GABBY GERTIE

"Girls may love nice, old things, but they wear nice, new ones."

WELL TUTORED

All summer the lover has been on the rack. And he is not happy precisely to find that the girl he's engaged to has a wonderful gift to kiss nicely.

"Say, Pa, what do you call a person that reads heads?"
"A phrenologist, my boy."
"See, then Ma must be one of those things. She felt of my head this afternoon and said, 'Pa, you've been swimming.'"

"Your thoughts are my thoughts."
"That proves it! I've always said you never had any of your own!"

"Dinks has wired me to send you some fishing tackle."
"A nuisance, isn't it?"
"No, that isn't it, but I can't remember whether he favors scotch or rye."

Minard's Liniment has a hundred uses.

THE WIFE-SHIP WOMAN

Continued

Now they were passing through the last fringe of bushes encircling the fire, and the girl suddenly gave a shrill scream. As I gazed forward to close the trap I heard a rough voice yell in English:

"Blast my eyes if it ain't her! Ahoy lass, where's your convoy?"
"Here!" I spoke up, stepping into the firelight, my musket across my left arm.

The girl was crouching behind a log and from her face one would have thought she was facing a panther. Old Six Fingers, more apish than ever, stood leering at her, his yellow snags showing in an ugly grin. On recognizing me he lowered his arm, and with a scowl growled:

"So it's you, is it?"
"Ho, Monsieur Brampton, we meet again!" loudly greeted Narbonne, lunging clear of a grapevine. "Behold I give you the freedom of my river! Mademoiselle, command me. I throw myself at your feet."

She rose and seated herself on the log in an effort to recover her dignity, but never allowing her frightened eyes to stray long from the gleaming face of Six Fingers.

"Monsieur Narbonne was so good as to do me a service in la Nouvelle Orleans. His presence is always most welcome," she nervously assured the Frenchman.

"We go down the river to find the city of Acadia, where the diamonds grow on rose bushes, and the trees are almost as tall as Mademoiselle's grand old man."

The Girl Now Shyly Advanced, and Extended a Hand to Narbonne. Saying, "I Have the Brave Frenchman to Thank Again."

With a smirk at the girl and now we picked you up well in my convoy," grinned Six Fingers. "He broods into some of his horrible sea doggerel, and organ chattering."

"Leave-ho! And the devil is sits in the sun!"
"Furrah, bawrah for the Spanish main!"

"He-ve-ho! And the red blood from white throats will run!"
"Hurrah!"

Narbonne was nearest to him, and with a backhanded sweep he stilled the vicious lips and sent Six Fingers over backward.

Now, I had no desire for either of the two to be traveling ahead of me. Narbonne would not willingly harm me, but he was eccentric, to say the least. His companion was capable of any infamy if left unwatched. So I affected the role of pacifist, and said:

"Let bygones be bygones. Six Fingers forgot his sea-ditties are not for young ears. He will not forget again. Come, come, men; you'll need stout hearts for your journey to the Acadian."

JOAN CRAWFORD reveals the Secret of Fascination . .

Joan Crawford, adorable young M. G. M. star, in the luxurious bathroom created for her in Hollywood. At home, as in her dressing room on location, she uses Lux Toilet Soap, and says: "There's something about a smooth, soft skin that's irresistible. I never found anything like Lux Toilet Soap for keeping my skin lovely."

"THERE'S ONE kind of girl who always attracts," says Joan Crawford, the screen star whose vivacious loveliness has won conquests by the thousand. "It's the girl with exquisite skin!"

"There's something about a smooth, soft skin that's irresistible, it seems. Just watch the girl who has it. She's sure to be sought after, the center of attention wherever she goes!"

"The Hollywood directors found out long ago"—Joan Crawford shook her red-brown head in emphasis—"that a girl simply must have ravishing skin to win her public. Those great glaring close-up lights reveal even tiny flaws, you know."

"So you can imagine how carefully every girl in Hollywood guards her skin! Especially now that the talkies are here, with more close-ups than ever!

"For a long time almost everyone I know has been using Lux Toilet Soap. It does leave the skin so soft and smooth! That's why lovely Gwen Lee uses it regularly. And Carlotta King. Did you ever see more breath-taking skin than hers? Julia Faye and Dorothy Sebastian, too, and ever so many others."

"If a girl wants to have the charm of temptingly beautiful skin (and what girl doesn't), she ought to try this nice white soap. She's sure to be delighted with the results!"

Nine out of Ten Lovely Stars use it—in Hollywood—on Broadway—in Europe

Of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. All the great film studios have made it the official soap for their dressing rooms!

The lovely Broadway stage stars, too, have discovered that Lux Toilet Soap gives their skin just the gentle care that is required to keep it lovely.

And now the European stars are using this fragrant white soap! You, too, will want to try it. Order several cakes—today.

WATER SHORTAGE

Citizens are again urged to economize in the use of water as the wells are now lower than at any time in the City's history. During the next three months, or until the new supply is available, it is imperative that the utmost economy be exercised.

The Department may be compelled to close off the supply from any water taker found not complying with the above request.
