TARANTO BASE

British naval sources said today the R.A.F. recent bombing of warships in Taranto harbour had forced the fastest navy to withdraw to the major port when it met from the landy damage, and to an undamaged place of greater safety.

Aerial photographs disclosed only three battleships, eight cruisers, and six destroyers were left in a dozen. It compares with approximately one and three-quarter inches in November last year.

Although the average rainfall was considerably below the average for a time during the summer at present it is believed to have reached at least the 29 year average for the year to date.

Unity stressed Between Religion And Patriotism

An inspiring address on the theme of patriotism and religion was given recently by Rev. S. B. Plunkett, S. T.L., manager of The Canadian Freeman paper, Kingston, Ontario.

Following are excerpts from Father Plunkett's address: "We are proud of our Empire and rightly so, that our Empire is lighting the age-long struggle for the freedom of Christ and Christianity against violence and tyranny. By this statement we would be fantastic to suppose that we mean that Great Britain and the British Empire had a monopoly of true Christianity or again that we can look only to the British race for vindication and defence of Christian values. No, we do not believe, nor are we so credulous as to believe that we are all white and our enemies all black."

Toyland opens At Holmans

A host of children in the City were delighted Saturday afternoon by the first visit of Santa Claus to Charlottetown this season. Santa landed at Holman's Toyland early in the afternoon and was busy all day greeting his young friends and collecting letters from the eager boys and girls which he will call upon Christmas Eve.

Toyland this year is located on the ground floor in the newly built addition at the rear. The improvement will be welcomed by all of Santa's friends.

In his collection of toys this year Santa has many new articles which will thrill the hearts of every youngster. The usual display of dolls for the little girls and the mechanical toys for the boys, was very much in evidence at Saturday's toyland. Among the new toys in Santa's pack, and one which drew a great deal of attention from the youngsters, was the electric moving picture camera.

Games, sleds, tricycles, toy telephones and spinning tops, to mention a few, were among the countless toys lining the artistically decorated department of Santa Claus.

A number of new counters were added this year. There is also a complete stock of Christmas Cards, wrapping paper and canisters. It was necessary for Santa to have some helpers at his toyland Saturday in order to see that all the children would be served. He and his helpers were busy all day and shown how the new toys worked. Mrs. A. M. Douglas was in charge of the ticket staff.

Although the boys were attracting the attention of the boys and girls, it was easy to see that the biggest attraction was the gift of tongues, with the whisks who greeted the children many of whom were seeing him for the first time in their lives.

When he was leaving, Santa said that he would be back every Wednesday and Friday from 2 until 3 in the afternoon at Holman's Toyland to greet his boys and girls.

Weather turns Cold suddenly

The weather after veering from mild to cool and from light to snow since Saturday suddenly settled down to cold last night. Mr. Warren Burns, weather observer at the Charlottetown Experimental Station, said the temperature at 8 o'clock was 25 degrees above zero, with the prospect of going lower before morning. It was the coldest recorded here in the past 24 hours.

Since Sunday afternoon almost half an inch of precipitation was recorded by the weather observer. It included both rain and snow. Several inches of snow were reported by the weather observer. Later they appeared to be less frequent and not so severe.

Several motorists enroute from Charlottetown to country districts turned back when they found it almost impossible to see.

Already this month three inches of precipitation have been recorded. It compares with approximately one and three-quarter inches in November last year.

Dense woods Holds secret of Missing Fliers

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 EAST LAKE, Que., Nov. 25 (CP)—Strong icy winds blew tonight across this desolate countryside and whistled through the dense woods which held secret the fate of three Royal Canadian Air Force bombers that disappeared in the night.

More than 600 men returned to camp after another fruitless search in which they tramped at times through snow which was piled three feet upon the tangled underbrush. To add to their difficulties, a 25-mile-an-hour wind whipped up and sub-zero weather settled on the region.

The strong wind, blowing from the northeast, churned the waters of nearby Poganagamiak lake and prevented the take-off of R.C.A.F. search planes based there. Officials said they would abandon the base, and continue operations out of St. Hubert airport, Que., near Montreal.

Nine United States army bombers, helping since they were in the search for the Canadian fliers, took off today from St. Hubert airport, 220 flying miles southwest of here, but turned back because of the poor weather conditions.

In this little eastern Quebec district, thriving since the search began a week ago Sunday, there was no thought of giving up, though few believed the men were still alive. But as one R.C.A.F. searcher commented, "there is always the chance that they may be."

Lost in the thickly-timbered region was P.O. J. G. Richardson, Saskatoon, P.E.I., C. F. Gray, New Westminster, B.C., and L.A. E. Howard, Aylesford, N.S.

Shortly before dusk, Squadron Leader L. Plante, of Ottawa, arrived at East Lake after flying from Ottawa with two Royal Canadian Mounted Police dogs—Pal and Bacchus—to aid in the search.
