have discarded old hygienic methods for this new way—true protection—discards like tissue

WHEN the world started expecting more of women, the old-time "sanitary pad" had to go.

Doctors urge a new way. Millions employ it. You wear sheerest frocks without a second thought, any time, anywhere. You meet every day unhandicapped.

It is called "KOTEX" . . . five times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad!

Thoroughly deodorizes . . . thus ending ALL fear of offending.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it without hesitancy simply by saying "KOTEX," at any drug or department store. Costs only a few cents. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

The political meeting in the Orange Hall here on Monday evening was largely attended. Mr. John MacLeod was chairman and a splendid hearing was given each of the speakers, Messrs Jenkins, Myers, Sinclair and Messervey.

Dante Avenue has Peace He Sought

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Dante Avenue, a modest little residence street, suddenly is becoming one of the most widely known places in Chicago.

It is estimated that 600,000 persons have recently thronged there in less than a week. The reason for all this is a Chicago monastery that in a strikng manner recalls the great poet Dante himself.

Silent Crowds

Dante's own answer given to friars questioning him as to what he sought when, in exile, he visited Santa Croce monastery in the Riviera is also given as the key to the presence at times of endless crowds in Dante Avenue, Chicago. Fra Ilario, friar of Santa Croce Monastery, has left the Santa Croce record in these words:

"Moved either by the religion of the place or by some other feeling, he stood silently contemplating the columns and arches of the cloister. And again I asked him what he wished and whom he sought. Then, slowly turning his head, and looking at the friars and at me, he answered: 'Peace'"

Shrine to St. Therese

The white cloaked friars of the Carmelite monastery in Dante Avenue, Chicago, have no other explanation for the silent crowds that come to Dante Avenue—"moved either by the religion of the place or by some other feeling." It is in this monastery of the Chicago Carmelite friars that some years ago the principal American shrine was established for the recently canonized Carmelite nun, St. Therese of Liseaux, known as the "Little Flower of Jesus". Of late, the increasing crowds of visitors have made necessary a removal of the shrine from the monastery to the neighboring Carmelite church of St. Clara.

Dante Avenue, where the Chicago Carmelite monastery is situated, was originally known as Star Street. General alphabetical rearrangement of Chicago street names resulted in the change to Dante Avenue. A singular coincidence is that each of the parts of Dante's masterpiece, the Divina Commedia, ends with the word "stars". The last words of the poem are: "By the love impelled that moves the sun in heaven and all the stars."

Eel-grass such as grows along the seaboard of the Maritime Provinces has many practical uses, according to the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. It forms an excellent insulating material for houses, can be employed as a fuel, as a sound deadener and as stuffing in upholstery. Some people like to chew it for its salty flavor.

It is estimated that less than half of our maple trees are tapped each year, says the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior. The manufacture of maple products is one of the most profitable side lines a farmer can develop when one considers the shortness of the season required and the fact that trees may be used as fuel when they pass maturity. The supply of maple products is much less than the demand and this is a situation that will become increasingly apparent when the people of other countries learn of the delicious flavor of maple syrup.

City Memorializes Kosciuszko's Life

CRACOW, Poland, Aug. 27 — Cracow is to the memory of Tadeusz Kosciuszko what Mount Vernon is to the memory of George Washington. One cannot walk far in this old city of the Polish kings without coming upon some reminder of the great national hero whose name kindles more enthusiasm both in America and in Poland than that of any other Pole.

Also Served America

Whether as colonel of the artillery and personal adjutant to George Washington in the American War of Independence, or whether as leader of the Polish insurrection of 1794 against Russian oppression, he was one of the most picturesque figures of his time. Partisans of Marshall Pilsudski today refer to the virtual dictator of Poland as "the second Kosciuszko" and the imagination of Polish school children is fired by copious references in the textbooks to the exploits of Tadeusz Kosciuszko.

The mecca for the visitor to Cracow is the Wawel, rocky hill on the left bank of the Vistula. It was the fortified seat of the Polish dukes and kings from the very dawn of the nation's history. It is thus, as it were, the emblem of the Polish nation.

Buried With Kings

One of the proudest structures on the Wawel is the cathedral. In its spacious underground corridors there is the Crypt of St. Leonard, reserved for the coffins of the Polish kings and their families. The only non-royal national hero to be honored by a burial place alongside of the kings is Kosciuszko.

Every visitor to the cathedral inspects the Treasury in the vestry. As the priest in charge exhibits and explains the priceless bejewelled chalices, royal crowns, chasubles, and reliquaries, he pauses to point reverently to an old ragged, weather-beaten, faded, bullet-riddled flag and says, impressively:

"This is the flag that Kosciuszko carried during the American Revolutionary War. America not only honored our revered national hero during his lifetime by extending to him the privilege of American citizenship, by settling a considerable annual pension with landed estates and conferring the rank of brigadier general upon him, but to this day his memory is kept alive by Kosciuszko parks and Kosciuszko monuments in various cities of the Union."

In the National Museum one also finds many objects of personal adornment and use worn or carried by Kosciuszko during his lifetime.

Many Children Sick. How To Treat Them

The kiddies will get their feet wet, catch cold, get croup and give their mothers lots of trouble. With the first cough or sneeze, rub the little ones chest with Nerviline, rub it on plentifully, it can't harm. Then make a gargle with Nerviline and water, and have the child gargle for five minutes. The result is fine, and next morning child is better. Nerviline is a great protection in the home. Large 35c bottles at all dealers.

Informal Worship Urged by Pastor

EAST MOSLEY, England, Aug. 27—There is no need for anyone to don his best attire in order to worship in St. Paul's Church here which overlooks the Hurst Park Race course and also the River Thames. Writing in his parish magazine the Vicar tells holiday makers not to worry about their dress.

"You can worship just as well in your flannels as in a morning dress or a lounge suit," he says.
