—C. M. B. A. WHIST—There were fifteen tables at the regular weekly whist in the C. M. B. A. hall at Summerside. Prizes were won by Mrs. Lillian Carver, Miss Clara Gallant, Mr. Albon Gillis and Mr. Calixte Gallant. S.

—STEAMER LEAVES—The fertilizer steamer Stal, Capt. Nensen, which has been at Summerside since Friday last, unloading fertilizer for the Associated Shippers, left shortly after noon on Wednesday for Sandy Hook, New York, where she will take orders. While here she employed about one hundred men. S.

—NO TAX INCREASE THIS YEAR—After reading the report of the citizens meeting held in the Council Chamber on Friday in reference to the building of streets, many citizens thought that the taxes will be raised this year. Mayor Manson wants it to be clearly understood that the assessment rates have been fixed for this year, and no change can be made until next year. S.

—NOT YET DECIDED—There have been rumours that the site at the corner of Duke Street has been selected by the Water Commissioners for the digging of the new well for additional water supply at Summerside. Although this will probably be the place selected, the authorities say the matter is still under consideration and nothing definite has been decided upon. S.

PERSONALS

—Mrs. McNevin and Miss Doris McNevin have arrived from Boston to spend the summer with Mrs. McNevin's mother, Mrs. Joseph Cannon of Summerside. S.

—Rev. W. H. Harding of Summerside will be the special speaker on Sunday at the United Churches at O'Leary and Bloomfield for the Rural Day services. S.

—Mr. A. E. McLean, M. P., and Mrs. McLean are expected home on Friday from Ottawa, where they have been attending the session of the House of Commons. S.

—Mrs. Kane, wife of the Chief of Police at Summerside, is on a visit to Petersville, N. B., called there on account of the critical condition of her brother, Mr. George Harkins. Chief Kane has not yet received any word as to Mr. Harkins condition. S.

Bandits Remained For Breakfast

NEW YORK, May 17—(C.P.)—This is the tale of a strange "bandit" breakfast party which lasted an hour and a half. Three polite bandits had just tied the last knots in the twine which firmly bound Mrs. Ramona Santos, her 22 year old daughter, and four men, friends of the family, in Mrs. Santos' apartment in this city, when someone knocked at the door. Hastily pocketing the $200 in cash and the wrist watch they had taken from the group, one of the robbers opened the door and thrust his revolver under the nose of a laundry man.

The latter dropped his bundle of clean wash and submitted while the bandits tied his arms and legs gently but firmly. They had just deposited him with the other six victims when there came another knock at the door. Happily the men welcomed a grocer, tied him up, too, and unwrapped the comestibles he had brought.

"Ha, coffee," said one of the men, sniffing joyfully as he seized a percolator and made for the stove. There was another knock. This time it was a fruit vendor, and he took his place bound with other members of the uncomfortable group in the corner. Some oranges and grapefruit he had brought were peeled and sliced. The coffee was poured, steaming, into three cups. The radio was turned on. Breakfast was ready.

While the men were chatting pleasantly over their coffee and cigarettes, Miss Santos managed to inform them that the wrist watch they had taken was a gift from her dead father. It was returned, with apologies. Then, wiping the fruit juice from their fingers and the coffee from their lips, the bandits bade their victims adieu and departed. Several minutes later Mrs. Santos wriggled free and sounded an alarm.

Parent—What is your reason for wishing to marry my daughter?
Young Man—I have no reason, sir: I am in love!

No Tears Shed At This Burial

DENVILLE, N. J., May 17.—Clad in silk pajamas and a flaming red bath robe, Ray Richards, 22, was buried here today.

There wasn't a damp eye among the 2,000 onlookers as the lid of the metal coffin was bolted down to the strains of an orchestral funeral march. In fact, smiles were visible as a wreath was placed on top of the casket and as it lowered into its lonely resting place.

For pulsating life still was visible in every inch of Ray's six-foot as he waved his friends a cheery "so long" and reclined in the metal box. It seems Ray once lived underground for 38 days, back in his hometown of Pennsylvania, Pa. He is a world's record seeker now and volunteered to attempt a 40-day corpse-like pose for the benefit of the Denville fire department and unemployment fund.

Ray has a stove-pipe connecting either end of his coffin with the "upper crust." You look down the pipe at the casket's head and see the face of the living corpse—for 25 cents.

"Being of sound mind and body," according to a pre-burial statement, Ray willed his worldly all to his mother before being placed beneath five feet of earth. He'll be fed liquids through one of the stove-pipes by a pair of nurses who will be in constant attendance. They'll be there too in case of emergencies. But, added a cheery grave-digger, in case of an emergency it will take four hours to unearth "stunting rat."

BRAIN NEARER HUMAN TYPE DISCOVERED IN BABY GORILLA

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Discovery in a gorilla of a brain of higher type than ever before found in an animal—nearer the human brain weight than any similar ape's brain on record—was announced today by the Smithsonian Institution. It sheds new light on the evolution of the animal brain upward toward the human level, though giving no direct evidence of relationship of men and monkeys. The brain belonged to Okero, little three-year-old baby gorilla that died several months ago at the Washington Zoo. It was studied by Dr. C. J. Connolly of Catholic University of America. Dr. Connolly found besides being unusually heavy for a baby gorilla's brain, that Okero's thinking apparatus was especially rich in convolutions or "wrinkles" in the upper part of the brain which is the centre that in humans controls speech, thought and bodily movements. Okero's brain weighed 466.6 grams, a little over a pound. The lightest normal human weights about 1,100 grams, which has been considered more than twice as heavy as the heaviest ape brain. If Okero had plane of homo sapiens, lived and his brain had grown as fast as a human one, it might have reached a weight of more than 600 grams, Dr. Connolly explained, nearer the human weight than any ape brain before. Okero was a mountain gorilla, while all others so far studied have been coast gorillas. Behavior of the former indicates they are somewhat more intelligent. "There might be the implication," says the Smithsonian report, "that the mountain gorilla represents a considerable step upward from the level of the great apes toward the heaviest ape brain. If Okero had plane of homo sapiens,"
