W. C. T. U. Notes

THE DAY AND THE WORK

To each man is given a day and his work for the day; And once, and no more, he is given to travel this way. And woe if he flies from the task, whatever the odds; For the task is appointed to him on the scroll of the gods.

There is waiting a work where only his hands can avail; And so, if he falters, a chord in the music will fail. He may laugh to the sky, he may lie for an hour in the sun; But he dare not go hence till the labor appointed is done.

To each man is given a marble to carve for the wall; A stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all; And only his soul has the magic to give it a grace; And only his hands have the cunning to put it in place.

We are given one hour to parley and struggle with Fate, Our wild hearts filled with the dream, our Brains with the high debate.

It is given to look on life once, and once only to die; One testing, and then at a sign we go out of this sky.

Yes, the task that is given to each man, no other can do; So the errand is waiting; it has waited through ages for you. -Edward Markham.

COCKTAILS

What They Are and What They Lead To

(By Lady (Victor) Horsley) Cocktail taking is a novel form of self-indulgence and social entertainment. It particularly appeals to young people; hence parties for the express purpose of cocktail drinking by young men and women are common, especially, it is said, among those persons who are or would like to be in the "Smart Set;" and in their establishments a cocktail bar de luxe is almost a necessary part of their equipment. But there are other hostesses who give these parties for their sons and daughters and their friends simply for their pleasure, without any desire for a spurious social distinction and in complete ignorance of what science has to teach about them and their probable effects on the health and happiness of their children.

Would these hostesses, if they realized the danger of what they are doing, continue to do it? I am certain they would not.
