

Professor Gabriel Bertrand, 79-year-old retired director of the Paris Pasteur Institute, demonstrates how microlysine is applied to a bottle of milk to purify and preserve it without refrigeration for as long as four or five days. Two drops are sufficient for amount of milk seen in photo above.

"Sh... I want to hear the name of that new cereal with the gloriously different flavor!"

1. Mrs. Jones certainly got a careful. For that one-and-only new flavor everybody was talking about in the Nineties was the malty-rich, sweet-as-a-nut Grape-Nuts flavor.

2. And folks are still talking about that same really different taste - but in new grand cereals - early, honey-golden POSTS GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES as well as crisp, chewy Post's Grape-Nuts.

3. Sun-ripened wheat and malted barley are a double reason why Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes are so good - why they provide carbohydrates for energy; proteins for muscle; phosphorus for teeth and bones; iron for the blood; other food essentials.

4. Ready to eat. Easy to digest. Nourishing, delicious. Get Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes today. Regular and giant economy size packages. All carry recipes for tempting cookies and other good things made with Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes.

United Church Presbytery Meeting

The Prince Edward Island Presbytery of the United Church of Canada met in Cavendish a short time ago. The opening service was conducted by the retiring Chairman Rev. G. Gough assisted by Mrs. J. D. MacFarlane of the W.M.S. A large number of ministers and laymen were present. Rev. L. M. Murray of Kensington was invited as the new Chairman. Rev. W. I. Green expressed the appreciation of Presbytery to the retiring Chairman. On motion Rev. A. Jardine was appointed assistant Secretary and Rev. J.A. Nicholson as reporter. The following inductions were reported: Breda: Rev. W. B. MacPhail; Bideford: Rev. S. MacDowell; Orwell-Vernon: Rev. A.S. Weir; Richmond Bay: Rev. Dr. S. R. Prince; Wellington: Rev. J. A. Vincent; West Cape: Rev. H. A. Bagnall. The new ministers were all extended a very cordial welcome to the Presbytery. Rev. W. A. MacQuarrie, Secretary, then read the correspondence. Many communications were received and were referred to the appropriate committees for study. The Treasurer Rev. Geo. Ayers then gave his report. By vote the Presbytery extended to Rev. Mr. Ayers its deep appreciation for his faithful service. The following were named as Chairmen of the Standing Committees: Archives: A. J. Matheson; Church property: Rev. T. Wilson; Christian Educ.: Rev. J. A. Jardine; M and M: Dr. S. R. Prince; Evangelism and S. Service: Rev. W. I. Green; Education and Students: Dr. S. R. Prince; Home Mission: Rev. J. R. Skinner; Pastoral Relations: Rev. J. A. Nicholson; Missionary Educ.: Rev. E. I. Green; Publications: Rev. R. Vessey; Pensions: Rev. A. S. Adair; Records: Rev. J. MacDonald; Statistics: E. R. MacVicar. Members of the Conference Settlement Committee 1947: Rev. J. A. Nicholson and Rev. A. S. Weir. Rev. E. Coffin, the minister announced the time for dinner and in a short address welcomed the members of Presbytery to Javendish. Presbytery then adjourned.

Support Veterans' Week - Aug 18-24

The afternoon meeting of Presbytery was opened with prayer. Rev. J. M. Barr reported on the crusade for Christ and His Kingdom. His report was adopted. Rev. J. A. Jardine then spoke about the new camp at Augustine Cove. Two special speakers Messrs. Rod Gillis and Walter Shaw were heard. They both gave very interesting speeches and pointed out the value of the camp to the churches supporting it. They asked the ministers and congregations to support the camp. A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers. The Presbytery voted as a body to support the Social Service Council. It also decided to support the national committee for food conservation. Reports were received from the Chairman of the different committees. Mr. Brooks reported for the Lay Association and stressed the Pine Hill and Murray Funds. The Evangelism and Social Service Committee strongly condemned the use of alcohol for beverage purposes. Mr. Matheson gave a demonstration, using posters, for the teaching of Temperance. The following Interim Chairmen of Congregations were named: Mr. MacVicar for Bell River; Mr. Weir for Valleyfield; Mr. Skinner for Winsloe. The following nominations were made: Rev. T. W. Jones for Moderator; Rev. E. D. Murray for Board of Pensions; Rev. D. J. Portyrie for Christian Education Board; Rev. J. A. Jardine for the Presbytery in two parts was then made.

Russia may already have an atom bomb of its own, or if not soon will have, declares Dr. Simon Alexandrov, above, Soviet observer at the recent Bikini atom bomb test. He said that a Russian atom bomb might be demonstrated in the Siberian wastelands or in the remote islands north of Canada.

The evening session was conducted by Rev. W. I. Green. Special singing by the Kensington Quartet. Rev. Roy Webster of China gave a fine and illuminating address on China. Before the service ended the address the Presbytery was extended to the ladies of Cavendish and Stanley Bridge Missionary Societies for the chicken supper and excellent dinner and their gracious hospitality. The Presbytery will hold its next meeting in Charlottetown in the fall.

Always Anoth. Spring

By Adelaide Humphries

(Continued from Page 2) Anne said, "Most women are just like I am. They don't believe it, but since it is evident that your wife did not like your coming to see me, don't believe you should come again." "But how can I talk things over with you?" David objected. "You can talk to me now; when we meet sometimes." She knew that would not satisfy him. Over David's shoulder she caught a glimpse of Camilla and Gil; they were dancing together. They were not quarrelling as David might have expected, or having difficulty in trying to talk, as David and Anne were now. They did not seem to care about talking. Camilla's head was resting on Gil's broad shoulder, her eyes were closed; the expression upon her face was anything but bored. Gil did not look exactly unhappy either; he certainly seemed to be holding his partner close enough, his own dark rumpled nose held to one side so that it almost touched the white-gold one. Anne experienced a flash of anger, or could it be jealousy? She felt like shaking Gil, or tearing him away from Camilla. It was too ridiculous for him to carry things this far. "We can't talk here," David said. "I wanted to tell you about my talk with Father Payne. I want to say, 'Perhaps we could talk in that little alcove over there.'" Anne said, "He began as soon as they were seated and had ordered. 'I'm mighty glad I talked things over with Camilla's father - told him just what she was heading for - a scandal, that's what with the whole town talking, bringing disgrace on all of us. Father Payne looked at it just as you said he would. He said he wouldn't tolerate anything like that, that he'd talk to Camilla himself or buy Douglas off, or whatever was necessary. As a matter of fact I think he did offer to pay the lug's train fare to Hollywood. Not that that'll do him any good - Douglas's mean.' David smacked his lips with satisfaction, took a gulp of the drink before him. 'Hell never get a look-see in the movies. But anyway it seems that Camilla has come to her senses and seen him for what he is - an empty-headed ham - just as I told you she would bound to sooner or later. So, thanks to you, Anne, that's that.' "Then I suppose you are happy again, David?" she asked. "Happy?" He considered this, pursed his lips. "No, I wouldn't exactly say that. Though things are shaping up for me. Father Payne is going to suggest I be made one of the directors of the sides being general manager. 'I am thinking of it,' Anne said. 'There in some ways, your marriage isn't such a ghastly mistake, such a farce as you said it was, is it, David?' "What's that?" David asked. "Of course it was - in many ways. But naturally there are compensations for everything. "Did you ever tell your mother you thought your marriage might not work out?" Anne asked. "Good Lord, no!" David did choke over that. Mother is so nicely settled now, and she really sets on very well with Camilla. Camilla seems to know just how to handle her, curves and all. And, well, I just can't imagine telling Mother that!" David ordered another drink for himself. Anne had not yet finished the sherry she had. "Yes, I'm pretty well established," David said. "In business, I mean. And, well, socially too, of course. I guess I might be what you call happy, especially now that I have you to talk to, Anne, to come to as a friend." "You're perfectly satisfied with that?" Anne asked. "Satisfied..." David's glance shifted. "Why, no, no, not exactly. You know that, Tubby. You know how I feel about everything. Of course I'd like to be much more than just friends with you, if you'd let me, that is. I'll always need you, Tubby. I like to think of you waiting, so understanding, so willing to listen and sympathize." (To be continued)

Plastic Wood!

Six inches high and carved from wood, Jean-Baptiste began life without a nose when his creator's knife slipped and eliminated that important part of his face. But plastic surgery saved him. His new nose is a product of chemistry. It came out of a tube in the form of C-I-L Plastic Wood, a C-I-L Paint & Varnish Division product for home, hobby and industrial use in healing holes and cracks in wood. C-I-L Plastic Wood comes from "Wood Flour", derived from nature, combined with a chemical bonding agent. The result is a product that "Handles like putty and hardens into wood".
