ORANGE LILY

WOMEN CURED AT HOME

Women's disorders always yield from the very beginning of the treatment to the mild, but effective, action of Orange Lily. Within two or three days after commencing its use the improvement becomes noticeable, and this improvement continues until the patient is completely cured. Orange Lily is applied or local treatment, and acts directly on the womanly organs, restoring the circulation in the diseased parts. In order to continue all suffering women of the value of this remedy, I will send a 35-cent box, enough for ten days' treatment, absolutely FREE to each lady sending me her address. MRS. FRANCES E. CURRAH, Windsor, Ont.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE
THE BEST OF SCIENCE

force and brain vitality than they know what to do with.
O Woman! The incarnation of fret and fume, hurry and worry, concern and anxiety, fear and caution! I have a word for you. No sensible man can be indifferent to the attractiveness of a beautiful home. But home may be too attractive for use and too beautiful for comfort. A sane man has small use for carpets which are too good to walk on, furniture which are too good to occupy, books which are too beautiful to be read, and instruments of music which are too fine to be touched.
O Woman! Listen to me! The color in your cheek is more fascinating than any beautiful design in yonder carpet. The light in your eye is sweeter than the glory of the morning sun creeping in through the fleecy clouds of well curtained windows. The laughter of your voice is more thrilling than all the silver notes of music that ever leaped from the keyboard of costly instrument—grand, square or upright. The expression on your face means more than the most winsome portrait hung by the divinest artist in parlor wall. When your husband stood at the marriage altar it was to secure the prize of an helpmeet. He married you and not an accumulation of household hardware and drawing-room bric-a-brac.
Better than costly oil paintings, better than Persian rug, better than Hamberg chandeliers, better than the scintillations of cut glass, better than the deep glow of rich mahogany, better than imported upholsters; better than ten thousand things which sparkle and gleam—is the radiant face of a cheerful soul. The divinest creature in the world is the queen of the home circle, who picks up the little responsibilities of life and carries them laughingly through a world of restless indignity. O woman! Bring to the laughter and good cheer of a soul sweet with the mellowness of a serene and hopeful disposition.
Seventh, the last person I wish to speak of this evening is the strangest character which I have ever found in all the social experiences of my life, namely, the heartless woman. Here we have the form of beauty bereft of the glow and fire of love and sympathy. Eyes of glass, brow of brass, cheeks of marble, lips of ice, face of granite, and a breath colder than the chilling wind of the storm-swept prairie—A heartless woman. When God wished to reveal his motherhood he created woman. I know that God is Love, for I have felt the touch of a mother's fond affection. The love she had for me made her kind to every mother's boy. And in the light of that love I have found a mystery, a paradox beyond the power of my soul to penetrate—an unsympathetic woman—a loveless woman—a heartless woman. No tear for the fallen, no sympathy for the unfortunate, no consideration for the weak, no compassion for the poor, no concern for the homeless, no anxiety for the suffering, no love for the wandering—a heartless woman. The faint regard and withered affection which she seems to possess for the members of her own family, never dared the expanding breath of larger sympathy. Write on her tombstone these words:
"Her Sympathy Was Never Known to Pass Beyond the Boundaries of Her Own Home."

"The Royal Line"
You'll Enjoy This Book
It is hard to describe in cold type the interest, charm and enjoyment that this booklet holds for the traveler. It pictures in a chatty, informal way the famous historic scenes and celebrated points of interest on the River St. Lawrence. So vividly, entertainingly and delightfully indeed, that it is almost as good as taking the trip oneself. Identically the advantages of traveling by the Royal Mail Steamships are touched upon. The superb appointments and architectural treatment of these boats virtually form a liberal education in period arts and crafts decoration. The utmost comfort, safety and pleasure are achieved through equipment thoroughly modern. Actual photographic reproductions and mural illustrations in color lighten the text and heighten the interest. We'll gladly send you a copy on request—free, simply address
