SANDRA THE JEALOUS By Jane Phelps SANDRA'S WEDDING EVE

CHAPTER IX. The night before my wedding I sat long at my window. I had read of brides spending the early hours of the last night in their homes in that way. But in the stories it was a ways moonlight, and the scent of flowers was in the air. But it was awfully dark that night, only a faint, vague light from a few pale stars illuminated the darkness, accentuating the gloom. There was a raw cold wind. I finally fell asleep in my chair. When I awoke I was shivering with cold. I crept hastily into bed, and pulled the clothes over my head for warmth. I mumbled a prayer and went immediately to sleep. I did not once think of my wedding day, or of Everett Graham—the man I was to marry.

My wedding dress was laid out on the bed in the "spare" room as we called the guest chamber. The rest of my simple trousseau was packed in my new trunk father had given me. My initials on the end. "S.G." Sandra Graham. It seemed so queer to have it done before I had any right to the name. Everett had urged mother not to bother much about clothes, as he would get me whatever I needed in New York. But mother had provided me with a plentiful outfit of needful things, and several simple but good dresses. Mother was dreadfully proud, and she told father when they thought I wasn't around that she didn't propose to let her daughter go to any man without enough good clothing.

We weren't to have a large wedding. Just a few of my friends and relatives. Everett said he hadn't any relatives living near and they were only distant cousins at that. He would only ask a couple of the men in the branch office in our town. "You will meet my friends when we get settled," he had said when I demurred because he would invite no "invitations." "We will send announcements after we are married, and give our home address. You write your own friends informal notes. It is quite the thing to do, so don't look so disappointed," he had teased my ear while he talked. I wished he had kissed me instead.

The morning of my wedding day I awoke feeling that something was going to happen. Then all suddenly I realized that it was my wedding day, that by the time the sun had set I should be "Mrs. Graham" instead of Sandra Courtney. I ran to the window and pulled up the blind. It was a wonderful morning. The air was crisp and cold, and the sun shone gloriously. I felt happy, that all was going to be well with me. "Happy is the bride the sun shines on, even if she is lazy!" It was Rose Grandon's mocking voice which me in her arms and whirled me around the room until we were both breathless. "Get into your clothes, lazy bones. I've come to have breakfast with Sandra Courtney."

We cried a little at the idea of DOMINION OF CANADA PROVINCE OF PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

In the Probate Court 10th George V A. D. 1919. In Re Estate of Alonzo Boulter late of Milburn, Lot 8 in Prince County in the said Province, farmer, deceased, testate.

By the Honourable Aeneas A. MacDonald Surrogate Judge of Probate, etc., etc.

To the Sheriff of the County of Prince County or any Constable or literate person within said County. GREETING: Whereas upon reading the petition on file of William H. Dennis and George M. Matthews both of O'Leary in Prince County, Executors of the last will and testament of the said Alonzo Boulter praying that a citation may be issued for the purpose hereinafter set forth: You are therefore hereby required to cite all persons interested in the said Estate to be and appear before me at a Probate Court to be held in the Court House in Charlottetown, in Queen's County, in the said Province, on Thursday the tenth day of July next, coming, at the hour of eleven o'clock forenoon of the same day to show cause if any they can why the Accounts of the said Estate should not be passed and the Estate closed as prayed for in said petition and on motion of James D. Stewart, K. C., Proctor for said Petitioners: And I do hereby order that a true copy hereof be forthwith published in some newspaper published in Prince Edward Island for a least four consecutive weeks from the date hereof, and that a true copy hereof be forthwith posted in the following public places respectively, namely, in the hall of the Court House in Summerside in Prince County, on the front of the Public Hall at O'Leary school house and in front of the School House at Milburn, Lot 8, in Prince County so that all persons interested in the said Estate as aforesaid may have due notice thereof.

Given under my Hand and the Seal of the said Court this fifth day of June A. D. 1919 and in the tenth year of His Majesty's reign. (Signed) AENEAS A. MACDONALD, Judge of Probate. 6410-6-18Wed 41.

Sandra Courtney's last breakfast, but mine were not unhappy tears. We had a real jolly breakfast, although I caught mother wiping her eyes behind the coffee urn. The morning just disappeared, as Rose said. It went so fast. At twelve o'clock Everett came. He kissed me before them all, making me blush horribly, and giving Toodles and Buster such wicked joy that I blushed again at their giggles.

Everett brought me the loveliest string of pearls. Not a long string, neither were the pearls very large, but of a wonderful color and brilliancy, and perfectly matched.

"I am afraid you will spoil the child," mother said in her quiet tones. Everett only laughed in a way he had, and fastened them about my neck.

"I wonder if they were his first wife's." Toodles whispered to Rose and she told him to keep quiet, and not say such things. But I had overheard, and it sort of spoiled my pleasure in the dainty, absolutely new case in which they came. I felt sure Everett had bought them for me.

It seemed to me that I was hearing many things that day which were not intended for my ears. "She has been petted all her life father," it was mother talked, and I shamefully listened. "Mr. Graham is a cold, unromantic man, I feel anxious about him."

"Oh, he'll be demonstrative enough when they are alone. I believe he will make Sandra a good husband. But men of his age aren't apt to gush in public you know."

Someway this conversation made me uneasy. Was Everett "cold," and wouldn't he pet and love me? I should be almost frightened of a man, a husband who would not be loving towards me.

The Spramotor is a spray pump not a water pump and the pump we recommend for use in bluestone is not brass-lined but all brass. The Spramotor Co. manufacture an iron pump with brass working parts and we can sell you this pump with iron row sprayer, barrel and equipment for spraying 4 rows of potatoes for $25.00.
