Erin's Shamrock Has Tiny Leaves

Plant Honored by St. Patrick Refuses to Grow in America.

Sure there are shamrocks and shamrocks but no son of daughter of Erin will admit any of the varieties gracing St. Patrick's Day this side of the Atlantic are worthy of the "trifolium minus" accepted as the national emblem of Ireland, where it grows in profusion in the woods.

Ireland's shamrock refuses to thrive in America. Canadian florists admit this. There are several trifoliate plants boasting the Irish name and used here as substitutes but they are "just clovers" to the exile of Erin. At the same time there is always a big demand for the pseudo-shamrock this time of the year and some growers in various parts make a specialty of its production.

While there is no commercial importation of shamrocks from Ireland many Irish-Canadians annually receive sprigs of the tiny three-leaved plant from folks in the "Old Sod." Professional as well as amateur attempts have been made to transplant the species in Canada but without success. It's the soil entirely—the patriotic Irishman is convinced of that.

Tradition has it the shamrock became the national emblem of Ireland when it was honored by St. Patrick who in his preachings to the Druids used the tri-leaf as an illustration of the Blessed Trinity. "Shamrakh" is Arabic for trefolium, held sacred in Iran as emblematic of the Persian Triads.

Irish regiments of the British army are permitted to wear the shamrock on their uniforms. St. Patrick's Day as a tribute to Erin's patron saint.

White And Green

By Gertrude Bowen Webster

It's tired I am of jumbled snow,
Of twisted trails between;
It's lonesome that I am and sore,
For sight of something green.
It's weary that I am of white,
Of winters long and lean;
The heart of me cries out for home,
For something Irish—green.

Faith, and I'm sick of bare-faced months,
And winds that pick them clean;
That bite the blarney from my tongue,
And starve my soul for green.
Sure, and I'll count the mad March days,
Till they are seventeen;
Och! Hope laughs on my coat lapel—
To-day I'm wearing green!

"The Lone Wolf Returns" At The Capitol

Gay, romantic and exciting is the swift-moving Columbia story of international jewel thieves, "The Lone Wolf Returns," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

And Douglas adds to the prestige he earned in his first Columbia picture, "She Married Her Boss" by his sterling work as the Lone Wolf in this excellent story.

"The Lone Wolf Returns" is based on the famous Louis Joseph Vance story of the same name. On the screen the daring intrigues, the connivings of the astute and elusive jewel thieves and the charming romance between the heiress and the debonair gem pilferer make grand entertainment.

Miss Patrick is lovely and her acting is splendid. Tala Birell handles her role as the conniving jewel thief in a convincing manner. Douglas Dumbrille, who enacts the role of Morphew, owner of a night club, is a handsome villain.

Henry Mollison, Nana Bryant, Thurston Hall, and the rest of the large cast give fine interpretations of their parts.

heart of the Irish folks. St. Patrick one day chanced to be wandering along the banks of the lake. He was carrying a golden rod in his hand said to have been given to him by a hermit. The rod was supposed to have been carried by the Saviour, and when St. Patrick sighted the dreadful monster of the lake, he slew it with one strike of his golden rod.

These things were said to have happened on the 17th day of March, thus the day bears the name of the patron saint of Old Ireland. Other attribute the above date to the fact that, as nobody could agree as to whether St. Patrick was born on the eighth or the ninth:

"On the eighth day of March, some people say, St. Patrick at midnight he first saw the day.

While others declare 'twas the ninth he was born— 'Twas all a mistake between midnight and morn'!

They simplified matters by adding the two together, and thus the seventeenth was honoured as the birthday of St. Patrick.

B. I. S. Records Contain Many Well Known Names

Organized over one hundred years ago, the Benevolent Irish Society in Charlottetown has the distinction of being one of the earliest founded societies in the Province and has a long record of accomplishments and charitable acts. At the time it was first organized the Society numbered among its members many of the leading citizens of Charlottetown, such names as DesBrisay, Warburton, Fitzgerald, Reddin, Whalen, and McCourt being frequently mentioned in the early records. Some of the past presidents were Hon. Edward Whalen, Judge Reddin, Dr. Kelly, M. P. Hogan, Councillor Frank McCarron, P. H. Trainor, Councillor D. O. Reddin, Peter McCourt, Serg. Feien Bradley, Councillor P. A. Smith, R. F. Maddigan, Martin Walsh, Councillor A. A. Hennessey, J. J. Duffy, John O'Neill, P. B. McTague, Victor Coyle, John A. Cronin, John A. Callaghan, and at the present time James H. McKenna.

The oldest member of the society today is the patron Mr. Edward Smith, who emigrated from Ireland to this country when but a boy and for some half a century has been an active member of the Society.

The society recalls with pride that one of its outstanding members in the early days was the Hon. Edward Whalen, one of the "Fathers of Confederation." The society perpetuates his memory recently placed a monument at his grave and has undertaken to keep the plot in constant repair.

Officers of the Benevolent Irish Society for 1936 are:

Patron—Edward Smith.

Order of the Younger Members, Legion Band, Assistant Marshal, Standard Bearer, Older Members, Officers and Honourary Members in Carriages. The route will be as follows:— Queen to Water to Great George thence to the Basilica where an appropriate sermon will be delivered by Rev. Father McMahon of the Paulist Fathers. After the service the Society will reform ranks and proceed by way of Great George to Water to Weymouth to Lanfrank. When passing the monument the order "Eyes Left" will be given in memory of their fallen comrades. At the hall a short reception will be held which will be attended by many prominent citizens.

The day will conclude with the entertainment, "Welcome to our City on St. Patrick's" at the Prince Edward Theatre.

TODAY THE BIG DAY

Today, March 17th, all Irishmen will celebrate in honour of their patron St. Patrick. Members will gather at the hall and at 9.30 start their annual parade marshalled by Augustus Dowling, assisted by Bro. Herbert Mahar and Bro. Roy McGillivray. The order of procession will be as follows: Standard Bearer Union Jack, Chief Marshal, League of the Cross Band, Standard Bearer with flag denoting the order of the Younger Members, Legion Band, Assistant Marshal, Standard Bearer, Older Members, Officers and Honourary Members in Carriages. Anemia—Lack of Blood

A Cause of Fatigue

You can easily make this test for anemia. Examine the gums, the eyelids and the lips. If they have a pale and bleached out appearance, You have reason to suspect anemia. Other symptoms are fatigue with slight exertion, Shortness of breath on going up stairs, General weakness and fickle appetites. To overcome this condition It is necessary to increase the quantity, And improve the quality of the blood. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can be of great help to you Because it supplies iron of good quality And other minerals which are essential For the enrichment of the blood. A few weeks' use of this blood-building treatment Will prove to you its efficacy In overcoming the depressing symptoms of anemia.

St. Patrick's Day — Good Things To Eat

In the year 433 St. Patrick made famous the triple leaved shamrock, which, tradition has it grows nowhere but on the emerald isle.

Another famous legend woven around this good saint, who lived a life of service to others, was the driving of all snakes out of Ireland.

The legend runs that in the waters of one of the many lovely lakes with which the country abounds, there lived a most hideous monster, which drove terror to the hearts of the Irish folks. St. Patrick, one day chanced to be wandering along the banks of the lake. He was carrying a golden rod in his hand said to have been given to him by a hermit. The rod was supposed to have been carried by the Saviour and when St. Patrick sighted the dreadful monster of the lake, he slew it with one strike of his golden rod.

"On the eighth day of March, some people say, St. Patrick at midnight he first saw the day.

While others declare 'twas the ninth he was born— 'Twas all a mistake between midnight and morn'!

They simplified matters by adding the two together, and thus the seventeenth was honoured as the birthday of St. Patrick.

ST. PATRICK'S BRACK

This is an old Irish recipe for a cake made with yeast for a leaven. Sift a pound of flour with a teaspoonful of salt, then rub in with the fingers a generous one-half cup of beef dripping. Blend a compressed yeast cake with a cup of slightly warm milk, water, or milk and water, add one-half a cup sugar, stir until this is dissolved, and to the flour mixture with two well-beaten eggs. Beat the butter until quite smooth and free from lumps. Place in a greased bowl, cover, and let stand in a warm place until double in bulk. Then add to the flour mixture with two raisins and dried currants, with a heaping tablespoonful of fine-chopped candied peel. Put into a greased bread tin, and let again for perhaps half an hour, then bake at 300 deg. F. for an hour or until done. This is an excellent plain loaf cake for everyday use.

SHAMROCK ROLLS

To one cup of scalded milk, add one-fourth a cup of butter, one-half a teaspoonful of salt, and one tablespoonful of sugar; stir until the butter is melted and the liquid lukewarm; then stir in a cake of yeast mixed with one-fourth a cup of luke warm water, and as much bread flour as can be conveniently mixed with a spoon. The dough should not be mixed stiff enough to knead. Mix out, and turn the dough-over and over with a spoon or knife; cover and set aside to become light. When the dough has doubled in bulk, with buttered fingers pull off bits of dough and work into smooth balls one inch in diameter, and set these in groups of three in a well-buttered muffin pan. When very light, bake about twenty minutes. Brush over the tops with white of egg, slightly beaten and diluted with a little cold water. Return to the oven for two minutes to glaze.

ST. PATRICK'S FRUIT CUP

Cut grapefruit in halves, and with a small, sharp knife remove the sections of pulp, being careful that none of the white skin or of the dividing membrane is left. Drain the juice from the shells, and thus proceed until a full pint of pulp and juice has been collected. From two to four grapefruit, according to the size, will be needed. Pull out from each shell every bit of loose membrane, leaving them quite clean. Hydrate two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine in one-fourth a cup of cold water, dissolve over hot water, and stir into the grapefruit pulp and juice; add three-fourths a cup of sugar, and set away to chill. If desired, a few drops of peppermint flavoring or a spoonful of the minced leaves of fresh mint, or a little green vegetable coloring may be added. This part of the recipe may be done the day before, the festive when ready to serve, break up the jelly into rough cubes, pile these into the grapefruit shells, and garnish with green candied cherries and green voralettes.

Scotia Shares Erin's Fealty To St. Patrick

St. Patrick, the best-loved Irishman in his own land, was born and bred on Scottish soil 13-odd centuries ago, according to many genealogical authorities. Old Scotia there stole a march on Erin at the beginning of the episcopy of Kilmartin, near Dumbarton, Scotland, is said to have been the birthplace of Patricius Magnus Suetatus Calpornius—the name speaks Roman ancestry. But March 17, anniversary of his death about 461 A.D. is celebrated by Irishmen the world over.

Scotland also reveres the name of the great missionary. In place-names, as well as Ireland, has paid him tribute. In addition to Kilmartin there is Dalpatrick in Lanarkshire, Crag-phadrig, near Inverness and Portpatrick, whence he sailed for Ireland. Many Scottish churches bear the name. It also appears Patric has been a favorite name in Scottish families down to the present day.

Captured at the age of 15 by heathen Irish invaders, Patrick spent six years in slavery in the country he later was to convert to Christianity. He escaped to France, returning to Ireland as Bishop and missionary 20 years afterwards.

St. Patrick's use of the shamrock to explain the gospel of the Trinity in early Ireland may have originated the tradition he banished all snakes and serpents from the country. Pliny in his "Natural History" says the trefoil, akin to the trifoliate emblem of Ireland, prevails against the sting of snakes and scorpions.

Legend says the saint performed the snake miracle at Croagh Patrick, or Patrick's Hill, in Connemara. There he spent 40 days and nights in solitude. During the tourist season it is claimed as many as 40,000 pilgrims a day view the little cell on its crest where St. Patrick lived during that period.
