Students' King Avowed No Joke

OXFORD, England, March 20 — (AP)—With Coronation in the offing Peter Geach, undergraduate leader of the Oxford Jacobites, declares "armed rebellion" to overthrow the "alien usurper" George VI and replace the Stuarts on the throne of Great Britain has been brought nearer by Edward VIII's abdication.

And furthermore Geach insists the Oxford "Kings Party" all 10 of them resent newspaper references to the movement as a student's prank.

The British authorities simply accorded this latest repercussion of the Jacobite uprising their famous good-humored tolerance.

Geach's rooms, with their view of Trinity College's peaceful lawn, hardly seemed a place where plans involving fighting for a new "pretender" were under way. But the Stuart champion insisted that he meant business. As a Jacobite leader, he said, he had welcomed the crisis over Edward's love for Mrs. Wallis Simpson, even though he admired the former King personally.

"Edward, alone of the Hanoverians," he conceded, "had some sense of the duty of monarchy and he had to get rid of it. They would have found some other excuse to get rid of him if one hadn't actually turned up."

The throne "undoubtedly was shaken by the constitutional crisis," said Geach, who is no admirer of Prime Minister Baldwin. "It showed," he added, "how empty the British monarchy was. People are pretty sick of rule by people like Baldwin."

But Geach, who was converted to the cause of the Stuarts at just about the time that Edward became King, is convinced that it would have been necessary to replace him with former Crown Prince Ruprecht of Bavaria, the "rightful King," sooner or later. "I never acknowledged Edward as King," he said. "We could acknowledge no King but the one over the water."

Already Geach and his small band of followers have invited prosecution for high treason by proclaiming Ruprecht King in the heart of Oxford. That was Jan. 30, anniversary of the execution of Ruprecht's ancestor, Charles I. Of late Geach has kept pretty well to his rooms in Trinity College, where in time off from "plotting rebellion," he has been "honing up" on his coming examinations in Greek and Latin.

ABERRY PLAINS WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of the Aberry Plains W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Malcolm MacLean, on Friday evening March 12, 1937 with 15 members and two visitors present. We were pleased to have with us also, seven members from Vernon River W. I.

Meeting opened by singing "O Canada." The president gave a reading entitled, "How To Kill a Club." Roll Call was responded to by the name of a wild flower. The minutes of last meeting were read and signed.

The sum of $3.85 was realized from a grab bag. The programme consisted of a contest by Miss Maria Millan, a duet by Mrs. Norman MacMillan and Miss Ella MacLeod, and a reading by Mrs. Robert Coady. Meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

ODE TO SPRING

As the moments fly and the hours go by,
And the winter days creep past,
Again we think of the months in spring,
When the breezes crown the blast.

When the mist ascends and the rain descends,
And the robin's songs we hear,
Again we think of the months in spring,
When our hearts are full of cheer.

While the night birds cry and the winds do sigh,
And the babbling brooks do flow,
Again we think of the months in spring,
And dream of the long ago.

When the sun peeps out and young voices shout,
And the clouds float in the sky,
Again we think of the months in spring,
When Our Father rules on High.

As the plants do sprout and the buds burst out,
And the farmer's songs we hear,
Again we think of the months in spring,
This wonderful time of the year.

While the lights burn low and the grasses grow,
And the frogs their lays do sing,
Again we think of these wonderful months,
That are sent by our Heavenly King.

—Charles E. MacArthur.

FLOWING BEARDS FEATURE JUBILEE

VICTORIA, March 22—The entire male population of this city, particularly the younger generation, is due for a "hair-raising" experience as the Victoria Jubilee Committee prepares for a whisker-growing contest.

The committee plans to create a pioneer atmosphere by asking every man to put aside his razor and raise the most luxuriant beard he can produce before the start of the fest.

Full beards permitted to live their own life, wild and free, will find favor in the eyes of judges, but consideration will be given to dandies who lean to personal landscape gardening. These may cultivate a neat "Van Dyke" or "spade" type of hirsute adornment.

Good Seed Increases Yield Of Cereals

(Experimental Farms Note)

During two successive years, 1934 and 1935, the Ste. Anne Experimental Station, P. Q., has collected random samples of Banner oats from farmers of the surrounding districts and carried on yield tests in direct comparison with samples of first generation registered Banner. In all, a total of 111 farmers samples have been grown in comparison with 16 lots of registered seed. These tests were conducted under uniform conditions of soil, methods of handling, etc., in both years.

The analysis of the non-selected samples made by the Dominion Seed Branch showed that 45 per cent were discarded as being unfit for seeding. This same analysis revealed that the quantity of grain required for sowing an acre of land contained on the average 1327 seeds of noxious weeds. 6981 seeds of other weeds and 26141 seeds of useful foreign plants. The samples of registered oats used as checks were analyzed similarly and declared free of noxious weeds seeds and of useful foreign seeds.

The sample of non-selected oats gave an average yield of 68 bushels per acre while the control samples from selected and registered oats yielded on the average 88 bushels per acre. In other words, the yield of the non-selected group was 23 per cent less than that of the selected and registered group. These plots were under observation in order to determine the percentage of smut. The diseased heads were pulled out as soon as the first symptom of smut was noticed. This observation enabled us to determine the number of smutted heads per acre which was found to be 17856 on the average of the non-selected samples and 1077 for the selected and registered samples which had been treated with formalin.

The smaller yield of the non-selected group is attributed especially to the large content of foreign seeds in that group. The proverb "we reap what we sow" is still true, although it is very old, for when weed seeds are sown in such large quantities yield of grain is reduced correspondingly. Weeds also absorb a large quantity of water from the soil, that should normally be available to the crop. The efficient cleaning of seed grain is therefore very urgent and there are still too many farmers who do not seem to realize its importance.

Another factor partly responsible for the low yield of the samples collected from the farmers, is the prevalence of smut. Smutted heads do not produce grain and it is therefore necessary to treat the seed against this disease. Those who make a practice of treating their seed against smut do not hesitate to say that the increase in yield and improved quality of the crop more than compensate for the cost of treatment.

102 YEARS OF AGE TEETH STILL GOOD
WINNIPEG, March 22—Born in Winnipeg 102 years ago, Mrs. Lizzie Minnie, little Indian woman, enjoys a pipe clenched between her firm teeth and recalls the days when the city had only three stores and only a scattering of residences. She lives with her son in a garage-size house on the outskirts. It has only one tiny window in front, with frilled curtains and a small stoop.

This winter she took to her bed because, as she explained, her "legs wouldn't go." She told a reporter that as a girl she used to take "kinnikinnick" to the Hudson Bay post and sell it for 10 cents a pound. The Rebellion was clear in her mind. "Sure, My brothers so'd-lers."

Of her 10 children only two are alive. "God take all the rest," she said.
