THE JEWS AND DRUNKENNESS.

The distinctly modified tone of Rev. James Simpson's second sermon upon temperance, as compared with the first, was no doubt due in part to the whole-some criticisms of the daily newspapers. It would be easy but perhaps not profitable to follow that phase of the subject further. There is one point of some interest, however, in the statement made in Mr. Simpson's first sermon and repeated in his sermon of last Sunday evening, that drunkenness was not a prevalent vice among the Jews. There are some who hold a different opinion from Mr. Simpson on this matter, and although the difference of opinion may not be of very great consequence in a general way, it may be worth examining in the interests of truth.

It is apparent that drunkenness was in the world from the days of Noah, and probable long before, otherwise the best man in the world would not have been overcome and disgraced through this excess. The story of Lot also furnishes a warning example, but these incidents may be held to antedate what is strictly Jewish history. If we come down to the days of Moses, what do we find? The command to Aaron and his sons and to the priesthood through all generations following not to drink wine, "when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die." Does not this strict injunction and awful penalty imply that the habit of drinking to excess was widely prevalent among the Jewish people of the time? Why was the vow of the Nazirites set up and commended—this first of all total abstinence societies—if there were no prevalent vice of drunkenness among the Jews? Why is the total abstinence of Samson, of Daniel, of Jonabab, the Reehabites and of John the Baptist recorded if it was in an abstemious time and among an abstemious people that they lived?

We get a glimpse of the excesses of the time in high life in the story of Behadad "drinking himself drunk in his pavilion" with thirty-two kings allied with him, as also in the story of David making Uriah drunk. And we think that if drunkenness had not been widely prevalent Isaiah would not have written the repeated denunciations of "the crown of pride, the drunkards of Ephraim." At that time we are told: "But they also have erred through wine and through strong drink are out of the way; the priest and the prophet have erred through strong drink, they are swallowed up of wine, they are out of the way through strong drink; they err in vision, they stumble in judgement. For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness so that there is no place clean." Surely drunkenness must have been appallingly prevalent among the Jews of that time to justify the language of the prophet. Hundreds of years later in apostolic days, when the mockers falsely charged that the apostles and disciples were "full of new wine," Peter did not content himself with a mere denial but appealed to reason also: "For these are not drunken as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day." In other words, that it was unreasonable to suppose that so many would be drunk at that hour. The inference is natural that there was much drunkenness in the later hours of the day and that the vice was common in Judea at that time.

Two ministers shook hands with Mr. Leatham in court. A respectable policeman is authority for the statement that another minister said to him that Mr. Leatham ought to be tarred and feathered. Which was the more commendable?

It seems a pity that Hon. Messrs. Blair, Mulock and Prefontaine could not have been present at the meeting in the Legislative Chamber yesterday afternoon. We doubt not they would have been heartily ashamed of themselves in the presence of so large, so representative and so indignant a gathering from all parts of the Island. They were much more comfortable in their palatial offices at Ottawa. An effort was made to break the pent-up indignation of all classes, and it was partly successful, by the reading of a telegram at the opening of the meeting announcing that for the balance of the winter special mail trains will be run to connect with the boats. Still the hearty condemnation of all was very strongly expressed. And no one, official or other, not even the most subservient supporter, had a word to say in defence of the official tyranny, which for the first time in twenty years cut off the mail connections between the Government Railway and the Government steamers. As for Mr. Armstrong, he had nothing to say for himself or his official superiors. The Government's case went wholly and disastrously by default.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE.

(Continued from First Page.) navigation was owing to the lateness at which the Stanley was sent to Summerside. Boats should be in commission on Dec. 1st and specials should connect with them wherever they run. J. E. B. McCready returned to the main question as to why specials did not connect with the boat. We did not know what powers Mr. Armstrong had. Some Minister at Ottawa had power and was responsible. It was but poor satisfaction to get a special train when half the winter was gone.

Mr. Armstrong regretted to say he could not tell where the trouble lay. He had been away from Ottawa for some time and could not say definitely where the trouble lay.

In answer to Mr. Tidmarsh Mr. Armstrong said the rate for carrying the mails on the Island Railway was $1 per running mile.

J. T. Mellish suggested the passing of a resolution directing the Department what to do.

Mr. Armstrong said we would have a special for the remainder of the season and probably for future years.

Moved by G. E. Hughes, M. L. A., seconded by A. A. Lefurzey M. P., and adopted unanimously:

Whereas inasmuch as the Minister has telegraphed that a special mail train has been ordered to follow the mails, this meeting is anxious that in future no such mis-management in connection with our mail service shall occur.

Therefore Resolved that this meeting demand a special train to connect with our mails from the mainland during the winter season in future without interruption.

F. H. Beer asked Mr. Armstrong who had a month ago sent the message to Mr. Brecken not to put on specials this winter?

John McLean, Souris attributed the blame to the Premier who did not stand up for the rights of the Province. He should have paid for the trains from the Island treasury and then demanded it from the Dominion. The winter steamers should be put on Dec. 1st to carry mail and passengers.

A. A. Lefurzey, M. P., in seconding Mr. Hughes' resolution attributed much of the trouble during the season to the Marine Department who did not make reports and endeavor to remove the boat when she was in the ice. The fault of the trains was a matter of bickering between the Railway and the Postal Departments, which had been going on for a long time. Some one on the Island should have authority to arrange the service and get our mails and passengers over in the best and safest way.

The motion of Mr. Hughes was carried unanimously and the meeting then adjourned.

REMARKABLE CASES IN TRENTON.

Mr. George Young, Proprietor of the "Courtier" and many others have made a valuable discovery. Of interest to everyone suffering from colds, coughs, catarrh or throat troubles.

Trenton, Ont. January 27.—Mr. Young has discovered a valuable remedy which cures cold in the head in a few moments without the use of drugs or disagreeable medicine, and is willing that as many as possible may benefit by his recent experience. "Not long ago" says Mr. Young, "I contracted a severe cold. It became suddenly severe and made such headway that remedies which formerly gave relief completely failed. I then tried Catarrhazone and to my surprise it reached the spot at once. It cleaned out my head and searched down to lowest part of my lungs. I got immediate relief when I inhaled the vapor of Catarrhazone."

Mr. H. Goodsell, Engineer for Electric and Water Co., had a similar experience with Catarrhazone, and says:—"My family of six were completely prostrated with cold and catarrh. My wife became perfectly deaf and almost blind. The children were also badly affected. Our doctor's medicine was too slow acting, so I went to Hawley's drug store and was recommended to try Catarrhazone. We inhaled Catarrhazone ten minutes every hour and the result was a speedy cure all round. Such a priceless remedy needs only a trial to be appreciated and my house will never be without it."

Other similar cases in this locality might also be cited as Catarrhazone is used by almost everyone in Trenton. It is certainly an admirable cure for all winter ills.

ISOLATION OF JURORS.
