Good News For Boys and Girls

A good friend, Mr. Ludlow Jenkins of Marshfield, wishes to call my attention to a contest which should prove both interesting and profitable to the schoolboys and girls throughout the Province. We have all read of Jack Miner and some of our boys and girls have seen and heard him. He is the birds' friend and feeds and shelters hundreds of them in his bird sanctuary. The contest, the first of the kind to be held here, would delight Mr. Miner for each contestant is expected to feed the small birds around his or her home up to the end of March, and then to make up a list giving the popular names and the approximate number of the birds so fed. Any brief remarks as to the scarcity or plentifulness of certain species, the method of feeding and other matters of interest connected with the subject, will be taken into consideration in awarding the prizes. This should not greatly exceed 150 words. The contestant will forward this list (which must be countersigned by the teacher of the school in which he or she is a scholar) to "The Editor, Feed-the-Birds Contest," care of The Charlottetown Guardian, not later than March 31, 1931, so that the prizes may be distributed if possible in the first week in April.

The Guardian, as an indication of its sympathy with the movement will give $45, to be equally divided among the three counties; thus each county will have a first prize of $2.50, a second of $2, a third of $1.50, and nine prizes of $1.

It is to be hoped that some public-spirited person or persons will make it possible to hold a summer contest by providing prizes for the most successful operation of "bird boxes."

The game birds are well taken care of, but up to the present, the smaller birds which are really more valuable in an agricultural province like ours, have been sadly neglected. A better day is evidently coming.

What I may call the moral effect of this contest, must not be overlooked. Kindness to the lower forms of life is inculcated; a healthy hobby is in birds; their beauties of form and color, their intelligence, sociability and musical powers excite both the wonder and admiration in the minds of all who give them even casual attention.

The provision of an attractive hobby will in the long run, have the effect of weaning the mind from the detrimental way of spending one's leisure in the trivialities of mere personal gossip.

In another issue, I hope to give further hints on feeding and the making of bird-boxes.

Beef: How to Choose and Cook It

Such is the title of an extra-illustrative Bulletin (No. 135) just issued by the Dominion Live Stock Branch, Ottawa. It is notable in several ways. The paper might almost be classed as "Art" paper and the illustrations of the various cuts, of roasts, steaks, etc., are finely executed. The object of the pamphlet is firstly to aid the purchaser in the selection of the best quality of the best cuts, but the lower priced cuts are not forgotten, and their classification and manner of cooking to get the best results make an instructive chapter for those (and there are many in these days) who must study economy. The body of the book is composed of receipts of which "while the importance of attractiveness and tastiness has not been lost sight of, the majority presented are of the most practical and economical type." Every household should possess a copy of this valuable work.

Preparing Poultry For Market

New Series Pamphlet No. 125. Every year we read of great increases in the poultry population of Canada. In 1929 the estimated number was 59,932,963; in 1930, 60,795,169 head. This phenomenal growth is also taking place in other countries, and it is manifest that the saturation point of the market will soon be reached. Under these circumstances it is clear that only the best quality of dressed poultry will fetch the "big prices," and in time the producer will have a difficulty in disposing of poorly finished stock. This winter in this district the properly fed birds brought double the price per lb., as compared with those which had had no preparation. The bulletin, whose sub-title is "Crate feeding, Killing and dressing,

FERRETS DISTURB DOMESTIC PEACE

LONDON, Eng. Jan. 7.—"This woman, your worship," said a constable at Thames Police Court, "was an order for separation from her husband on the grounds that he brought two ferrets into the house." "But you know," said the magistrate, "that is not, strictly speak-

MISS TRENT FUNERAL DESCRIBED IN LETTER

TORONTO, Jan. 7.—In a letter received by E. W. Trent, Toronto, from Miss Nora Bowman, a missionary in Japan, the funeral service of Miss Edith M. Trent, a missionary under the Missionary Society of the Church of England for 36 years in Japan, which was held on Dec. 12, is vividly described. Miss Trent was supported by St. Paul's Anglican Church, Bloor Street East. She was the first woman missionary to be buried in Japan.

"The funeral was held in St. James's Church, Naganoo, Japan, where Miss Trent had worked for 36 years," the letter states. "The Japanese were in charge, and some 300 people crowded the church to honor the missionary. A number of Japanese as well as English clergymen participated in the service, while three Japanese and three foreigners acted as pallbearers. Addresses paid tribute to her work. The expenses were borne by the Japanese Christians of St. James's Church. The entire congregation, occupying eight motors, formed the funeral cortege, which wended its way to the Yagoto Cemetery, where interment took place."

P. E. I. WON'T COPY THIS CHICAGO SCHOOL

Chicago has a school which is trying out a new idea. The pupils study if they choose to, and do something else if they feel like it. No two appear to be doing the same thing at the same time. While some recite, others study maps or practice spelling and some work at arithmetic. Little attention is given to discipline. The teacher is a counsellor and helps those who want help. P. E. I. school authorities do not think much of the idea.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. NATHAN COFFIN

It was with feelings of profound sorrow and regret that friends and relatives learned of the sudden passing of Dover, N. H., on 21st inst of Nathan Coffin, a former resident of Mt. Stewart, P. E. I.

Mr. Coffin who had trod life's pathway scarcely sixty two years was apparently in robust health when, on above named date, in response to the Master's call he forsook his earthly tenement and passed into the unseen to enter a broader sphere beyond.

He was a son of the late James and Caroline Coffin of Mt. Stewart and the last survivor of a family of four. A man of upright integrity whose word was a bond, kind and companionate, his memory will long be cherished by relatives and acquaintances.

The remains accompanied by a niece Mrs. Wm. Giles and husband arrived at Mt. Stewart on Christmas morning and were, after a service in United Church, conducted by the pastor Rev. M. K. Charman tenderly laid to rest in People's Cemetery, beside those of his parents.

As the writer stood and gazed into that open grave, now surrounded by sorrowing and devoted boyhood friends of deceased, he could not fall but recall to mind the thoughts and writings of that great poet "Long-fellow" who in nature saw no death but a budding forth to a great and nobler life.

There is no Death! What seems is transition. This life of mortal breath Is but a suburb of the life elysian Whose portal we call death. (Patriot Please Copy.) 1367-11.

ing legal grounds for separation. Can't you keep the ferrets in t' yard?"

"My husband," said the woman "will have them living in the kitchen, and I'm afraid to go in with them running about everywhere." She was referred to the court missionary in the hope that he might persuade the man to decide between his wife and his ferrets.

Pete—My wife doesn't understand me; does yours?
John—I don't know; I've never heard her even mention your name.
