Candidates Heard At Tyne Valley

Specious Arguments Advanced By Premier And Attorney General To Offset Scandal Of Prohibition Nonenforcement.

Mr. G. Shelton Sharp was the first speaker at the joint meeting in Tyne Valley on Thursday evening in connection with the forthcoming by-election in the 2nd District of Prince. Although for years a Liberal stronghold, the Conservative speakers were given the bulk of the applause by an audience which filled the hall to capacity. The seriousness of the audience and attentive hearing given to each speaker plainly indicated that the electors were keenly interested in the issues at stake.

In opening his speech Mr. Sharp referred to the decision of both candidates to run a clean election and that no rum would be used. His sarcastic remark "that as this is a Prohibition Province there is of course no possibility of getting any booze!" brought down the house.

Mr. Sharp criticised the Saunders and Lea Governments for their failure to keep their election promises. The Stewart Government, realizing that Prohibition could not be properly enforced, came out at the last election with a platform of Government Control, hoping thereby to improve the situation. The Liberals divided on the subject, discussed the advantages of coming out on various platforms and finally decided on Bone Dry Prohibition. How has it worked out? There is more liquor drunk in the country than ever before. Mr. Saunders had said that with a few changes in the Act, the country could be made absolutely dry. The people were led to believe that with the reduction of scripts issued to the doctors, there would be less drinking, but the reverse is the case. The people are bound to get drunk. The result of Mr. Saunders' "Bone Dry" policy is that any one, even children, can obtain it. In the old days one had to go to Summerside to get liquor but now they are peddling rum through the country-side and it is said that a bottle of rum can be bought in New London for a dollar.

Speaking on the highway question and Island gravel, Mr. Sharp again criticised the Government for their wasteful extravagance in the little money in buying imported gravel and expensive machinery.

Mr. Campbell at the meeting at Tyne Valley said that there were not as many men but a little more machinery used on the road. Mr. Sharp wondered if the audience would think that $225,000 spent on "a little more machinery" was a good policy. Most of it was out of date. The only piece that was any good was the Big Ditcher. Mr. Lea on every platform of the Federal Election campaign had denounced Mr. Bennett with the assertion that he would not keep his promises. But two members of the Provincial Government were returning from Ottawa with $90,000 for unemployment. Mr. Sharp remarked, in a jocular manner, that he was afraid that if the Government at Ottawa had not attached some strings to the money, Mr. McIntyre would have it all spent on road machinery before he arrived home.

Turning on the much discussed Subsidy Claims, the speaker pointed out the fact that in this Province was not a than 60 per cent farming population we could ever hope to keep out of debt unless we receive a just portion of subsidy from Ottawa which we are entitled to under certain claims laid down before the Duncan Commission. The present Government has failed to obtain any settlement from a Liberal Government and we have been the loser by many hundreds of thousands of dollars. There was much amusement in the audience when Mr. Sharp remarked that after making three trips to Ottawa to obtain a settlement of the subsidy claims Premier Saunders returned with a Supreme Court judgement for himself. He then resigned his seat and appointed his junior partner, with only four years experience at the bar, as Attorney General and told him to go down to the Second District and get his seat in the House. The Liberal party did not think that the Conservatives would contest the seat and are "sorry" that Mr. Campbell was not put in by acclamation.

Mr. Sharp remarked that Mr. Campbell was a very fine young man, but was rather inexperienced in politics, and he felt sorry that if elected he would have to mix with that "ancient order of humbugs" that represent the present Government. He was afraid he would soon become contaminated. (Applause from the audience). It was the duty of the electors in making their decision to decide whether they were satisfied with the present Government and whether they had fulfilled their pledges, especially the prohibition enforcement pledge, as the people were led to believe it would be fulfilled when they were elected three years ago.

Mr. Campbell's Address

Mr. Campbell was the next speaker and was given a very attentive hearing which again proved that the audience were very anxious to get all the facts before them before casting their vote. The speaker's time was mostly taken up with criticising the opposition speakers for having no platform, saying they had no constructive criticism. He also complained that the Conservative speakers had a good deal to say about the enforcement of the Prohibition law. It must be admitted, said Mr. Campbell, that the Prohibition law is not enforced a hundred per cent. No law is enforced one hundred per cent but the people seem to expect Prohibition to be so enforced. He considered the Government had fulfilled every one of their pledges. They had placed enforcement of the liquor law in the hands of the Prohibition Commission. They had never attempted to interfere with that Commission but have lent their support. It was not the Government's fault if the law is not enforced so well as it should be. The Conservatives criticised a Government that has done all it could but they do not say what they would do.

Mr. Campbell also discussed the road policy of his Government and took up some time comparing the net debts of the two parties. He admitted that the Liberal party had certain revenue which the Conservative party had not but stated they had lost the highway grants. Mr. Campbell contradicted a previous statement, made at Freeport on Tuesday night, when he had told the audience that they used no borrowed money for road making. On this occasion Mr. Campbell said it was true they had borrowed money for the roads but that they had provided a sinking fund, by purchasing bonds from gasoline and auto taxes, which, when matured would pay off the debt and not increase the public debt one cent. The question of using local gravel was rather lamely dealt with. Mr. Campbell spoke for some time on the forward stride of his Government in the administration of justice. Hitherto law enforcement had not been organized. Mr. Campbell outlined the duties of Mr. Trainor, Provincial Police Commissioner. In his closing remarks the Liberal candidate repeated the stale argument that since the Government had to carry on for another year and a half it would be in the interest of the party to have a lawyer to guide them in the different points of law.

Forceful Criticism

Mr. Ardian F. Arsenault, M.L.A. followed Mr. Campbell and there was prolonged applause as he came forward, as he is known to be a brilliant and forceful speaker. He was given forty minutes, Mr. Sharp having given him part of his time.

In opening his speech, Mr. Arsenault remarked that this was his first appearance on a political platform at Tyne Valley and he was very grateful to the audience for their cordial welcome. He took up at once Mr. Campbell's criticism of the Conservative party for not having a policy on this occasion. It was not, he said, their duty to propose anything but to expose the true condition of affairs. Has, he asked, any one of the Liberal speakers mentioned their platform to you? It is up to them to follow the lines they look at the last election. But they have lost track of that platform. (Laughter from the audience.)

"They have lost their platform," said Mr. Arsenault, "but unfortunately for them, I have it here and will read extracts from it. If you are interested in finance, we will read off a few figures taken from their own book. The liabilities in the year 1926 under Conservative rule were $2,090,000. In 1929 under Liberal rule the liabilities were $2,558,740, an increase in the public debt of $528,000 in two and a half years. They cannot deny it. The Bell Government and the following Conservative Governments had something to their credit but the present Government showed an increased expenditure of $1,086,000 and a deficit of
