YOUNG WOMEN WHO SUFFER Letter Points Way Towards Relief—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto, Ontario.—"I suffered from the time I was a school girl, until I had taken your medicine, with pain in my left side and with cramps, growing worse each year until I was all but gone. I was so bad at times that I was unfit for work. I tried several doctors and patent medicines and was only relieved for a short time. Some of the doctors wanted to have an operation but my father objected. Finally I learned through my mother of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how thankful I am that I tried it. I am relieved from pain and cramps and feel as if it has saved my life. You may use my letter to help other women as I am glad to recommend the medicine." Mrs. H. A. Goodman, 11 Rockvale Ave., Toronto, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Aliments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. This book contains valuable information.

Tropical Wonderland Its Races And Romances

In St. Patrick's Hall, Souris, on Wednesday evening the Rev. J. F. Denny, pastor of the Methodist Church, gave a delightful and instructive lecture on "Tropical Wonderland, its Races and Romances." There was a very large audience presided over by Mr. A. E. Clark and the lecture was most thoroughly enjoyed by all. The wonders of the tropics was graphically and eloquently described in elegant diction and realism. Mr. Denny has been in Souris less than five months and has already won his way into the affections of the people, not alone of his own congregation but of the whole town. The announcement that he was to lecture was a signal for all, far and near to come to hear him with the result that the hall was practically filled to capacity and the opinion was freely expressed by many that the lecture was one of the most pleasing ever heard in Souris. At the close complimentary remarks were made by ex-Mayor John E. MacDonald, who moved a vote of thanks and expressed the hope that the reverend lecturer would in the near future favor the town with another similar treat. Mr. M. S. Acorn seconded this motion in equally felicitous terms. The chairman, Mr. Clark, in presenting the thanks of the audience also added his compliments.

It is understood that Rev. Mr. Denny has been asked and has consented to give this lecture in Charlottetown.

CARVELL BROS. SAYS MISS CLARK HAD ANNOUNCED HER ENGAGEMENT AT PARTY

BOSTON, March 23.—Miss Pauline Virginia Clark, beautiful divorcee, had gaily announced her engagement to Bernard Wharton, Harvard athlete and son of Henry Wharton, Philadelphia banker, five hours before she ended her life by poison in her apartment early last Thursday morning. This statement was made tonight by Miss Ono M. Cosskie of Worcester, a guest at the party.

Miss Cosskie asserted that the young woman had promised her intended husband that she would see no more of the moody young Norwegian technology student, Otto Haldor, Larsen of Christiania, who took his own life Sunday by poison from the vital that he had admitted he had given her to use.

A wedding ring and a picture of a woman and a fair-haired boy bearing strong resemblance to Larsen were found among the dead student's effects, police said tonight. This was taken by them to be an indication that Larsen was a married man and a possible explanation of the income sentence in his letter to the medical examiner.

"I knew him able and myself, unable to marry Miss Clark," Miss Cosskie, interviewed by a Boston Post reporter in her Worcester home, said that Miss Clark took place last Saturday.

"The announcement," she said, "was somewhat of a surprise. Wharton smiled as if embarrassed, but offered no comment, Larsen said nothing. Nothing was said by anyone as to any possible objections on the part of Wharton's family."

Questioned as to relations between Larsen and Miss Clark, Miss Cosskie said she believed that "Pauline did not understand him."

"I cannot help but think that there was some intellectual bond between them," she said. "He was of morbid, intellectual disposition and was always thinking of the deeper things of life."

"Pauline was well educated girl, and being of a sympathetic nature, may have appeared to respond fully to Larsen's theories of life. Perhaps in her sympathetic nature he thought he had found a woman who agreed completely with his peculiar views."

"Pauline had no reason to have any misgiving in her thoughts," Larsen's letter said, as far as I know.

"I think she planned to tell us all at the party of her engagement and that we were to celebrate. I am sure that it was not planned as a suicide party. With the exception of Larsen everyone present was gay and care-free. Pauline went about with a perfume bottle in her hand sprinkling it upon her guests. Everyone seemed happy and all congratulated Wharton and Pauline."

We danced during the early evening and Pauline's weak ankle gave way. That is when the two men left the house as Larsen's letter said, but they went to get bandages for her ankle and not to get whiskey, as he said. When they returned we bandaged her ankle. She was in great pain and expressed the belief that her ankle was broken.

"When Pauline took the poison I was in the kitchen. Pauline was sitting in another room talking to Larsen and Wharton. Suddenly I heard a cry:

"Ann, get some water, Pauline has taken something."

"I rushed into the room with water and found Pauline slumped back in her chair, the others supporting her. The poison bottle lay on the floor."

"Larsen said, 'Why doesn't someone do something? Where are the doctors?'"

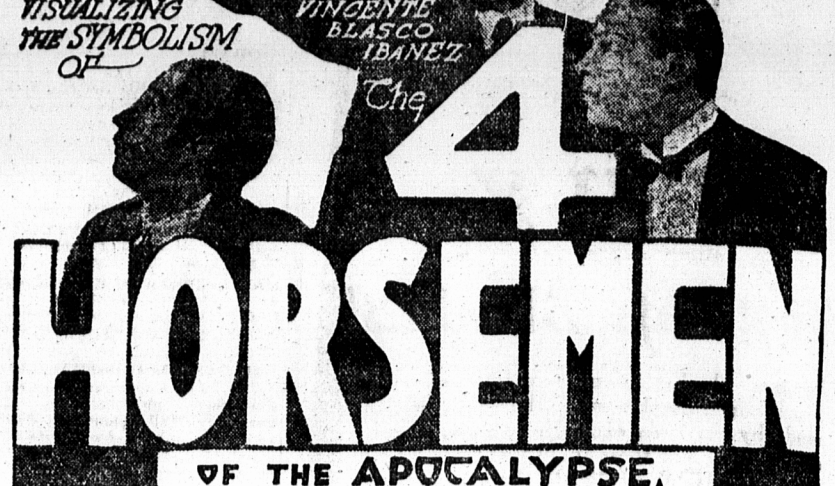

"I ran out of the apartment and then thought better of it, and returned to use the telephone. I called two doctors, and as I talked Larsen took his hat and coat and rushed out, mumbling something about getting a doctor. That was the last I saw of him."

"Miss Clark never told me anything about her plans to commit suicide. It is all a mystery to me. I cannot believe that she intended to take her own life. Think she had the poison because she thought it was 'clever' to have it around the home. Think that she probably wanted to be spectacular and touch her lips to the poison in order to keep those present guessing. Or perhaps, having both the poison and the perfume, she touched her lips to the wrong phial."

Will Stick to Pumps

CALGARY, March 22.—Should either local or general suspension of coal mining occur at the expiration of the present wage agreement on March 21, the engineers, firemen and pumpmen who are members of the United Mine Workers of America, District 18, will not suspend work, but will fully protect the property under their care and operate fans and pumps for that purpose. This was unanimously agreed upon during the second day's session of the District 18 special call conference here today.

While discussing policies to be adopted in the event of a strike, the committee was hopeful that the operators may agree to reopen negotiations. The miners decided that should all efforts for the entire district fail, they will be willing to enter into negotiations on April 1 with individual operators, a made approaches for this purpose.

11-YEAR-OLD FORGER PUTS IN HECTIC DAY

BOSTON, March 22.—Being committed to the Home for Jewish Children, Canterbury street, Dorchester, after being arraigned in the Juvenile Court for forgery, effecting an escape a few minutes after commitment, passing two more bogus checks and being arrested a few hours later while attempting to pass a third worthless check on a downtown department store, were events of a hectic day in the young life of Daniel Littman, 11 years old, of Rose street, South End.

The boy was arrested late yesterday afternoon by Inspector Pelton when he attempted to utter a $10 worthless check in a downtown department store where he was purchasing some music rolls for a player-piano. His arrest brought before the inspectors attached to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation at Police Headquarters the youngest offender ever booked here for such an offence.

He was booked as a delinquent under three charges of forging and uttering checks and two counts of larceny of money by means of worthless checks.

According to his own story to the police, last Monday, his father made restitution on a check he passed and then had him in the Juvenile Court Tuesday. The case was continued until yesterday, when the presiding judge turned the boy over to his father, so that he might be remanded to the Home of Jewish Children.

LOST VOICE RETURNS TO SCOLD PET DOG

LONDON, March 23.—Frederick He-man, who lost his speech in the war, sat reading. He was irritated by his pet dog wanting to play, and forgetting his affliction, shouted: "Lie down!"

Then he leaped up in astonishment at the sound of his own voice. Since then he has been able to speak in a perfectly normal way. His wife, whom he married two years ago, had never heard him speak before.
