NEWSY FARM NOTES

By Agricola

WILD MUSTARD

The farm at L'Assomption, P. Q., Experimental Station, like some farms in our own fair Island, is badly infested with wild mustard.

Wild mustard is an annual, and the grain crops afford it the best conditions to perfect its seeds which are left on the ground at harvest time.

Copper sulphate (bluestone) is usually the material used as spray though iron sulphate, and salt have both proved efficacious.

Spraying is usually done when the grain is 6 to 8 inches high but as no spraying pump was then available, the experiment was not undertaken till July 5 and 6, when the oats were two feet high and the mustard had flowered.

Had this operation been carried out at the right time all the mustard would have been killed, and no seed produced; which is the first essential in clearing out an annual weed.

The World's Poultry Congress

Under the title "Canada National Exhibit and Poultry Breeding," an attractive and well illustrated booklet, issued by the Publication Branch, Ottawa, gives a review of the great poultry show in London, England.

In the development of the wonderful strains of Canadian poultry exhibited, the Canadian National Egg-laying contests, Record of Performance, Egg grading, and Cooperative marketing, are treated in succeeding chapters, which should be read by all interested in the industry.

Hard Month on Cows

A circular from the Superintendent of the Experimental Farm at Agassiz, B. C., enjoins greater care on all owners of milk cows, during the trying month of August.

Control of flies is secured at Agassiz by the application of a light spray, which is sometimes applied twice a day. Protection from the sun is provided either by shade trees in the pasture, or by stabling the cows during the day and allowing them to pasture at night.

With these precautions the milk flow should be well maintained, and give little concern during the balance of the season.

A pleasant evening was spent on Tuesday when a number of relatives and intimate friends of Mrs. Almira McDonald and family of Port Arthur met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McPherson, Dublanc, to welcome these visitors back to their native land.

Their respective homes with expressions of gratitude to their host and hostesses for their hospitality as well as those who had furnished the music which had helped to while away the hours so happily.

Messrs. J. A. (Bungy) Miner and W. A. Tingley of the J. A. Tingley Granite works, Amherst, N. S. were recently in this vicinity when they installed a monument in West Point Presbyterian Cemetery.

Mrs. George Oulton who came from her home in B. C. some time ago and Mrs. Bertie Moreshead who more recently arrived from her home in Sydney, N. S. are now visiting at the home of their brother, Mr. Amos Gorill, Glenwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Adams and family of Knutsford were visiting relatives in Elmsdale on Sunday.

Mr. J. D. Kennedy was a visitor to Elmsdale on the 28th inst.

Somewhat of an innovation in this vicinity is the outfit for dusting the potato crop now being operated by the Ells'. This certainly represents a great saving in time and labor compared with the old method of applying poisons and fungicides by the use of liquid spray and the cost is very reasonable.

AUCTION SALE

I am instructed by Jane McGregor, Dunstaffnage, to sell on August 4th, at 2 P. M., by public auction all her household furniture.

will undoubtedly have more business in this line than they will be able to handle, and this outfit will prove a boon to potato-growers in this section. O.
