with radium lace and pearl trimming and wore a becoming hat to match. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and mauve sweet peas. Little Helen Jean and Margaret Scotland, nieces of the bride, made dainty flower girls, wearing pink and white frocks and carrying baskets of pink and white sweet peas and baby's breath, while Master Stirling McLeod, nephew of the bride, acted in the capacity of ring bearer.

Mr. George Evans supported the groom, while the ushers were Messrs Fred McCullough and Jack Scott. The bride entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin wedding march played by Mr. Harold Ramsbottom, recently of New York. During the signing of the register Mrs. T. L. Walker sang sweetly "Untill". After the ceremony the guests repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Scotland sister of the bride where a reception was held. The house was lovely with its profuse decorations of pink and white sweet peas and other summer blossoms. After congratulations were over a dainty buffet supper was served, the bride's table being decorated with streamers of pink and white, centered with the bride's cake draped in white tulle and smiles.

Mrs. Scotland was assisted in serving by Mrs. William McLeod and Mrs. P. W. Jean of Edmonton sisters of the bride, and Miss Laura L. McLeod. The groom's gift to the bride was a string of pearls to the bridemaid an onyx pendant to the best man a pearl tie pin and to the flower girls and ring bearer ever-sharp pencils. Mr. and Mrs. Morris left by the midnight train amid showers of confetti and best wishes for a honeymoon trip to Edmonton and Jasper Park. The bride travelled in a suit of navy blue tulle with hat to match. On their return the happy couple will reside in Calgary.

May Ascend Albanian Throne

VALONA, Albania, Aug. 22.—The support which Albania is receiving from Roumania for admission to the Little Entente at the conference at Sinaia in Roumania has given new impetus to the candidacy of Prince Nikolai of Roumania for the throne of Albania, which the Prince of Wied vacated at the beginning of the world-war.

Several of the notables of the Albanian tribes have announced their support of Prince Nikolai's aspirations, on the ground that a relationship with the Roumanian court would greatly assist Albania to achieve its reconstruction.

Prince Nikolai is the younger son of Queen Maira of Roumania, and is once removed from the Roumanian throne by his brother, Prince Carol, the eldest son. It is known that Queen Maira is backing her younger son's endeavors to become prince of Albania.

Berlin Features Lady Pugilists

BERLIN, Aug. 22 (AP).—"Lady boxers" are star attractions at the cheaper variety houses in Berlin, and attract many tourists to these places of amusement. There are several groups of women pugilists which spar in various cabarets and music-halls and they box with great vigor.

One of the best-known female boxers has a nose which is badly deformed from having been broken and another has a cauliflower ear. Most of the female pugilists are young and extremely active. They are about as scientific as many of the men who pose as professional boxers for the art of boxing is not highly developed in Germany.

Want Stories Of Adventure

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—The summertime reader would rather have a true account of pirates or shoot- ing seals in the Arctic than even a love story declares Nathan R. Levin, assistant librarian of the Chicago Public Library, who has been studying the tastes of the general reader for years.

"That does not mean that the love story has become unfashionable," Mr. Levin added. "It means rather that at vacation time every body temporarily forgets his desire to get on in his own business, or personal affairs and prefers to read about cinnamon-colored savages of the South Seas or trapping wombats in the wilds of Australia."

Full details have now been given to her by the German officer.

REPORT SHOWS CITY BABIES HAVE BEST CHANCE TO LIVE.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Some urban communities, in spite of the crowds, are healthier places for babies than many rural districts, according to the Infant Welfare mortality charts for cities and for the country shows that babies born in crowded cities have a better start in life than children in the country the society reports.

"This of course is not because of the crowds but in spite of them," says the report, "and is a condition made possible through the education of the mothers even before babies are born.

In the Country

There has been a great deal of talk lately about the weather. Nevertheless the weather continues to maintain its unprecedented and unaccountable career. This has certainly been "an exceptional year." Yet the prospects are that the harvest will be an unusually abundant one. Looking the country over the remark of an old farmer that "Providence generally brings everything out all right in the end," seems likely to be again proved true. Certainly the appearance of this Province at the present time justifies the verdict of all observant tourists that it is "most beautiful."

Contrasting strongly with the provinces of the mainland, its blue waters and red banks, its broad landscapes dotted with clumps of trees, traversed by fine fences along the length of which grow birches and maples, firs, spruce and alders, or other shrubs with tidy farm homesteads at intervals and thrifty farm animals in many fields, and the fields all covered by every variety tint of green, make for a traveler on high road or railway a rural scene unsurpassed in any part of this continent, and only excelled in the best agricultural counties of the Old Land.

Particularly noticeable are the trim residences of our farmers, and the farm buildings nearby. It has to be admitted in truth, that there are still many farmsteads that need a touch of paint or whitewash, to gether with the accessories of well-kept premises, well-trimmed hedges and well-tilled gardens. But, for the most part, the strangers passing through our country may rightly conclude that the people of P. E. Island are thrifty as well as tasteful, and that "Fifty there is a fortune has found." There is evidence, too, a growing desire to make the most of the fields bordering on the roads and railway, so that the first and strangest impressions of visitors may be pleasing. In this regard the country vies with the towns, where well-kept lawns, with trees and flowers, and carefully made streets, combine to produce in the visitor a pleasing effect, while the attractions of home and the comfort of life are thereby maintained and enhanced.

It is a curious and remarkable fact that though the parts of North America, production and beautiful, though the remark of an elderly gentleman that he had travelled in all parts of the civilized world and had never seen the place where a good living could be more easily and certainly obtained, is undoubtedly true, yet there is, year after year, a considerable emigration from Prince Edward Island.

The emigration is, indeed, so considerable that there has, in recent years, been a diminution of its popularity. No doubt this is due largely to the spirit of unrest that is now general throughout the world. No doubt the higher wages and larger prospects offered in the large provinces of Canada, and the more highly developed States of America induce many of our ambitious youth to leave their homes here. No doubt the ease of travel and the additions continually made to labor-saving agricultural machinery combine to cause the departure of those who have to earn their own livelihood. Yet it is equally undoubtable that this Province could easily maintain a population at least four times as large as it has at the present time.

From the point of view of those who remain here, the immigration may not be wholly regrettable; for the fewer the farmers the better the prices. Those who go abroad to live in cities will, instead of adding to the number of producers, add to the number of consumers, and so to the bettering of farm conditions and the increase of the prosperity of those farmers who stay and work on their native soil. When Halifax, St. John, Moncton, Amherst, New Glasgow, Sydney, etc. have by the increase of their industries and the commerce doubled or tripled their number of consumers of foodstuffs, when the farmers of P. E. Island have nearby permanent markets for their excellent products and can sell them at remunerative prices—then there can be no doubt this country will have strong attractions for farmers and gardeners, then there may be two car ferries, with other steamers, constantly employed in carrying away its products, then there will be a return of those now going away, an enlargement of business operations, and an era of prosperity such as we have not yet experienced.

Meanwhile, it may be advisable for those who are fairly well established on the farms of this province and who may receive suggestions to go West or South, to sit down and consider the risks that they run in going away from this "beautiful Isle of the Sea." It has been remarked by one of the greatest of Great Britain's latter-day philosophers that: "Blessed is he that continues where he is, Here let us rest and lay our seed fields; here let us learn to dwell. Here, even here, the orchards that we plant will yield us fruit, How much grows everywhere, if we do but wait . . . O, unwise mortals, that forever change and shift and say, Yonder, not Here."

These words of wisdom seem to fit the case of the P. E. Island farmer, who feels constrained to sell out and move to countries they know not of. W.L.C.

FIRST SPECIMENS OF RARE ANIMALS BROUGHT TO U. S.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Two animals never before seen in the United States are new additions to the Field Museum family, brought here by Edmund Heller, who has returned from a year spent in the uncharted jungles of Peru and the upper reaches of the Amazon's tributaries. Mr. Heller traveled through thousands of miles of country inhabited by savage and hostile tribes in his search for strange specimens for the museum.

excitement attached to getting military information of Yugoslavia for the officers of a foreign power, and therefore decided to live things up a bit by playing two hands at once.

Danitza is a Croatian woman, and the story from Agram, where she is now behind the bars charged with spying for Italy, sets forth that, under the alias of Ida Birnir, she appeared before the Serbian chief-of-staff of the Croatian capital and offered her services to secure and sell him Italian military information. The chief listened to her tale, but was not impressed. So little did he like Danitza that he detailed two of his men to watch the woman night and day until they got something on her.

doc, according to Mr. Heller. The species is said to be nearly extinct, because it moves so slowly that its more powerful enemies can overtake it. It lives in communities and its principal protection, Mr. Heller believes, is in that it generally travels with members of its clan.

The capybara, a large rodent, is somewhat like the beaver, but larger. This animal is almost as rare as the dromys, he said, and even the natives see them but seldom. There are still many animals in the jungles of South America that never have been seen by scientists. He brought back with him 1,800 specimens to be mounted by the Museum, including jaguars, tapers armadillos, anteaters and 15 kinds of monkeys.

Along the route of travel through the jungle, the scientists said, are many savage tribes or fugitives from justice in more civilized lands who live without law in semi-starved and half-sick condition. Virtually all these primitive peoples have some ailments, and they plead with the white man for quinine and other medicines. Medical missionaries and schools are unknown, he said.

Mrs. Heller accompanied her husband on the trip. She superintended the cooking and the nursing of the sick, as she herself is an expert bacteriologist.

Mr. Heller has spent many years of his life in the interior of South America and Africa. When Colonel Roosevelt made his African hunting trip, the scientist went with him to prepare specimens taken for the Smithsonian Institution.

why it is that glasses are worn more commonly in the present generation than in the past. Some say that the race is deteriorating, some that it is for style, but the real reason is that our modern civilization requires the eye to do more work than was even the case before.

Consequently, the eyes, if in the least defective, may give you a lot of trouble, though in reality they are no worse than those of your grandfather who did not wear glasses till he was an old man.

If you feel the least symptom of eyestrain, remember that it is nature warning you and consult us at once.
