Men Marooned

By George Marsh

THE STORY

The man who read laughed outright. "Your love died, my poor child, on the wharf at Quebec, when you saw what the Huns had done to your soldier boy," he said aloud.

"Well, why the postscript?" he went on. "She throws me over in the first letter, horse, foot and dragons; why continue the agony?"

Open the second envelope, he read: "When I wrote you, Garth, dear, I did not understand that she had died, but Quarrier tells me that his sister helped nurse her. Of course, it was all a horrible shock, but now that it is over and you may come home, I am willing to forget the past—if you want me to."

Rising in disgust, Guthrie paced the floor. "Merciful heavens! She's willing to forget the past! Poor, shallow, scheming Ethel! Rather than lose brother-in-law Charles, you cray-fish, eat humble-pie, grovel on your knees. Was it a French girl or a nurse?" he quoted scathingly. "Ready to swallow that, too, are you, my dear?" Guthrie finished the letter. So Ethel Falconer waited with open arms for the prodigal lover. But, unlike the son of the tale, the prodigal lover was not returning.

Picking up and finishing the crumpled letter of Charles, Garth learned that, inasmuch as he had disgraced the family name and ignored the family wishes, the Guthrie family would proceed to try to forget its black sheep.

With a smile of contempt Garth opened the door of the sheet-iron stove and tossed in the letters. Clara's he would answer—good-hearted, well-meaning, old Clara, who alone had sensed his condition and his unhappiness, on his return home. Then raising his arms and expelling a deep breath of relief, he said: "Thank God, that's over! Ang now—"

He took the letter of Joan Quarrier from the tree and eagerly opened it. "Dear Mr. Exlie:

"Have you kept your promise? Is this the last letter to be read? I wish you a very happy Christmas, but just how that would be possible up there on your frozen west coast is difficult to imagine. However, I hope you will not be lonely with thoughts of home and what you have so stubbornly turned from."

Garth's brows knotted in thought. "Of course," he surmised, "she must know about Ethel since her brother had met Charles—had heard of the engagement and his strange actions. But if she thought him still engaged why did she write?"

Joan continued: "My winter has been an active one, working in a school for homeless children. Poor things! They need all one can give them. It has not been as uninteresting as it sounds. Everything is so new and strange. "But you, when are you coming back to your kind, Mr. Exlie? You must be wonderfully well after two years—and they are still waiting for you."

"Again my deepest gratitude for your hospitality to the shipwrecked."

Garth finished the letter with a groan of disappointment. "She's heard a fine tale from the family, and her brother's version wouldn't help it any," he muttered. "Doesn't speak of meeting them, though. She, in a school for homeless children—"

It was evident to Guthrie from the reserved tone of Joan Quarrier's letter that she had heard of his engagement to Ethel, and it was also quite as clear that she was ignorant of the color of the story Quarrier had retailed to Charles. To this, he realized, Joan Quarrier would give instant and flat denial but she was not even in Montreal—would never meet the Guthries. And after all, what did it matter? He was through with them—his smug brother, and the girl who had lost him when she stared in horror at his scarred cheek that day when the Royal Montreals came home.

He replaced the letter in the pocket of his shirt to be reread again and again with increasing disappointment—Chagrin. He had hoped for something more personal—something of the Joan Quarrier he had known for five short days in September. But it was evident that she thought the factor of Elkwan not a free man. Well, he was now. Quarrier had done him an unintentional kindness in that he—had forced Ethel's hand. Now he, Garth, could accept her release. Then what?

Far into the night Guthrie sat and smoked, but when he blew out the candle, he was no nearer a solution of his problem. Joan Quarrier had been right when she feared that a lonely Christmas awaited the exile at Elkwan. It did—a Christmas gray because a thousand miles of forest separated Garth Guthrie from a girl whose hair the moon once touched with silver dust on the cliffs of the Albany.

KING COLE TEA and COFFEE

CHAPTER X

The New Year's festivities and the trade were over at Elkwan. The dance in the sleep-house, for which Etienne, seated high on a sugar barrel, provided the music from an ancient and scarred violin, had passed off without compelling the interference of the factor as peacemaker. The customary present of sugar and flour, tea and pork, had been given to each family of hunters and the Crees had fested and gossiped to their hearts' content, oblivious of bitter moons to come on far trap-lines when, if game were hard to find, their children would whimper with hunger. The last of the dog-teams had jingled up the river trail or down the delta bound for Akimiski. Thanks to Souci, it had been an unheard-of trade which had come to the little post. Not only had he brought across the ice the Elkwan Crees but some from Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, as well. A good joke on Graham and Boucher.

For a week Garth and Etienne were busy sorting and pressing the fur, which was to go by sled immediately to Albany.

"Twenty-eight thousand dollars," said the factor as he finished checking his list. "Our little trips inland after Souci and over to the island were rather worth while, my friend."

Etienne grinned. "No teetle post lak' dis evair mak' dat trade on dis bay. Dey geeve you bigger place soon. You tak' Etienne Savanne wid you?" "Take you with me, you old villain? How could I get along without you? You're responsible for this catch of fur, and you know it."

Savanne gravely shook his head. "Et was you who tak' de chance of de riviere to fin' Souci. Wen we go to Albanee I tell dem peopl' dat de new man at Elkwan ees hell on catch de fur." Guthrie stopped to laugh at the serious half-breed. Of course loyalty of his head man, who had taught him practically all he knew about pelts, he had had ample proof.

Albany Notes

Miss Ethel Holland spent the week end at her home in Searletown, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Holland.

Mrs. E. V. MacLeod was a visitor to Charlottetown Saturday.

Miss Penzie Chisholm, North Tryon, spent the week end in Albany, the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. Thomas.

Miss Gladys Lowther, Searletown, was a visitor to Albany on Saturday.

Master Fred Lowther, North Charlottetown, was a recent visitor to Albany Village.

Miss Grace Holland, Searletown, is spending a few weeks visiting in O'Leary.

Mr. William Rodgerson spent the week end at his home in Tryon.

Mr. Frank MacKay was a recent visitor to Summerside.

Miss Laura Arnett was a visitor to Summerside Saturday.

On Thursday evening the Albany St. Pats were visitors to Hunter River, where they crossed sticks with the Hunter River Royals. The game score being 4 to 2. The St. Pats returned by train the next morning.

Miss Edna Burns has returned to her home in Albany.

Mr. Harold Affleck was a recent visitor to Charlottetown.

The Tryon Bearsats played the Albany St. Pats in Albany rink on Feb. 25th to a friendly game of hockey. The game ended in favor of the St. Pats. Better luck next time Bearsats.

Mrs. Harry Arnett has returned to her home after spending a few weeks the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Arnett, Summerside.

Mr. Robert Carmichael was a visitor to his home here on Saturday.

Mt. Stewart Notes

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clark returned home on Friday, March, 8th, from a trip to Montreal.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Bruce McCormack, is much improved after being confined to her bed for some time.

M. Ira Clark, left for Somerville Mass., on March 6th., to resume his duties as Carpenter, where he has been employed for the past few years by the firm of Duffy and Co., Contractors and Builders.

Mr. Stewart McEachern, was in Charlottetown last week.

We are pleased to hear that little Rena Jay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jay, is much improved after a lengthy illness.

Mr. William Douglas, spent a few days in Savage Harbor, last week.

The stork visited Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie, last week, and left a bouncing baby boy.

Miss Bessie Jay, Fanning Brook, spent a few days in Mt. Stewart, with her sister, Mrs. Wendell Glover.

Mr. Charles Grant, Peaks Station, was in Mt. Stewart, last week.

Mr. C. J. McInnis, who recently purchased the business stand formerly owned by Mrs. H. W. Glover is to be complimented on the business-like way in which he has arranged his new establishment, besides putting in a first class stock of "just what the people need."

Mr. J. D. Timmons, Proprietor of the Mt. Stewart Meat market, had the distinction of being the only "Motorist" on the street last week. This goes to show that John can't be discouraged, not even by the old weather man himself.

Mr. Miller of Truro, N. S., was in Mt. Stewart, Saturday, on business.

Miss Elizabeth Clark, teacher at Donaldson, spent the week end at her home here.

Mr. O. D. McAssey was in the city Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin McAssey, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Jay, paid a visit to friends in Pisiquid last week.

Mr. John Kelly, Auburn, was in Mt. Stewart, Saturday on a business trip.

The "Stork" visited Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Birt last week, and left a bouncing baby boy.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Charles Rodgerson, St. Patrick's Road, had those taken on a journey, the misfortune of losing his valuable residence, which was destroyed last week by fire. Mr. Rodgerson discovered the fire about 3 a.m. and by that time all the upper portion of the house was on fire, but through the valiant efforts of his neighbors, as well as himself, he succeeded in saving a few articles which were downstairs. It is understood, that there was no insurance on the property.

WILTSHIRE NOTES

It is much regretted that the Wiltshire rink, which has been somewhat improved over recent years by way of a new lighting plant and dressing room, has, as a result of the recent thaw, been completely washed out, although necessary repairs have been made in the dam. It is doubtful whether there will be frost enough to freeze it over again.

On Friday 1st, the Flying Lindys' made a perfect landing on Wiltshire rink and after 60 minutes of brilliant hockey were rewarded with a 6-2 win over the Wiltshire Ultra-Rapids. This was without a doubt the best game witnessed here this year. The first period was fairly even, Wiltshire playing a little better combination. Period ended 1-1. In the second period the Rapids made several changes in their line-up which proved disastrous, losing all their combination, which cost them the game. Period ended Lindys 4, Rapids 0.

In the third period the Rapids came back much wiser and with their lineup as in the first period, and again both teams showed excellent offensive and defensive plays, each going down for the short count of one. Roland Easter handled the game to the satisfaction of all.

On Saturday last the residents of Wiltshire were treated to many thrills by a skiing party from Charlottetown. Wiltshire hills are ideal for this kind of sport and a very pleasant afternoon was had by all.

Mr. Golding Frizzell, formerly of Bonshaw, has purchased the property of the late Artimus Clow. We are glad to have Mr. Frizzell back with us again.

An Oil for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it is excellent. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and be amongst the first things taken on a journey.

"Who said FRY'S?"

He just loves its delicious chocolaty flavour. Kiddies who get FRY'S regularly are vigorous, warm-blooded and healthy. They throw off colds quickly. They are more likely to escape epidemics. If you have some little pale faces at home, just try FRY'S.
