WHY HE TRIED TO HELP.

An officer who was engaged in the siege of Sebastopol tells the following incident: "My general wishing to send some orders to one of the regiments, I had to pass across an open space exposed to the full fire of the batteries. I got across in safety, and as I was coming back I saw a little drummer boy lying wounded, who, if he were left where he was lying, would almost to a certainty be killed. I went to him, and told him I was going to carry him back with me. He objected, and declared that I could not carry him. As I carried him, he was most restless, declaring he was put one foot to the ground 'to help us along,' as he said. All the time he kept on saying, 'I am sure I am too heavy for you, sir, please let me try and walk myself.' At last I was obliged to put him down for a minute under the shelter of a large monument, and tell him that he must keep quiet while I carried him, or he might sacrifice both our lives, with very great difficulty, on starting. I got him to lie still in my arms, and was able to carry him to a safe shelter. Next morning I went to the hospital to see how he was, and I then reminded him how difficult he had made it for me to help him, owing to his belief that, crippled though he was from his wound, he could yet do better for himself than by trusting entirely to me. 'Ah!' said he, 'but I did not know, sir, as you was so strong!' How often does the sinner hinder the Saviour's interposition through trying to help by his own wiser? But we yet realized that he is 'so strong?'"

WORKERS TOGETHER WITH HIM.

Some persons have the foolish notion that the only way in which they can live for God is by becoming ministers, missionaries, or Bible women. Alas! how many would be shut out from any opportunity of magnifying the Most High if this were the case. Beloved, it is not office, it is earnestness; it is not position, it is grace which will enable us to glorify God. God is most surely glorified in that cobble's stall, where the godly worker, as he piles the awl, sings of the Saviour's love, ay, glorified far more than in many a prebendal stall where official religiousness performs its scanty duties. The name of Jesus is glorified by the poor unlearned carter as he drives his horse, and blesses his God, or speaks to his fellow laborer by the roadside, as much as by the popular divine who, throughout the country, like Boanerges, is thundering out the gospel. God is glorified by our serving Him in our proper vocations. Take care, dear reader, that you do not forsake the path of duty by leaving your occupation, and take care you do not dishonor your profession while in it. Think little of yourselves, but do not think too little of your callings. Every lawful trade may be sanctified by the gospel to noblest ends. Turn to the Bible, and you will find the most mental forms of labor connected either with most daring deeds of faith, or with persons whose lives have been illustrious for holiness. Therefore be not discontented with your calling. Whatever God has made your position, or your work, abide in that, unless you are quite sure that He calls you to something else. Let your first care be to glorify God to the utmost of your power where you are. Fill your present sphere to His praise, and if He needs you in another He will show it to you. This evening lay aside vexatious ambition, and embrace peaceful content.

FOX RANCHES IN ALASKA.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17.—Announcement has been made by the Secretary of Commerce of his intention to lease twelve islands on the coast of Alaska to persons who wish to engage in the business of rearing foxes. The islands will be leased for a period of five years to the highest responsible bidders. Recently the rearing of foxes for their fur has attracted a great deal of attention. Public interest has been aroused by the remarkable results achieved in this industry in the eastern part of Canada. The prices reported to have been paid for silver foxes, black foxes and other valuable varieties are almost fabulous. The demand for foxes by breeders has been so greatly in excess of the supply that live foxes of the desired varieties bring many times the amount which could be secured for their pelts.

BREEDING FOXES FOR YEARS.

While the breeding of foxes in Alaska has attracted but little public attention, the business has been going on for a number of years, and the requests made to the Department of Commerce for permits to take wild stock for the purposes of domestication have been steadily increasing. On the Pribilof Islands the practice of taking the Arctic blue fox has been pursued for many years. In 1912 the sale in London of the 391 blue and white fox skins taken on those islands during the winter of 1910-11 netted the United States Government $15,000.58. The London sale in 1913 of the 413 skins taken in the winter of 1911-12 netted the Government $20,505.17. At this sale one lot of 28 skins was sold for $3,875 or more than $131 per skin. It is thus seen that the blue foxes in the Government herds on the Pribilof Islands produce exceptionally fine pelts and are therefore very desirable breeding stock. The Secretary of Commerce will undertake to furnish, under competitive bids, live blue foxes from the Pribilof Islands to those who desire choice breeding stock.

OUTPUT CAN BE INCREASED.

There is little doubt that the various species and varieties of foxes can be improved by the application of methods of animal breeding used by up-to-date breeders of live stock. The Commissioner of Fisheries in his annual report to the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for the fiscal year 1912, in speaking of the special efforts being made to improve the stock of foxes on the Pribilof Islands and the methods of handling the herds states: "The results of experiments in feeding and selective breeding that are now in progress give reason to believe that the output can be greatly increased and the quality of the fur enhanced."

ARCTIC BLUE FOX.

According to our present knowledge there are two principal groups of foxes native to Alaska that have been handled with success on fox farms. One of these is the species known as the Arctic blue fox, which is indigenous to the northern portions of Alaska. It is believed that it was not found on the Pribilof Islands at the time of their discovery in 1787, but that it was taken to those islands subsequently. It is also reared on fox ranches on various islands on the coast of Alaska. Some individuals of this species have nearly white fur and are known as white foxes. The fur of a white fox is much less valuable than that from the blue members of the species. For this reason it is good business to eliminate from a herd of blue foxes all individuals which show a tendency toward the white fox variety.

VARIATIONS OF THE RED.

The other is a group of species known collectively as red foxes, the various species being found distributed throughout the northern portions of the United States and in Canada and Alaska. Silver gray foxes, cross foxes and black foxes are considered as individual variations of the red fox. Experiments which have been made indicate, however, that poor strains of these varieties may be obtained by selective breeding. On the Pribilof Islands the foxes subsist principally on the waste portions of seal meat not utilized as food by the inhabitants. On the fox ranches along the coast of Alaska fish is used to supplement when necessary the food which the foxes are able to secure for themselves. When fresh fish can not be had salted fish is substituted.
