Islanders Cured of Tonsilitis

There is a better way of being cured of tonsilitis than by having the tonsils removed. Many trustworthy people, including Mr. Harold McPhail of Southport, and Mr. J. A. Callaghan of 184 Grafton Street, Charlottetown, can positively state that the Farador cured them of tonsilitis. When the Farador is rightly used it will reduce all swelling and inflammation. Interesting literature furnished by W. E. Enman, Farador Representative, 138 Hillsborough St., Charlottetown Phone 787—J.

SHEEP KILLED BY LIGHTNING—Three sheep belonging to Mr. Benjamin Mills were killed by lightning in his pasture at St. Eleanors on Saturday. At Borden a stack of hay on Mr. Gillespie's premises was struck and consumed.

REMOVING TREE CASUALTIES—The destruction to trees caused by Monday night's storm is particularly noticeable on Rochford Street between Euston and Kent, where the broken trunks and branches have been piled all along the street. Elsewhere throughout the city workmen are busy cutting the fallen trees into moveable lengths.

RECEIVED PAINFUL INJURY—Whilst driving home from attending the Charlottetown Exhibition, Mr. James Gillis, of Kensington, met with a painful accident, when his horse, a spirited animal, became frightened by a passingauto. Mr. Gillis was thrown from the carriage and sustained a broken leg. After receiving first aid at a farm house, he was driven to Hunter River and brought by train and ambulance to Prince County Hospital, where the limb was set. Mr. Gillis is now making a good recovery.

WHEN BARN COLLAPSED — The destruction to Mr.Bart Hardy's 120 foot barn at Union Road during Monday's storm reported in yesterday's Guardian resulted in fatal injury to a horse and serious injury to three splendid milch cows who were buried under falling lumber when the building collapsed. Four other cows were got out in safety. Mr. Hardy lost seven of his finest apple trees in the storm.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear sister Mrs. John E. Dalton, who departed this life, Oct. 4th, 1922.

Dearest Mary, how we miss thee,
Since we laid you in your grave
In St. Ann's Churchyard,
Just one year ago today.
When the evening shades are falling,
And we're sitting all alone
To our Hearts there comes a longing,
If you only could come home.
Gone but not forgotten.

Inserted by her husband and sister:—

IN MEMORIAM

To my father, William Balelm who departed this life Sept. 21st, 1923, aged 87 years.

Who's to pray for us now?
Father is taken away.
Who'll fill his place at the throne of grace?
Is the cry of our hearts today.

How weak to pray for burselves,
Surely he showed us the way,
Happy at work in the morning,
Happier at close of day.

I see him then there kneeling—
Kneeling beside his bed;
Earnestly invoking God's blessing
Might be poured on our heads.

So strong was his faith in his Maker
And so firm a believer in prayer,
That he went about as a beacon light,
Shedding brightness everywhere.

And when at times of illness,
How his soothing voice chased our fears,
Tenderly saying—God was his hope,
His joy, his comfort all those years.

Who's to pray for us now?
Where is our father gone?
We had hoped that he could tell us,
Before he fell asleep that morn.

And there as we stood at the open grave,
On that beautiful Sabbath day,
Came a message straight from Heaven,
Listen what we heard him say.

He has gone to be with Jesus,
Sweetest message—child e'er told,
Lord give us strength to pray so like him that we may
Enter the Father's fold.

Storm Damage In Prince County

Further reports of the havoc wrought by Monday's storm in the western part of the Province are as follows:— At Summerside there was an exceptionally high tide, but the gale being off the land little damage was done in the harbor. On Notre Dame Street a tree over six feet in circumference fell across the street, its top doing some damage to the garden opposite and its trunk entirely blocking the road. In the upheaval of its roots a goodly section of the concrete sidewalk was ripped up. One of the trees in Dominion Square was blown down near the Soldiers' Monument. Trees in the residential district lost various limbs and scores of them were either uprooted or broken in two. Many fences were torn down. The sheds at the Summerside Trotting Park were partly demolished. At Tignish the plate glass windows of Mr. G. A. Shelfoon's store and Senator Murphy's Drug Store were blown in. At Clinton a new barn built this summer, about 80 by 35 feet, by Mr. Patrick McGuirk, was flattened to the ground. Both arches of Indian River bridge were carried away and the Stanley Bridge demolished. A barn at Howlan Road belonging to Mr. Thomas Gallant was blown down. The railway wharf at Alberton was considerably damaged and many boats were dragged from their anchorage.

QUEBEC ELECTIONS MAY COME OCT. 22ND.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—La Patrie, French language paper of this city, stated that it learns officially that the five provincial by-elections will be held in this province on Monday, October 22 next. The seats vacated are in Quebec county, Yamaska, Richmond, Brome and Abitibi.

YANKEE PITCHING STARS MAY TURN BIG SERIES TIDE

They will be Aided by a Hurling Staff Second to None in the Big Leagues.

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct 2.—In their third attempt to win the world's baseball championship the New York Yankees will be aided by a staff of pitchers rated second to none in either of the major leagues.

Herbert J. Pennock, lefthander; Samuel Pond Jones, righthander, and J Robert Shawkey righthander have been the Yankees' three best on the hurling mound. Waite Hoyt has had a good season, finishing well up on the winning side and Leslie Joseph Bush, while erratic at times, won a majority of his games. Carl Mays, the underhand flinger, was not up to his best form and had little to do.

It is unlikely that Mays will be started in the series, and it is probable that Bush, the fork-ball man may be used only in emergency. Pennock, Jones, Shawkey and Hoyt appear as likely mainstays and may work in that order.

An interesting sidelight in connection with the Yankee hurling corps is that every one of them first emerged to the limelight of stardom with the Boston Red Sox or the Philadelphia Athletics.

Pennock, who led the American League pitchers through the 1923 season, became a member of Connie Mack's Athletics in 1912 and remained with the team until 1915 when he went to the Red Sox. He was acquired by the Yankees from the Boston club in a trade last Suring in exchange for several youngsters.

Jones, called "Sad Sam," played with Cleveland in 1914 and 1915 but 1916 found him with the Red Sox, where he remained until 1921. The Yankee tradesmen were busy again that year and "Sad Sam" became a New Yorker. He wasn't at his best in 1922, but 1923 brought him back to the top and he has done everything in the pitching line, including a no-hit game against the Athletics and some others almost as good.

Shawkey was a member of the Athletics from 1913 to 1915. He came to the Yankees in 1915 when Colonels Ruppert and Huston began building up their star combination and has been a regular ever since. His pitching arm worked exceptionally well this year.

Hoyt was taken fresh from high school in Brooklyn in 1918 and made a New York Giant. He warmed benches for McGraw and became a Red Sox in 1919. In 1921 he donned a Yankee uniform and was one of the stars of the season. He won two games and lost a close one in the 1921 world's series. He was more or less of an in-and-outer last year but regained some of his great form in 1923.

Bush, a Mackman from 1921 to 1917 and a Red Stocking from 1918 to 1921, became a Yankee in 1922 in another New York-Boston trade. He was a star of stars in the 1922 season for the Yankees but a surprising failure in the world's series with the Giants.

Mays, with the Red Sox from 1915 to 1919, came to New York for the 1920 season.

GIANT INFIELD IS STRONGER ON OFFENSIVE.
By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Comparing the infields of the Yankees and the Giants it will be found that the National League champions have an edge in the power of their attack, while the two combinations are about evenly matched on the defense.

Wally Pipp, first baseman of the Yankees, is a real star, whose value to the club is not superficially apparent. Pipp is regarded by many first class pitchers as the most dangerous batter on the team. He is a hard worker, a good reliable fielder and a player of ideal temperament.

Kelly, the rival first sacker of the Giants, has only one marked superiority over Pipp, and that consists in his possession of one of the finest arms in baseball. On double plays throwing to third and relaying from the outfield, his whip is a most valuable asset to the team. Kelly ought to be a great hitter, but he fell off greatly this year, and was shoved way down the line-up. In fielding and in covering foul territory he is perhaps as good, but no better than Pipp.

The hitting power of Pipp gives the Yankees a slight edge on the first base.

Two of the best second basemen in the major leagues are to be found on the opposing clubs.

Because of his ability as a hitter and a base runner, Frankie Frisch will be favored over Erin Ward.

Ward was one of the most improved ball players of the past season. He always had the potential ability to star, but it took him some time to figure out second base after he had been started at third.

In fielding, Frisch and Ward are spectacular and brilliant. Frisch is better in getting back into short rightfield, but he doesn't handle the ball as cleanly as Ward and his value on double plays is thereby reduced. Frisch hits better, gets on base oftener than Ward and he is one of the most daring base runners in baseball. In tight games his ability on the bases will make him of more value to the club than Ward.

The advantage, slight as it may be, rests with the Giants at second base.

Dave Bancroft, captain and shortstop of the present world's champions, is the spark plug of the whole team. He is erratic at times and he falls frequently into errors at the most critical times, but he has assets that overcome that weakness.

Bancroft is the brainiest shortstop in the game and he carries the load of directing the team on the field. He is a fighting, aggressive player and a steadying influence upon the whole team, especially upon the pitchers.

Everett Scott was once a great shortstop, but he has slowed up terribly. He cannot cover territory with Bancroft and he cannot throw like the Giant captain. On the middle of a double play, Bancroft has a marked advantage over him.

Scott is more reliable and more steady than Bancroft, but drives will get past him that will never get past the Giant start. Bancroft is a more reliable batter and a faster man on the bases.

Like Scott, Heinie Groh, the Giant third baseman, is another player who has passed the day of his greatest. Groh was once the star of all third baseman, but his legs have gone bad on him and third base is no place for a player with bad legs.

Joe Dugan is the best third baseman in baseball, one of the best of them all. He hasn't the batting average of Groh, but the hitting of the Giant third baseman is not so sensational as to make that a marked difference.

The decline of Scott has forced Dugan to cover more territory than any other third baseman in the major leagues. He can get over so well to his right that he finds is possible to protect almost half of Scott's territory.

No player in baseball can throw with Dugan. There are stronger and faster arms but no player can get a throw away from any position like Dugan can. He is fast coming in for a bunt. Groh is necessarily slow. Dugan handles the ball cleanly, where Groh usually fights it. He is especially good at knocking down drives along the leftfield foul line, where Groh is too slow to get over for them.

Dugan is a smart player, he has fine temperament and spirit. He is perfectly satisfied with his job and he has abandoned the ways of a Polly Anna that had him when he was with the Athletics.

Madison Baseball Meeting Tonight

The baseball trophy emblematic of the championship of Prince Edward Island for 1923, will be presented to the Madisons at a special meeting at their rooms tonight at 10 o'clock sharp.

It is the request of the management that all players having in their possession equipment of any kind belonging to the club, to please return same tonight, as the expense of financing a local ball club from year to year is so great that new uniforms, gloves, bats, etc., entails toomuch unnecessary expenditure and is a drain on any organization that has to depend on gate receipts to "carry on," so bring in the aforesaid and be that much further ahead next season.

Huge Yankee Park Stage Setting for the Coming Series

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—Part of the world's series this year will be played in baseball's greatest playground, Yankee Stadium, the first wonder of the baseball world, built on the Bronx side of the Harlem River by the New York American League club at an estimated cost of more than $2,500,000.

About ten acres of ground, purchased from the estate of William Waldorf Astor of Colonels T. L. Huston and Jacob Ruupert, then joint owners of the Yankees, were utilized in providing the great stadium. It was said that the ground cost $600,000. Some of the land was filled in, the filling-in process at various places serving to keep out the waters of the Harlem, which in years gone by ebbed and flowed over it.

The leveling of the field was completed in 1921 and the construction of the triple deck stand started in the Spring of 1922. Sod was hauled from Long Island for the top-cover of the diamond and dirt suitable for the under-layers transported from distant points.

The triple-deck stand, a novelty in baseball, includes a mezzanine floor. Wide seats, with ample aisle room assure fans a good view of the playing field from every angle. The extreme length and width of the plot is 700 feet, and the area of the playing field 160,000 square feet.

In the construction of the stands 2,500 tons of structural steel, 1,000 tons of reinforcing steel, 30,000 yards of concrete, 2,000,000 board feet of lumber for bleachers and concrete forms, 600,000 lineal feet of lumber for stand chairs, and four miles of iron piping were used.

The seating capacity of the stadium is 62,500, but there is room for many more thousands to stand. The record paid attendance during the past season was recorded on September 16 when 60,331 fans went through the turn-stiles.

On dedication day, the opening of the season, the Stadium housed probably its greatest throng, around 70,000. The count at the time was officially announced as 74,217, but later the Yankee management admitted this figure was fictitious, insisting, however, that the seating capacity had been exceeded by something close to 10,000.
