POLICE COURT.—As the aftermath of a fracas on Water Street, Summerside, on Sunday night, in which rum played its part and in which the police were somewhat roughly handled, a young man from Charlottetown named Cullen came before Stipendiary Wyatt in the police court at Summerside on Monday and was fined $10 and costs.

GEESE SHIPMENTS.—Mr. M. Lux of Woburn, Mass., who comes to Summerside every fall to ship live geese to Boston, where they are fattened for the neighboring U. S. markets, left his home just two weeks ago and made a clean up of business Tuesday. He has shipped 4,200 live geese, the most he has ever shipped from this province in so short a time. The price paid to our farmers was $1.60 to $1.75 per goose.

WELCOME VISITORS.—Mr. Ben Dennis, of Perth Amboy, who left his home some twenty-seven years ago, is now making the first visit back. He finds a great many changes. The people, the homes and the village are all strange. His father Mr. Thomas Dennis, one of the few pioneers left, was delighted to see him. He comes accompanied by his brother, Thomas, of Bridgewater, N. S. Needless to say they are welcomed by the many relatives and friends.

TOWN COUNCIL.—A special meeting of the Summerside Town Council was held on Monday night to discuss the supply of electricity to St. Eleanor's and the sale of the old gas plant to the town of Alberton. Nothing was done in the latter matter, which is still pending. On motion of Councilor McNally, seconded by Councilor Phillips, it was resolved to enter into an agreement to supply residents of St. Eleanor's with light and power, at the rate of 20 cents per kilowatt, less the usual discounts and allowances; the line and equipment to be under the supervision of a man appointed by the Town of Summerside who will have free access to all premises to which lines are run at all times; the line to be constructed by the residents of St. Eleanor's, to the satisfaction and under the supervision of the Town of Summerside, the initial and all future costs for repairs to be borne by the residents of St. Eleanor's.

agreeing, but suggesting that an oral argument, to be taken down would be more valuable. On September 29, he wired me asking what would be a fitting date and place. On the same day, I wired him suggesting Ottawa on any day of the ensuing week to be named by him.

"On September 30, before receipt of an answer from the Chief Justice I was notified by the Devises as counsel for the Commission. On the same day, I wired the Chief Justice as follows: "I have now received notice from the Department of Justice that my services as counsel for the Commission are assigned but action necessarily premissed upon theory that proceedings of Commission are of partisan character. I, like you, had considered them to be non-political and I have acted through out, both before the Commission and outside of it, in conformity with that theory. I hope that the courtesy of consulting you before disposing of your counsel has not been overlooked. Under the circumstances, no answer necessary to my last telegram. Best wishes and deepest respect and regards."

together on one common meeting-ground of brotherhood, good-will and mutual respect.

And it was not alone from boyhood that I have been imbued with that new and healthier Kingdom and spirit-hood. We caught a sense of the power, the quiet spiritual strength of the gentleman who was present at the meeting from North Sydney, who had put the Lord to the test, as he expressed it, and who, as the price of his citizenship, had been and is maintaining two missionaries in Africa at a cost of between three and four thousand dollars a year.

We caught it from our speaker of this evening, and from others, who were there to give testimony to that newer and larger relationship into which they had entered.

Much Sarcasm

The witness told again how he and the others in the searching party had found the woman's tracks leading to the abandoned automobile and to the house of a man named Chancel. From there he followed them to where they ended near the print of automobile tires. The party looked for footprints by moonlight.

Gilbert then switched back to Carmel, where the state alleges Mrs. McPherson spent ten days during her absence from the Association in the service of that fact in Japan. Mr. Trueman said that all the help that was asked of America was to supply the personality, the secretaries to direct and carry on the work. In every other respect the countries were usually self-sustaining, a fact that in itself proved the great interest that was taken by foreign peoples in the work of the Association.

Mr. Trueman quoted the expressions of several Americans who had seen what the Y. M. C. A. was doing in Japan. One said that where his faith in the foreign work of the Association was previously a blind and potent thing he had seen at first hand the beneficial effect on the Japanese, it had increased to one thousand percent. Another American said that there was no one in the country who could better introduce visitors to the leading men of Japan than the Y. M. C. A. secretaries. A third said the Association was the only one that could unite different races and religions for the common good of youth.

The Y. M. C. A. said Mr. Trueman, trusted and encouraged native leadership, and most of its institutions in Japan were maintained by local support. Many of the supporters were not Christians at all, but Buddhists, and the government of Japan gave a grant of $100,000. One of the royal princes of Japan was the chairman of the Patron's Association, a body of business men that backed up the Association.

The speaker emphasized the necessity of some means by which the Jap could be taught proper care and exercise of his body. One of every three deaths in Japan, he said, was caused by tuberculosis. The Japanese idea of games he illustrated by telling a story of some Japs who were watching Europeans play a strenuous game of tennis. Why, they asked, didn't they hire somebody to chase the ball for them?

In Japan, according to Mr. Trueman, the English language is second only to the Japanese tongue itself, and the government brought over an expert in languages to study the technique of teaching in Japanese schools, and to re-organize the method and make it more efficient.

Recurring again to "Y" work, the speaker said that never in all his eighteen years of experience had he seen the slightest discord arise in foreign Association work under native leaders. But although the "Y" was doing successful work in Asia, it had still a great deal of new ground to break in his own district with a population of 13,000,000, he said, the only secretary, Towns of one hundred thousand to three hundred thousand still had no Y. M. C. A. facilities of any kind.

The quota for Canada this year, he said, was $60,000 and for Charlottetown $300. But he felt sure that the contributions from this city would not stop at that. That it would be increased by a third or a half.

Railway Wharf Shed
Made Frost Proof

In preparation for the fall movement of potatoes, seed and table stock, many improvements have been made in the storage shed at the railway wharf. It has been re-sheathed from roof to floor to make it frost proof, and the railway tracks that once divided the shed into two sections have been taken out. It is now possible for trucks and teams to pass one another inside the warehouse making possible the shifting of many loads without any long waits.

The new wooden sheathing that has been laid over all the interior of the shed is interlaid with thick paper and sawdust layers, making the heaviest frosts harmless to potatoes stored in the building. Two furnaces for use in the winter will further safeguard them. The changes in the shed have been made under the direction of Mr. Norman Sheppard.

It is expected that the first vessel to take potatoes away from the Province will arrive on October 18th. A good deal of the crop has already been dug, and the seed potato inspectors are now on the final rounds.

This year's crop promises to be fully as large as that of last year, with much less rot. The market price is good, and from present indications potato growers should not have much trouble in making very profitable sales.

Conservatives Polled
112,000 More Votes Than Liberals

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—That well over three million persons voted in the general elections on September 14 last, is shown by compilations of unofficial returns by the Canadian Press. Complete returns are still lacking from some large ridings. These are Nelson, Man., which returned a Progressive; Athabasca, Bow River and Peace River, three Alberta seats which all returned U.F.A. candidates.

Practical methods of arousing interest in the Foreign Work of the Y. M. C. A. were not overlooked, with much interesting discussion and information not only of the work but of the methods by which this work should become better known and more adequately supported and augmented.

Some of these will be brought before you by the Foreign Work Committee of this Association as other opportunities offer.

Meantime we have with us one of the Association's devoted workers in Japan, the account of whose rich experience and service to the cause of the Association and of humanity, I shall only delay by further continuance.

Mr. Trueman, in his address, said that only forty years ago the Y. M. C. A. was only a local affair, doing missionary work of any kind in foreign lands. Due to the energy and zeal of one man, who made a special tour of the world in order to learn conditions, two missionaries were sent by the Y. M. C. A. to India and Japan just thirty-seven years ago. Today there were over two hundred "Y" secretaries in thirty-one countries of the world. There was practically no country in which "Y" service of some sort was not to be found.

Speaking of Y. M. C. A. foreign work in general, and particularly of the service of that fact in Japan, Mr. Trueman said that all the help that was asked of America was to supply the personality, the secretaries to direct and carry on the work. In every other respect the countries were usually self-sustaining, a fact that in itself proved the great interest that was taken by foreign peoples in the work of the Association.

Monthly Meeting
Of the Catholic
Women's League

Tuesday evening, Oct. 5th the regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Rosary Hall. It was the first meeting after the summer holidays and there was a very good attendance. Mrs. MacIntyre, the president presided and a splendid program under the sponsorship of Mrs. Frank Murray was enjoyed by all. A delightful violin solo by Mr. Alfred McKearney and vocal solos by Miss Nora Murray, to which they had to respond with encores, preceded the feature of the meeting, which was an address by Rev. Patrick McMahon, D. D. of the Cathedral staff. Much business was attended to and a program outlined for the coming winter. Mrs. F. J. Casey proposed the vote of thanks to the Rev. Speaker and Mrs. (Dr.) J. E. Blanchard seconded it with Mrs. M. M. Murphy supporting the movement. These ladies voiced the sentiments of all present when they declared it one of the very best of the many splendid addresses given monthly to the sub-division in the past. The president in presenting to Rev. Dr. McMahon the vote of thanks of the society asked the privilege of taking the manuscript for publication, feeling it would be enjoyed by many not privileged to have heard it. The address will be published in a subsequent issue of the Guardian.
