was found that the fish rotted while in the boat before getting to the shore. He described an experiment whereby putty fish were made the laboratory out of a cod. Exposure to hot weather was the cause of these "putty" fish, he asserted. He advised keeping fish as cool as possible until they are put under salt also to avoid moving. Washing fish in cold fresh water was also a good remedy. In real hot weather ice will probably have to be resorted to—given in the boats. "Putty" fish is a case of straight spoiling the bacteria gets in before the salt, he said in conclusion.
Before the meeting adjourned for noon the financial report was read. This showed a balance of $846.42 on hand. The appointment of the Acting Secretary was then approved by the meeting.

Afternoon Session
When the session resumed for the afternoon a question was asked about the size limit. Mr. McCarthy answered that he understood a new law was on foot to have the size limit increased from 6 1/2 to seven inches. The government will be ready to buy the lobsters as before to prevent any collapse in the industry. The price of lobsters this year will be increased from 12 to 13-8 inches according to the plans. There was no action taken about the size limit at Moncton but Mr. McCarthy stated that he learned that the Department intended increasing it.
William Geldert, Morill, and Joseph Pettit, North Rustico, took part in the discussion on size limit. The reports of the different stations were then submitted.

Tignish Report
Mr. Cluetus Gavin, Tignish, reported a decrease in the membership. He told of the activities carried on in lobster fishing. A large quantity of codfish was also handled during the year. All the hake fishes were disposed of locally. A good catch of lobsters was also realized. They were still salted and are on hand awaiting better markets.
The fishermen still believe in co-operation and have proved that this method of doing business has been successful. In conclusion he urged other stations to stick to co-operative methods.

Pinette Report
Mr. Stewart Ross, Beaton's Mills, reported a good catch of lobsters. Some were sent to the Boston market while others were canned in the local market. $280 pounds was the average catch per boat. Co-operative buying was carried on during the year resulting in a saving in the purchase of merchandise and supplies.
Murray Harbour Report
Mr. William MacDonald, Murray Harbour, said that 44,000 pounds of market lobsters were shipped. There was no cannery in operation in the district. There was no good fishing season in the district. Some of the members were overseas which tended to make the membership lower.
Marcell Report
Mr. Allan B. MacAdam, Marcell, reported a good catch of lobsters. He also outlined other fisheries carried on in the district. Prices were an improvement over last season. Quota of 2000 number of fish was engaged in fishing mackerel. Oil and supplies were bought at wholesale and discount prices.

Red Point Report
Mr. Jerome Chapman, Red Point, reported that fish were bought by order of the government. He outlined the sales of codfish, hake and other fish. The season started with 14 boats but 4 went over to the north side. About 1000 number of fish were sold on "putty" fish. This condition was caused by the fish spoiling of this mode.
North Rustico Report
Mr. Emmett Gallant, North Rustico reported that business was not completed at the station. He told of the wonderful results in marketing the lobster. About 8000 gals. of cod liver oil was practically sold from the work on the station. Fish discards had also been packed.
In the following discussion Mr. William MacDonald referred to the proposed increase of 1-16 inches in the size of markets. He said it would cut off quite a little on the markets. He did not think that 8-inch lobsters would get by at all. A bill went through in Massachusetts increasing the size.
Mr. McCarthy brought up the matter of salt. If the war continues it will be difficult to obtain, he asserted.
Mr. MacDonald said there would also be a shortage of tin for cans this year.

Compulsory Grading
Mr. Emmett Gallant who was at the recent fisheries meeting in Moncton, said that the government was trying to institute compulsory grading of canned lobsters; also they seemed to want to increase the size of canned lobsters from 6 1/2 to 7 inches.
In a discussion on a resolution asking the maintenance of the present size limit, A. Barriault, Egmout Bay said they felt it would affect the market lobsters in his district. They were willing to join with the rest to maintain the present limit.
The resolution regarding the dismissal of two fish curing inspectors was then discussed by the meeting. It was explained that two inspectors in curing fish, Mr. F. Campbell, Red Point, and Mr. Gavin, Tignish, were suspended. Mr. Chapman pointed out that they were doing a great job. He had approached the Federal representative in Kings County but "he couldn't do very much" about the matter.
Discussing the sales tax on canned lobsters, Mr. Gavin said the price of these were higher than other canned fish. The amount of tax was out of variance with other products.

Rev. F. R. McNeill
Rev. F. R. McNeill, Rustico, in a few remarks referred to the many difficulties which the Union has to contend with "during these troubled days." He complimented the execulive on the work done. The fishermen of North Rustico will show that cooperation pays in the end.

Mr. William MacDonald, Murray Harbour, renounced for the credentials committee.
Mr. McCarthy, prior to the election of officers, said he was anxious to be relieved of his duties of president. He "did not care to continue in the office as his work at home requires too much time." He withdrew from the contest. Only one other name was submitted.

GERMANS IN

Beyond the Ketch Strait to the east are the Russian Krasnodar oil fields, and to the northeast lies Rostov at the mouth of the Don River.
How near the second German column stood to Sevastopol, the key to the mastery of the Black Sea, was not specifically stated, but the German command spoke of the Soviet defenders as in flight and as offering only local resistance which it claimed was everywhere broken.
While Nazi accounts stressed action in the far south there again was no hint on the situation about Moscow.
Before Leningrad, however, the Russians showed they were still far from the end of their rope and had the ability to take the initiative. The high command itself reported that "strong enemy forces" supported by tanks had tried to break out of Leningrad but claimed they were crushed with heavy, bloody losses before reaching the German lines.

Resolutions
Resolved that the Executive of the organization further protest as with the Fishery Department at Ottawa in an effort to have the present size limit maintained. It was moved by Mr. William MacDonald, Murray Harbour, seconded by Mr. Allyn Arsenault, Egmout Bay.
Whereas the dismissal of our two fish inspectors on curing and preparing the different kinds of scale fish has proven very unsatisfactory and unfair to the fishermen of this province despite the strong protests made by the Executive of this organization and other recommendations of fish inspectors as well as our qualifications and we recommend that they should be reinstated.
Resolved that the Executive of this organization further protest as to the unfairness of the act and strongly appeal that inspectors on curing and preparing scale fish in P. E. I. be done by men from our province. It was moved by Mr. J. Chapman, Red Point and seconded by Cluetus Gavin, Tignish.
Resolved that the Executive of this organization take the matter up with the Minister of Education to have the changing of school books eliminated as far as possible and the prices greatly reduced. Moved by Mr. Wm. MacDonald and seconded by Mr. Wm. Geldert.
Whereas the sales tax on canned lobsters is in our opinion out of reason compared with the tax on other canned fish products.
Resolved that our executive take the matter up with the proper authorities for modifications in this regard. Moved by Mr. McAdam and seconded by Mr. Lloyd McEwen.
Whereas prices on salt working the present situation in buying fish are gone sky rocketing and is working to the detriment of our cod industry and making it unprofitable.
Resolved that our executive endeavor to contact the government with regard to some other system of procuring salt at a reduced cost. Moved by Mr. Harold Cormier and seconded by Mr. Joseph L. Peters.

AXIS CONVOY
53 and during October 89. In the Mediterranean during September 29 merchant vessels were sunk. During October sank or damaged 34 vessels in that theatre of the war.
The admiralty did not say how many submarines yielded to the enemy or over what periods they were captured since "for reasons well appreciated, particularly by the enemy, our successes against the U-boats are not publicized." It said, of the only British losses listed on the actions against the channel convoy and against the French ships were a match ship damaged and five men wounded in the channel battle.
The admiralty said the French ship was intercepted and boarded off South Africa. The ship was a small armed sloop and added that this "operation is still proceeding."
"The Vichy government have recently been attempting to run contracts for the Germans from the Atlantic to France in exchange for the communique said in explanation of this encounter.
Vichy Gov't Protest
The Vichy government announced it had protested against the seizure of the convoy and incidentally disclosed that the encounter occurred Nov. 2 in the Indian Ocean about 200 miles south of Durban while the ships were making their way from the big French island of Madagascar to West Africa and Europe.
The admiralty said that when the Vichy convoy was ordered into port for inspection "three of the five vessels made a determined attempt to scutt themselves."
"Their action was however frustrated by prompt steps taken by our boarding parties." It added.
"This attempt can only have been made in compliance with instructions which the Germans are known to have given that French ships are to scuttle themselves rather than allow a search to be carried out and their guilty cargoes disclosed."
An acute axis need to replenish shipping battered by the relentless British attacks was believed the major reason for the interception of the Vichy ships. It was believed they sailed quite probably because the Nazi armistice commission responded to orders to augment the dwindling axis pool.
Qualified sources said "it quite possible that the Germans planned to continue the ships in ocean service under the Vichy flag if they got through safely on this trip and the British showed any reluctance about stopping them."
The only available official statistics on axis losses show 4,070,000 tons sunk from the war's start to Aug. 16 but the tempo of British

Interpreting The War

to the defence of Rostov.
Rostov itself is only the outer redoubt of the Caucasus defence hinge. The south bank of the Don, the Sea of Azov and Kerch Strait still would bar the way into the Caucasus. Every day gained by the Russian stand there gives the British and Russian authorities that much more time to prepare joint defences of the Caucasian-Caspian oil fields.
North of the hot Rostov corner, there is some intimation that the Germans may be preparing to set up a winter line for holding purposes.
The logical place for it would be east of the Moscow-Rostov railroad. That north-south road would be needed to maintain the line and go to the Russian back and forth to meet possible Russian counter attacks.
However, the fact that the Nazis are exerting heavy pressure on Tbilisi have deflected through Kursk raises another possibility. These cities, lying south of Moscow, are junctions for road and rail communications eastward as well as north and south. They afford the Germans means of driving widespread encirclement spearheads about Moscow, clear to the Volga.

Talk Cosmetics To Hold Morale

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(CP)—Although there is a threatened shortage of basic materials for cosmetics, United States defense officials plan to go all-out to keep mildly beautiful for they say beauty paint for women is just about as important as war paint for battleships. "If the morale of a nation's women sinks to that of the men," one official says, "The girls may have to put up with changes in the packaging of cosmetics. Plastics may be substituted for brass and other metal containers. But officials say for the present there is no shortage in the essentials, lipstick, nail polish and rouge—cosmetics nearly every woman finds is part of her daily life."
Because there is a definite shortage of aluminum, beauty parlors are affected. They use aluminum in giving permanent waves. Probably in place of the old-fashioned permanent, women may be confronted with an era of wind-blown bobs. The silk shortage may bring on an era of sun-tanned legs. Already women magazines are advertising "silk stockings poured on from a bottle."
Defense officials fear a shortage in solvents which go into the making of cosmetics. The shortages apply especially to solvents, glycerine and alcohol which are used in making explosives, nitroglycerine, and other defense priorities.
Glycerine and alcohol are used also in making astragles, cold creams, facial packs, hair dyes, perfumes and similar articles. Ethyl acetate, used in making nail polish, is another important solvent used for making explosives and other defense materials. Substitutes are being developed as fast as possible but between curtailment and substitution shortages can't be avoided. Nylon as a substitute for silk has made great strides. None of the materials used in making nylon is expected to become scarce. The slide shortage of the market but there are plenty of buttons.

U. S. offers to Accept settlement For sinking

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The United States offered to accept a lump sum of $2,997,092 in full settlement of all claims against the German government for the sinking of the American steamship Robin Moor, the state department disclosed today, and the German government reply that the German government was not to be expected.
The communication from the German charge d'affaires to state secretary Hull, made public by the state department, was dated Sept. 26.
In it the German envoy referred to the original American protest which took the form of a text of President Roosevelt's message to Congress on the sinking, and a subsequent note from Hull offering to accept a lump sum settlement for damages.

HINDU STILL UP

CALCUTTA.—(CP)— Census figures show Calcutta's Hindu population increased from 800,000 to 1,500,000 in 10 years and the Moslems from 300,000 to 500,000.
There are two occasions when the mouth should be kept shut—when swimming and when angry.
