THE CAPITAL OF THE WEST

Letters from Summerside and Prince County.

Supreme Courts meet in Summerside today.

There were five horses among the shipments by the Northumberland yesterday morning.

Rev. A. D. McCully and Rev. Mr. Pearce Sheldar, will exchange pulpits again next Sunday.

The member of the Women's Auxiliary are asked to be at the guild room Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 to meet Miss Leslie. All interested in missions are invited to the above meeting.

The congregation of Cornwallis, N. S. parish church has unanimously voted to invite Rev. T. C. Mellor, of Summerside to become their rector. Mr. Mellor, who has just returned from a visit to England, has not as yet given a reply.

Miss Hattie Wadman, who spent the past summer in Summerside left yesterday for Stratford, Ont., where she will visit for a short time before joining her parents in Denver, Colo. E. W. Mason accompanied her as far as Moncton, N. B.

Miss Leslie of the Church of England Zezema Missionary Society stationed at Toi Choo, China will give an address in St. Mary's guild room on Wednesday evening, Nov. 25 at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Leslie brings with her some exhibits to illustrate her lecture.

Any one desiring to enjoy a good hearty laugh, a clean comedy performance should attend the Jerry from Kerry shows in Market Hall on Nov. 29, Dec. 1 and 2. The Patten and Jerry Co. were certainly never surpassed by any company that ever visited Summerside. Admission children 25c. Adults 35c. Reserved seats 50c.

S. H. Jones forwarded 210 lambs by the Northumberland yesterday which conclude his shipments for this season. The number of lambs shipped by Mr. Jones this season total nearly seven thousand which is something short of his best years here and accountable only for the fact that more could not be procured. The number of live geese forwarded by Mr. Jones this fall aggregate close on to eleven thousand, which is the largest season's shipment yet made by him from this port. Mr. Jones has this season again been unable to handle turkeys because of their not being in fit condition in time for the American Thanksgiving. Our farmers seem not yet to be devoted to the advantage of getting their turkeys ready for this market. Next year as an inducement Mr. Jones intends offering prizes to the farmers who will raise and deliver to him the largest numbers of turkeys in time for the American Thanksgiving market.

The marriage of Percy M. MacMahon, I. C. R. operator at Moncton and Miss Marion F. C. MacMillan, youngest daughter of Daniel MacMillan took place at St. John the Baptist Church, Miscouche at an early hour yesterday morning. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. McDonald. Parnell MacMahon, brother of the groom and Miss Emma C. MacMillan attended the happy couple. The bride, who was very becomingly attired in a handsome gown of white silk, trimmed with Irish point lace and ribbon and wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms, was given away by her father. She carried a beautiful bouquet of bride roses. The bridesmaid also looked very nice dressed in white organdy trimmed with ribbon. The ceremony over, nuptial high mass followed. Mrs. Gaudet ably presided at the organ and the singing was all that could be desired. The altar was brilliantly lighted with tapers and decorated with flowers. Among the many valuable and useful gifts to the bride were a handsome gold watch and chain presented by the groom and cheques from her brothers. Followed by the good wishes of a host of friends and amid showers of rice the happy couple took the train to Summerside where they crossed by the Northumberland on a trip to various points in the Maritime Provinces.

Piles To prove to you that Dr. Chase's Ointment is a certain and absolute cure for each and every form of itching, bleeding and protruding piles, the manufacturers have guaranteed it. See testimonials in the daily press and ask your neighbors what they think of it. You can use it and get your money back if not cured. 50c a box, at all dealers or EDWARDS, BATES & CO., Toronto, Dr. Chase's Ointment.

The happiest Day. The Old Man - Well, my lad, I wish you every possible happiness, and I assure you, as a man of experience, that you will always look back upon to-day as the happiest of your life. The Young Man - I am very much obliged, sir, for your good wishes, but you are a little mistaken. It is not till to-morrow that I am to be married. The Old Man - Yes, yes, I know. That's what I mean. Pick-Up.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Mr. Cumming, photographer at Moncton is in the city.

John A. Collins left yesterday morning on a few days visit to Moncton.

Miss Hamilton returned yesterday morning from a short visit to Summerside.

Mrs. F. V. Vasey has returned to York after spending a few weeks in the city.

A. We'llsley Smith of R. S. north, recently returned from Wapella, Assa, spent Sunday at York.

ONE IN FOUR PERSONS

One person in every four suffers more or less from itching piles. Some do not know the nature of their ailment, and others have not heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment as the only absolute and permanent cure for this distressing ailment. If you are a sufferer ask your neighbors about this great preparation. It has grown popular as a result of the news of its merits being passed from friend to friend.

THE NAVAL POLICE.

Obscure, But Found on Every Battleship of the British Navy.

Probably the most obscure police force in existence is that known as the Naval Police, members of which are to be found on every battleship in the British Navy. Although British sailors have their own policemen to look after them, it must not be inferred that this state of things is necessitated by the bad conduct of the men. As a matter of fact, it is not often that the naval constable has to use his powers afloat, but when in port he is always busy in the interests of Jack.

The naval constables on every ship are under the control of the master-at-arms, the highest position in this police force, to which a salary of £2 2s. a week is attached. Their duties consist in maintaining order throughout the vessel and guarding the ship's stores. When a ship is in port it is not an unknown occurrence for thieves to slip aboard unobserved, and the constable on patrol has, of course, to prevent this.

As soon as a ship enters port it is usual for seamen of good behaviour to obtain leave to go ashore, and very often Jack is so lost in the enjoyment of his little holiday that he fails to return to his vessel at the appointed time. The naval constables then row ashore, and, having apprehended the deserter, take him back to his ship, when he receives a light sentence from the master-at-arms for his thoughtlessness.

But without the naval police are always popular with the men, who know well enough that they never make trouble unless there is just cause for it. On the other hand, they sometimes rescue Jack, after a tough fight, from the haunts of landsharks to which he has been lured, as often as not displaying the most remarkable courage on his behalf.

Another reason for the popularity of these police is that they are really sailors themselves, and have served on the lower deck for three years as ordinary seamen before being promoted to corporal of police. Furthermore, they must have a clean conduct sheet and be indefatigable workers, while to distinguish them they are allowed to wear the letters "N. P." on their sleeves.

A Walled Town in Britain.

In the old days when might was right the city that was walled about was common enough, but there are very few towns in Britain which preserve their walls at the present day. Of those few, undoubtedly the most unique is Berwick-upon-Tweed, the old Border town, which has occupied many a page of the past history of the United Kingdom, and which to this very day enjoys the distinction of special mention as a place apart from the United Kingdom in every Royal proclamation issued. Here the old battlements remain intact, with all but one of the ancient gateways, and even in some cases the very ponderous gates themselves on their old rusty hinges. In reality there are too walls, the outside and older one, of which now only some fragments remain standing, dating back to the far-off times of Edward the First, who in the great hall of Berwick Castle - only a small part of which now remains - decreed that Balfour should be King of Scotland, a decree which, as every schoolboy knows, was soon set at defiance by the Bruce and his hardy warriors. On this outer line of the ramparts still stands the tower in which the warning notes of the war bell were rung to denote the approach of an enemy, an object naturally of great interest to all visitors to the town.

Mr. Barrie's Little Joke.

James M. Barrie, the famous Scottish author, who is very shy at social functions or banquets, and can hardly be induced to either converse freely or utter a speech, is not above poking fun at himself. On one occasion there appeared in the Scots Observer a brilliant lampoon in which Mr. Barrie was represented as attending a public dinner, keeping every one in roars of laughter with his unceasing stream of wit and epigram, and finally ending up by making the speech of the evening. When a certain literary friend of Mr. Barrie's saw this wickedly clever piece of satire, his indignation knew no bounds, and he rushed into print demanding by all the outraged gods that the author of this infamous article should straightway disclose himself, and be dealt with accordingly. But, alas for the well-meaning friend, the author was none other than Mr. Barrie himself.
