RED CROSS BLOOD DONORS

Saved His Life . . . and Many Thousands More —

BUT MORE VOLUNTEERS ARE NEEDED

100 BLOOD DONORS WANTED WEEKLY

IS THE OBJECTIVE FOR THE CHARLOTTETOWN RED CROSS BLOOD DONOR CLINIC

If it was your Brother . . . Husband . . . Sweetheart would you give him a little of your blood to bring him back to life? Of course you would — because with the new Blood Donor Service this can be given with no pain, and even with little inconvenience.

There is nothing to it but the willingness to be a BLOOD BROTHER to some unknown hero on the field of battle, or civilians suffering from enemy action. Competent doctors, nurses and technicians will be on hand to give expert attention to all phases.

Don't let our fighting boys in the Navy, Army, or the Air Force down. Don't let it be said that one man lost his life on account of our neglect or indifference.

As in most everything else, let it be said again that Prince Edward Island leads.

VISITORS IMPRESSED— Visiting Charlottetown this week were William Couch former Massachusetts rationing official and Heslip E. Sutherland, Boston lawyer, both residents of Quincy, Mass. Both were impressed with the earnestness of the war effort throughout the province and Mr. Couch expressed his surprise at the willingness with which the local rationing system was supported by the citizens. Mr. Couch who is an officer of the S. H. Couch Co., manufacturers of private telephone systems, many of which are in operation on Prince Edward Island, is a native of England and is making his first visit to this Island Province.

Mrs. Rose O'Halloran of Ontario accompanied by her neice, Miss Bertha Edmonds, spent two weeks visiting the formers mother, Mrs. Bernard McDonald, St. George.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Phillips, Halifax, are visiting Charlottetown. Mr. Phillips formerly belonged here and enlisted from Charlottetown with the first contingent in the last war.

RURAL CHARM

There is a river through the valley
It the stately woods divide,
Where the speckled trout sun themselves in peace;
Where the song birds rule the noontide,
With their everlasting song,
And the night owl on the twilight have a lease.

There the cattle drink at eventide,
When the frogs begin to croak,
As the brawny farm boy drives them on their way;
Where the sun slides o'er the hill,
And the day it turns to night,
And the dew begins to fall upon the hay.

Thus the night it settles down,
And the song birds cease to sing
And the cow herd winds its way toward the barn;
And the shadows find their way,
Across the threshold of the day,
And the long day's work is over on the farm.

There is a river through the valley
It the stately woods divide
Where the farm boy strolls, his sweetheart by the hand,
And the moon shines through the treetops,
On the shining stream below,
There the farmer is the ruler of the land.

There the farm boy is a prince,
Every lassie is a princess,
And the former is a king upon a throne;
With no one to tell him when,
And no one to tell him how
His farm it is his kingdom, it's his own.
