THE NOONTIME TRIST PRAYER

Eternal, gracious Father, grant that Thy Holy Spirit may direct our thoughts. Our hearts are burdened with thanksgiving at the thought of all Thy mercies, but for beyond all thought and thankfulness is the story of Thy great redemption. Long suffering and the Cross of the Saviour of mankind were necessary to reconcile us to the life to which Thou hast ordained us. As we think of the Cross of Christ, may we turn with fresh dedication to serve Thee, to live a higher, purer life of helpfulness to others by Thy grace.

March 26 is Palm Sunday, when the Church celebrates the triumphal entry into Jerusalem. Many people think it was a very splendid triumph, if indeed a triumph at all. It is true that the children hailed him and his followers from the palm branches, but the city folk and the temple authorities gave him no welcome. He refused any earthly crown, and they could understand any other kind of crown or ruling power. He came to Jerusalem on the night of the Palm Sunday, not in any royal palace but in the humblest of ways.

Today His authority and rule are desperately needed in the world. Before the chaos and suffering of our day made its appearance, He must reign whose right it is to reign. But before He is admitted to the capitals and councils of nations, He must have a triumphal entry into for more human hearts and human homes. And at last He comes to the doors of the hearts and the homes of the world in a very special way. Shall we see to it that he receives a royal welcome and actually make a triumphal entry into our home and into our hearts. -Walter B. Crow in White Ribbon Tidings.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Dear Friends:—Having seen in this paper articles advocating Nationalism of the liquor traffic, I thought I should write a few words giving another viewpoint on the matter.

Nationalism, as its name implies, is just another name for Government Control, and after all these years of praying, working and fighting against Government Control, I fail to understand how we, as members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, could think of advocating this policy. Many good and sincere people also advocated Government Control, thinking it might improve the situation, and later changed their minds. The other provinces already have Government Control, and perhaps it would not make so much difference to them, but here on Prince Edward Island, we have not, and do not want it, so please, when you are talking about this thing, give a thought to P. E. Island, and do not try to force upon us that to which we are strongly opposed. Sincerely yours, EDITH STERNS.

1. Did the recent decrease in the hours of sale and the rationing of liquor and the ban on liquor advertising diminish the consumption of liquor?
2. Does the money power of the liquor traffic constitute a menace to good government?
3. Does the expenditure of money in advertising liquor traffic constitute a menace to the freedom of the press?
4. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
5. Is the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
6. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
7. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
8. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
9. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?
10. Does the liquor traffic, so often in court for breaking the law, a deliberate and intentional law breaker?

PRIVATE LIQUOR PROFITS?
1. If private profit from the liquor traffic were eliminated, would the temperance cause gain?
2. The private brewers, distillers, wine makers and saloon keepers if they were out of the business and not making money from liquor sale would have no interest in opposing local option campaigns.
3. Prohibition in the provinces was defeated because the liquor dealers were organized with wealth, at the command of the government, the continuation of restrictive legislation.
