PILES

Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves or ointments remove the cause. Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation and strengthen the affected parts. Dr. J. S. Leonard's was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 980 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist with a rigid money-back guarantee. Dr. Leonard's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Hughes Drug Co., Ltd., invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee to refund the purchase price if it does not end All Pile misery.

Afternoon Sleep For Junior Given Endorsation By Science

BETTER THAN PUTTING HIM TO BED EARLIER AT NIGHT, DOCTORS IN CONGRESS DECLARE—COMBINES REST WITH EXERCISE

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 5—If your baby needs more sleep, it is not so good to put him to bed earlier at night. An afternoon nap is better, said the American Association for the Advancement of Science today, closing its eighty-seventh annual meeting.

The babies who performed their sleeping tricks for science lived in Chicago—the sons and daughters of college professors. They were studied by Doctors H. N. Johnson, Marion M. Jacobsen and Carlyle R. Jacobsen of Mellon Institute of the University of Pittsburgh.

"It has already been shown," this report stated, "that the afternoon nap does not tend to retard or shorten the sleep of the night or to render it more restless. These experiments, coupled with those which were made by a different method by Doctors Boynton and Goodenough at the University of Minnesota, show that the child ordinarily rests more quietly during the afternoon nap, than in any time of corresponding length during the night.

"So that if a child is judged to be in need of more rest than it is getting the ideal way of gaining it is by means of the afternoon nap. Experimental evidence exists which indicates that it is much harder to gain more rest by lengthening the child's stay in bed at night.

This stay in bed at night is quite a circus. From sixty to ninety times a night the youngster will change his sleeping posture. This is twice as often as an adult shifts.

and that this right also exists for a descendant of the master. He supports his demand for the Court's pronouncement of rehabilitation based on a long list of legal arguments based on the bankruptcy laws of Holland from the 17th century to the present time. He cites a book recently written by Dr. H. W. van Loon, born a Dutchman and afterwards naturalized in the United States, entitled "The Life and Times of Rembrandt van Rijn," in which the last sad years of Rembrandt are described.

An amount of 6,952 florins and 90 cents was paid, out of the proceeds of the sale of the master's estate on his death, to Titus van Rijn, Rembrandt's son by Saskia. Nothing seems to have been paid to Rembrandt's ordinary creditors, but notwithstanding these creditors exist, the student contends, facilitates the case for rehabilitation. He pleads for a favorable decision so that the term of the bankruptcy may not for ever remain on the property left by Rembrandt.

EDUCATIONAL PROBLEMS (Canadian Press)

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 6—A delegation from two executives of the Teachers Alliance, addressing Premier Brownlee, referred to the married teacher phase of the unemployment situation. It was pointed out that investigations and observations showed that it was not only a situation aggravated by the present conditions but a new phase of life of the present day. "It is the practice of a peculiar type of economy by which the farmer's wife who holds a teacher's certificate, takes it out of her trunk, utilizes it to the family income for the purpose of buying an auto and hiring a maid to do the general house work at home" was the charge made.

In presenting the case of the unemployed teachers, it was pointed out that in response to advertising over 400 replies had been received by teachers at present unemployed within the province. Many of these were teachers of experience who had been "elbowed out" by more recent graduates and it was stated that the supply graduated from the Normal schools—over 1,000 teachers—was much more than the 500 needed under the present conditions. Closing of one of the province's four normal schools was one of the solutions of the problem.

It was suggested that an immediate start might be made in tackling the problem by finding out from all certified teachers how many intend to teach next year, arriving at the number required, and having fixed the quota to train at each Normal school, practice selectivity on the basis of first chance to those at the top of the entrance list. It was suggested also that grade 12 standing instead of grade II be required for entrance. The question of how long each pupil would agree to spend in the profession might also be a factor in selection.

DEPLORING THE LARGE NUMBER OF RURAL SCHOOLS THAT HAVE CLOSED AND ARE ABOUT TO CLOSE DURING THE MONTH, THE TEACHERS' REPRESENTATIVES URGED THE GOVERNMENT TO FIND SOME WAY OF CARRYING ON COMMON SCHOOL EDUCATION IN THE COUNTRY. IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT A PORTION OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT FUND MIGHT BE SO USED. THE PREMIER REPLIED THAT THE MATTER WAS HAVING THE CONSIDERATION OF THE CABINET.

SEEKS TO REINSTATE HONOR OF REMBRANDT (Canadian Press)

THE HAGUE, Holland, Jan. 5—Rembrandt, the great Dutch master of painting, went bankrupt in 1656 when he was about 50 years of age, and though he lived for 13 years afterwards and did some of the finest work in those 13 years, he never succeeded in paying off his creditors and he died a bankrupt. For the past 150 years or thereabouts posterity has held Rembrandt van Rijn, of Amsterdam, in the highest honor. It has bought this or that painting or etching at a price which would have paid off all his creditors a hundred times over, but still his memory has not been cleared of the cloud that rested on his name when he died. His probity has not been restored. He has not been discharged from bankruptcy.

Now however a descendant of a brother of Rembrandt's first wife, Saskia van Uylenburg, has applied to the Amsterdam Court for the rehabilitation of Rembrandt.

The HANDELSBLAD has published the text of the request made by the applicant, whose name is not given, but who is stated to be a student at Utrecht University. He says that he has a great admiration for his "forefather" Rembrandt, and is filled with sorrow that the last part of the master's life should have been passed in such adverse circumstances, ending in a bankruptcy from which he has never been rehabilitated. The sad lot of the master forms a sharp contrast to the fame of his works and the profits made by publishers, authors, and art dealers.

The student argues that, according to Dutch law, Rembrandt had the right to demand his rehabilitation,

UNUSUAL BATTLE IS WON BY GIRL

CHICAGO, Jan. 7—Frances McCann, 24-year-student nurse, is no longer "the respiratory" girl. The breathing machine was wheeled away today, signaling victory for the young woman in her strange battle with a fear that she could not sleep outside it.

The battle began last September when infantile paralysis gripped the muscles of her lungs, arms and legs. She was placed in the respirator, which did her breathing for her. As the days passed, she regained the use of her lung muscles but apprehension that she could not sleep outside the big grey contraption that snored rhythmically while "breathing" seized her. Encouraged by doctors and nurses, the frightened girl essayed an attempt. The next effort and the next were not so terrifying.

Now she sleeps easily outside it. Only a minor battle witholds a complete triumph from her. Paralysis has not relaxed its hold on her arms and legs entirely but she is confident of ultimate success.

And in view of the increasing popularity of very small autos, one should look both ways and down before crossing the street.

CHINA REPAIRS DAMAGE, READY FOR OTHER WARS

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4.—Chinese politicians who flouted the rebel standard have fled into Shansi Province leaving the Nanking government confronted with the task of repairing the damage caused by the 1930 civil war. The fact that the rebel chiefs may be plotting a new conflict for next spring forces the nationalists to accomplish within a few months what would ordinarily take several years to complete.

Much happened to Nanking after General Yen Hsi-shan, "model governor" of Shansi, started early this year the campaign against Chiang Kay-shek that nearly succeeded. Business went to smash, for one thing, and communism gained such a foothold that its position in some sections is well nigh impregnable.

More than a thousand miles of telegraph and telephone lines must be put back in commission. Railroads, bombed and torn up, must be restored to running order and the tax collecting system is in bad need of a shakeup.

At present the odds are all against another uprising next March but Nanking cannot afford to be caught unprepared. While Yen Hsi-shan is not likely to go to war again unless he is forced to, Wang-Ching-wei, an important factor in most of China's recent rebellions, has already announced that he hopes to go on fighting.

Dislodging the communists is considerable of an undertaking. Central and southern China were overrun by the Reds and their bands grew stronger as the Nationalist forces became weaker through the battles of last summer. The war in the north compelled Chiang Kai-shek to withdraw his garrisons from Hunan, Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Fukien provinces and reports from missionaries and travelers in those sections describe a situation that foreigners can scarcely comprehend.

Few towns escaped the ferocity of the freebooters. Pillage, torture and wholesale slaughter have been rampant and whole villages have been burned, leaving scores of thousands of Chinese homeless and hopeless. One of the most appalling consequences of the communist activities

LANDED GENTRY OF ITALY FACE LOSS OF ACRES

ROME, Jan. 4.—Landed families that have long been among Italian aristocracy may find themselves stripped of their estates unless they actually undertake the farming of their lands under the new Fascist programme for the encouragement of scientific agriculture. This programme makes the ownership of farm land contingent on "good behavior." And the Fascist idea of good behavior in a farmer means the elimination of small tracts of land, the employment of modern machinery and above all constant supervision of the actual work. The lands of small independent farmers who do not comply with these rules are condemned to be sold.

Such a sale is conducted by the government which pays the old owner the value of his unimproved land in thirty annual installments. The farm is sold to some new owner who pays for it at the same valuation, also in thirty years. On the other hand, should an owner wish to undertake the modernizing himself, the government will pay sixty per cent of the cost and lend the remainder on long term notes. It has been recently pointed out that these rules concern absentee landlords just as independent peasant farmers.

Mussolini has avoided disputes with the aristocracy since his march on Rome in 1922, but with the farm land programme being considered as of prime importance to the future welfare of Italy he is expected now to enforce his ideas.

Most of the richest lands in the Campagna district, potentially a great wheat producing area, are owned by a few families. The lands are for the most part unimproved, but due to their huge holdings the owners have been able to maintain themselves in Rome, Paris or on the Riviera in luxury.

This life of ease is threatened and unless the owners of the old aristocratic families get on their boots and go to work on their farms, they may find themselves in need of some other kind of a job.

(Special to the Guardian) WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—A minimum appropriation of $12,000,000 to deport all aliens illegally in the United States is urged by Secretary of Labor Daak. He estimated in a report to Congress today that there are 400,000 such foreigners here.
