In a melancholy key We're sung, Till the whole world seemed to be Unstrung.

We have learned to cry "alas!" And fret Has the luck come to pass?

Not yet! The crops are incomplete, They say, Yet we have enough to eat Each day.

Are our plans for toil or mirth Unsettled? Or is the shock Has the comet hit the earth? Not yet!

Through the grafters have been rash? And bold, There are heaps of honest cash, We're told, Are we held out on the spot For debt?

"Pay a man to dab a little white-wash on a fence!" Mr. Davis snorted indignantly.

"If I couldn't do fool work like that I'd sell out," he said. Mrs. Davis sighed, bringing the sigh up from a deep well of experience.

"You'll miss yourself all up," she protested, "and it will hurt your back—" Mr. Davis laughed scornfully.

"Just you watch me," he said, with confidence. Then he went out and bought a whitewash brush. He paid a quarter for it, and the dealer had tried to make him buy one for 75 cents.

"Seventy-five cents for a white-wash brush!" Mr. Davis was so angry he steamed.

Then he bought a bushel of lime and went home. The lime was a fine powder when it came, and when mixed with water became a watery fluid with flakes of white on top. The lime stayed in the bottom of the tub.

When he used the new brush it shed hairs like a setter dog in summer, and being wet, showed that it possessed two thin rows of hairs on either side and none in the middle.

Also, when the whitewashing dried, the fence looked in nowise different from its former ugliness. Mr. Davis considered. His back hurt. There was lime in his eyes and he was mad clear through.

He went into the house and found Mrs. Davis prepared to go down town, so he went back to his work.

As soon as she was safely out of sight he headed for a negro shack he knew and resurrected Uncle Peter, who was seventy-six years old and had been whitewashing and doing odd jobs for seventy years.

He turned the job over to Uncle Peter, he threw his brush into the alley, emptied the whitewash and procured $2 from him.

With a wheelbarrow Uncle Peter disappeared and shortly returned with a barrowload of lump lime and a brush and set to work. Mr. Davis sat on the steps with his pipe and watched him work.

When Mrs. Davis returned her husband was washed and shaven and the fence was glistening white.

"Why, you did do it!" she said. Her evident surprise nettled her husband.

"Of course I did," he said; "I do all I set out to do."

"All by yourself?" inquired Mrs. Davis, admiringly.

"Well," confessed Mr. Davis, "I got Uncle Peter to sorter help me."

"Oh!" said Mrs. Davis, and went in to take off her hat.

SABBATH WORK.

(Edinburgh Scotsman.) Two Highland farmers met on their way to church. "Man, said Donald, 'I was wonderin' what you will be askin' for you bit sheep.'"

"Man," replied Dougall, "I was thinkin' I wad be wantin' fifty shullin's for that sheep."

"I will take it at that," said Donald, "but, och, man, Dougall, I am awfu' surprised at you doin' business on the Sabbath."

"Man, sellin' a sheep like that for fifty shullin's is not business at all; it's just charity."

Wire Wounds

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, diluted at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed, and best of all, the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.
