The Terror of Asthma comes like a thief in the night with its dreadful throttling, robbing its victim of breath. It seems beyond the power of human aid to relieve until one trial is made of that remarkable preparation, Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Then relief comes with a rush. Life becomes worth living, and, if the remedy be used persistently, the disease is put permanently to rout. Take no substitute.

LOOKING FOR CONSOLIDATION.—Upwards of 200 farmers from all over Colchester County assembled in Truro to-day to consider the organization of a branch of the United Farmers of Nova Scotia. John M. Pratt, a Saskatchewan farmer was present and told of the organization of a Western Canada. Mr. Pratt is an interesting speaker and aroused a great deal of enthusiasm in the audience with the result that they organized and subscribed $675 to assist in carrying on the work. Mr. Pratt intends to visit the Island before returning to Western Canada.

LEMON EXTRACT.—One of the commodities for which a wonderful demand has lately come into vogue is lemon extract. Some of the grocery stores are besieged with demands for the hitherto supposedly hard to get and little sought after article. It is now a well known fact that lemon extract imparts a jig of particularly odious nature. Some of the seekers after this stimulant in order to get it, send children to the store for it. A little boy called at a grocery store some days ago and purchased six bottles of a well-known brand of extract at one time. It hardly seems reasonable that any housekeeper would be buying such a supply for ordinary use. The opinion is that there should be some regulations governing the sale of lemon extract.

CHRISTOPHER SULLIVAN WEDDING.—The Halifax Herald of the 14th says: St. Thomas Aquinas church was the scene of a happy event on Friday evening, when Miss Annie B. Sullivan, a popular Halifax nurse, was united in marriage to Harvey Christopher, of Stellarton. Father O'Sullivan officiating. Though the hour was early, a large number of friends were present to witness the ceremony and extend best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Christopher, who left on the Ocean Limited for an extended visit west. On their return they will reside in Stellarton. The many beautiful gifts gave evidence of their popularity amongst a wide circle of friends. Mr. Christopher, above referred to resided in Charlottetown for a number of years previous to taking up his residence in Stellarton. Mr. and Mrs. Christopher are spending a week in Charlottetown before returning to their home in Stellarton. The bride, formerly Miss Sullivan, is a trained nurse. It will be remembered that for her excellent and capable service in connection with the Halifax disaster she received special commendation from the Governor of Massachusetts. The Guardian joins in congratulation.

AFTER THIRTY YEARS.—After an absence of thirty years the hand of welcome is being extended to Mrs. M. Kelly of South Bellingham, Wash. (formerly Miss Mary Duffy, of Emerald) who recently arrived on a visit to her sister, Mrs. John Kelly, of Shamrock. Mrs. Kelly has made many changes in P. E. Island, the old pioneers in her estimation standing the test of years better than the younger generation. Her two sisters, Mrs. Kenny and Mrs. Harwood, from Chatham, N. B., came here to see her and a happy reunion of the four sisters took place. Both those ladies have returned to Chatham after spending two pleasant weeks here. Mrs. Kelly expects to remain on the Island for a few months, and intends to visit her sister and other relatives in Chatham, N. B. Many friends wish Mrs. Kelly a pleasant visit here and hope she will go back to her home singing louder than ever the praises of her native land. "Dear old P. E. I."

FASHIONS FOR CANADIANS

Blouses of cotton fabrics for years occupied positions at the top and bottom of the scale of things sartorial, with silk, Georgettes, chiffons, etc., bridging the gap. At the bottom were to be found machine-made blouses of lawn, coarse voile and similar materials, trimmed with cheap lace or embroidery. These blouses were worn by women who called them "shirt waists" and who wore them with serviceable dark wool fabric skirts in winter and with inexpensive white tub skirts in summer. At the very top were found the models made of the finest and sheers of cottons, entirely fashioned by hand and trimmed with real lace or hand embroidery.

During the past few seasons this order has been changing a trifle; during the summer of 1920 it is safe to say that cotton blouses will dominate the entire field. The low priced models are still to be found, and of course the very expensive ones are by no means out of the running, but combinations of hand and machine work enter into many lovely garments. Style designers are giving as much attention to novelty styles to be developed in cotton as they do to any of those meant for silks of either sheer or heavy weight.

The blouse shown in the sketch may be of either organdy, fine voile or handkerchief linen. It will be smart with a white cotton skirt or with one of light or dark silk. Silks of navy colour, figured in white usually are extremely smart and comfortable for summer, and a blouse such as the one pictured would be good looking with one of these dark soft silk skirts.

This blouse is a slip-over-the-head model. It is cut quite straight and made to fit the figure by being held in at either side with a ribbon slipped through button holes. A matching bit of ribbon holds the collar. The blouse may be embroidered in white or color. A tiny ruffle of self fabric finishes neck and sleeves.

The style might be used for a tulle blouse, with cut work embroidery as the trimming.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

BY DELLA E. STEWART

BY DELLA E. STEWART

Young people as well as some older ones today seem to think that work is synonymous with drudgery. But it isn't. Did you never have some entertainment or party which entailed much detail work and you went away with a sense of relief after day after day? And because you were so interested and wanted all to be done in the very best way you had not a thought of anything but enjoyment you might have said: "I'll be glad when it is all over," and, of course, you were in a way. But in another way you missed the daily effort and planning and felt almost lost when it was at an end.

The cause of the common feeling about one's work is mental shortsightedness. It's annoying to have shortsighted eyes. If we do, we miss the sight of much that might make life richer—friends, acquaintances, beauties along our way. But it's much worse to have mental shortsightedness, because that hinders us from seeing anything but the very nearest aspect of our task. We look at, instead of looking over. Of course, there's drudgery in any work, but there's also inspiration and self-discipline and growth. Why look at one side only?

Did you ever try to make a game of your work?—Almost any one feels the fascination of an occasional game. There are several games which we can play with our work, all of them give zest and interest. We can give time to do so much in a given time and try to beat ourselves or we can try to see if we cannot plan some easier way which will do it just as well or we can try to beat all that we have done before. If you don't think that playing these games with work helps, just try it once and be convinced. It isn't foolish or childish to make our work as easy as possible. We don't have to think how hard it is, you know. We don't have to rebel—unless we enjoy
