HUNGARY CHARGED WITH HARBOURING TERRORISTS

Prime Minister Returns With Renewed Confidence In Ottawa Agreements

Canada Considered To Have Made Marked Progress Abroad — No Immediate Danger Of War Says Premier Bennett.

(By C. R. Blackburn, Canadian Press Staff Writer)
QUEBEC, Oct. 19.—The all absorbing questions in Canada of general elections, by-elections and political organization were pleasantly turned aside when Premier Bennett returned to Ottawa today from his trip to Geneva, Paris and London. Out of touch with conditions at home, it was impossible for him to discuss these questions, Mr. Bennett said, but he was glad to discuss European danger of war arising from the Marseille assassinations.

World peace on a firm and sound foundation was the essential preliminary to assured economic recovery, the Prime Minister declared. He was more convinced of this than when he left Canada six weeks ago. Some reassurance that this might be attained was to be gained, he said, from the evident determination among statesmen of the world that differences be composed without resort to arms.

Confidence Renewed
His confidence in the Ottawa trade agreements had been renewed by contact with British statesmen and industrialists and he was more firmly convinced than ever that Canada could not have weathered the depression without them. The new treaty with France had been described by those in a position to express opinions as the best arrangement ever effected between the two countries.

With every appearance of good health and spirits the Prime Minister was a prominent figure on the after deck of the Duchess of Richmond as the liner approached the dock at Wolfe's Cove. A large gathering of friends and supporters headed by Hon. Maurice Dupre, Solicitor General, and Col. J. S. O'Meara, of the Harbor Commission, and Mayor J. E. Gregoire, thronged up the gang-plank immediately it was lowered, and the Prime Minister held an impromptu reception on board.

Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under-Secretary of State for external affairs, who was one of the Canadian delegates to the League of Nations meeting, and John Saucier, Mr. Bennett's private secretary, also returned. The party left for Montreal and the Prime Minister will tomorrow afternoon lay the cornerstone of the new Women's College Hospital.

The Prime Minister said he was not in a position to discuss political or government policies at home. Nor was he prepared to comment on the personnel of the Bank of Canada although it had been confidently expected that on his return he would be in a position to say who would be appointed deputy governor. It had been the announced intention of the government to secure a man with central banking experience, presumably from England, to assist in the recovery of the Prussian army as a youth of 20 and took part in the anti-Franco-Prussian war of 1870. He was rapidly promoted for his outstanding military ability, and in 1898 was permitted to add the "von" to his name as a sign of noble rank.

In 1914 he was 68, and almost ready for retirement as war broke out. Blaced in command of the first German army of the west, Von Kluck quickly took Brussels on Aug. 20 and then proceeded "on to Paris."

Headlines were built around Von Kluck's name in those days. In a series of quick and decisive battles, he sent the British and French into retreat from Jemappes, Franceville, Mons and San Quentin. But as his forces began to envelop the French capital resistance became more obstinate and Von Kluck was obliged to turn aside and assist the second German army of General Von Puelow.

After the battle of the Marne had put an end to the phase of the campaign, Von Kluck's army retired to the Aisne. There he received serious wounds from shrapnel fire when he recklessly exposed himself during inspection of advance positions.

SMUTS ATTACKS ECONOMIC NATIONALISM

Noted Soldier and Statesman Lauds British Methods in Recovery.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire)
YARMOUTH, N. S., Oct. 19.—Two men were believed drowned tonight as police dragged Yarmouth Harbor in search of the bodies of Murdoch Robertson and William Roache, while another, Albert Kelcie, who was aboard their small punt which upset, lay in a critical condition in hospital.

General Smuts, who fought as heartily against the British in the Boer War as he fought with them in the Great War, pointed to what he called the happy outcome of granting self-government to South Africa as an example of what should be followed with India.

Self-Government for India, he declared, "must be treated as a great national issue, not made a question of party politics." The Indian constitutional problem is peculiarly a case for exhibition of that "genius for compromise" which has always distinguished the British people, he said.

Inevitable
"Inevitably India must have self-government," said General Smuts. "The demand for it is the fruit of the seeds planted a century ago by Lord Macaulay."

He spoke of the magnificent results of the grant of self-government to South Africa in 1907 and said it was largely due to that act of "faith and magnanimity" that South Africa is today a willing and cooperating part of the British Commonwealth.

"It is my strong wish that that precedent should be followed in India," he added.

He roundly condemned economic nationalism as "economic barbed wire."

"A new idea is growing up in the world today," he said, "a new idea which is growing up around every country, and people try to keep themselves going and enrich themselves at the expense of others."

"We are trying in the world a new system of building up walls between us and our neighbors. We are trying to impart the methods of the Great War on the western Front into commercial relationships of peaceful life."

"Barbed wire entanglements, fences and no man's land seem to be growing up around every country, and people think they can get on the road to recovery that way."

He said that the new idea was growing up in the world today, and that it was the fruit of the seeds planted a century ago by Lord Macaulay.

Little Entente Will Protest To League Nation

Hungarians Deny Charge — Unconfirmed Reports State Troops Massing Near Hungarian Border.

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
BELGRADE, Oct. 19.—The Little Entente, stoutly determined to "stand four square against all who attack any one of its members," tonight decided to protest to Hungary and the League of Nations Hungary's alleged harboring of international terrorists.

Their action came while unconfirmed rumors ran about Belgrade that Yugoslav troops were concentrating near the Hungarian border.

A short time before Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian Foreign Minister, had forecast grave conflicts in Europe unless European powers take steps to scotch terrorism.

Meeting here to consider the critical political situation growing out of the assassination at Marseille of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and to seek ways of extending their alliance throughout the Balkans, the South European statesmen decided to protest alleged existence of terrorist camps in Hungary.

They will charge, it is understood that Hungary despite its claims to the contrary, has taken no steps to disband the groups of political terrorists they assert have found shelter within her boundaries.

Denial Issued
(French authorities have charged that the band of Croat terrorists they say plotted the Marseille murder had its headquarters at the Janka Puzsta farm just over the Yugoslav border in Hungary, but this Hungarian statesmen have flatly denied.)

The decision of the Little Entente members—Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia—to register joint protest served to emphasize their recent agreement to act together in matters of foreign policy.

While Yugoslavia's child King Peter gave his toys to his younger brothers to take over his duties of state, giving hope to Croats and Slovenes that the new Liberal regime might ultimately grant them autonomy, the Entente's foreign minister considered adding Bulgaria to their political partnership.

A solid bloc of southern European powers would thus be formed to oppose any European aggression, but it was understood the Little Entente also would seek to tie Turkey and Greece in with their alliance.

This could be done, it is believed, through Bulgaria's adherence to the Balkan peace pact.

Signatories to that treaty also met here today, and it was believed efforts were made to have the four—Yugoslavia, Rumania, Turkey and Greece—agree to act jointly in all cases where they were menaced.

A spokesman for the Little Entente told the Associated Press tonight: "Those who thought that by murdering Alexander they would weaken Yugoslavia and perhaps bring about its disruption will discover that the reaction to the King's assassination has been to strengthen the Little Entente and the Balkan pact states, and bring France and Great Britain to aid of little states in distress."

"While the official communique (issued after the meeting of the Entente) does not state definitely that these measures (decision to protest) were taken, I can tell you that we discussed the terrible danger that terrorism is to internal peace and decided to appeal to all nations to suppress it."

Two Drowned In Yarmouth Harbour

FRANCE AWAITS EXTRADITION OF TERRORISTS

Political Observers Keenly Await Developments in the Balkan Countries.

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
TURIN, Italy, Oct. 19.—(C. P.—Havas)—With Ante Pavelich and Sven Kvistrom, believed the leaders in the Marseille assassination plot, in jail here tonight awaiting extradition to France, the international political echoes of the murder of King Alexander and Louis Saragou were believed coming to a head.

Official denial was made at Belgrade that the Yugoslav government had made diplomatic representations in Budapest relative to Hungary's responsibility in harboring the Croat terrorist group headed by Pavelich.

Denial was likewise made that Yugoslav troops were converging on the Hungarian frontier.

Watch Developments
At the same time, however, political observers watched with keen interest a number of developments which under the circumstances may be regarded as significant.

Kolman de Kanya, Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, arrived in Rome to confer with Premier Benito Mussolini.

Premier Julius Goemboes set out for Warsaw to discuss a rapprochement with the Polish government and attempt to establish reciprocal trade agreements, declaring he anticipated no climax in Yugoslav-Hungarian relations and that he left the capital at this time without misgivings.

Fall Session Of Parliament?
(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
QUEBEC, Oct. 19.—The question of whether or not parliament will be called before Christmas has apparently not yet been decided. A newspaper reporter interviewing Prime Minister R. B. Bennett on his arrival here today, from Europe, referred to the positive reports of a Fall session current when Mr. Bennett departed, but which had died out in the meantime.

"Why do you suppose the report died out?" the Prime Minister asked.

"Possibly because you were absent," the reporter replied.

"Then perhaps they will come to life again now that I am back," said the Prime Minister, and the subject was dropped.

Prizes For Air Race

LONDON, October 19.—Cash prizes worth about $98,500 await the winners of the Empire land-to-Australia air race at Melbourne. They were posted by Sir Macpherson Robertson of Melbourne.

For the speed race the first prize is $50,000 and a gold cup. The second award is $7,500 and the third, $2,500.

The winner of the handicap race will receive $10,000 while the flyer coming in second will get $5,000.

GENERAL VON KLUCK PASSES

Noted German Great War Commander's Career Ended.

(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
BERLIN, Oct. 19.—General von Kluck, commander of the German army that swept through Belgium and threatened Paris in the early months of the Great War, died at his home here today.

He was 88 years old, and had been retired from active army service since 1916 when he gave up his command because of a shrapnel wound.

His son, Karl Exon died fighting in 1915 and his only grandchild, Alexandra, an actress, was fatally injured in an automobile accident in France last March.

Notable Career
The future field marshal entered the Prussian army as a youth of 20 and took part in the anti-Franco-Prussian war of 1870. He was rapidly promoted for his outstanding military ability, and in 1908 was permitted to add the "von" to his name as a sign of noble rank.

In 1914 he was 68, and almost ready for retirement as war broke out. Blaced in command of the first German army of the west, Von Kluck quickly took Brussels on Aug. 20 and then proceeded "on to Paris."

RECOVERY IS STEADY

WINNIPEG, Oct. 19.—Business recovery throughout Canada continues at a steady pace, it is shown in the weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association issued here today.

With manufacturing active, wholesale trade continues good, the report states, with retail trade generally quiet. Ontario shows particularly good improvement, with plants working at full speed and indications of excellent winter business.

The week's business failures under the bankruptcy act totalled 23, unchanged from the same week of last year.

Newspaper's Decision Is Reserved

EDMONTON, Oct. 19.—Decision was reserved by the Alberta Court of Appeal today on the appeal of Charles E. Campbell and J. E. Cowper, publisher and reporter, respectively, of the Edmonton Bulletin, to quash the conviction for contempt of court registered against them by Mr. Justice W. C. Ives during the civil suit against Premier J. E. Brownlie, alleging sedition. The contempt charge was based on articles in the bulletin on the trial proceedings.

QUESTION SETTLED
GARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Oct. 19.—The question arose in a classroom of the Deering High School how many feathers does an average chicken have?

Students guessed from 10,000 to 100,000.

Vernon Davis settled it. He killed a chicken and counted the feathers. His count was 8,937.
