ARMISTICE DAY IS MEDITATION TIME

Canadians can Never Forget what November 11, 1919 Meant and Will Remember with Victory Bonds

Do you remember a year ago today? Do you recall the shouting and the cheering and the glad hurrahs that issued from the lips and the hearts of Canadians when the news came that the armistice was signed? A year ago! What ages seem to have passed since then. What wonders have been accomplished.

The Canadian troops have almost all been returned to Canada in the short space of twelve months. This seemingly incredible task was done in spite of heavy obstacles because Canada wanted her sons back.

Today the Victory Loan calls for every citizen to lend, lend, lend, to help pay the cost of transportation and demobilization.

Did your cheers mean anything or were they only empty effervescence? Did your hurrahs ring true or had they a hollow sound?

Prove that you meant it when you joined on Armistice Day by subscribing now to the Victory Loan.

SOLDIER REMEMBERED

On the evening of October 7th, 1919 a large number of relatives and friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Buchanan, Elmwood, to welcome back their son, Pte. William, who recently returned home from overseas bringing with him his English bride. The meeting was called to order by the chairman Mr. Nicholas Colwill, who in a few well chosen remarks explained the object of the gathering and expressed his gratification at having the opportunity of welcoming back another of Elmwood's young men from bearing his share of the world's great war. A short programme, consisting of choruses, recitations and violin selections was then nicely rendered by the school girls, Misses Vert Trainor, Reta Costello, Marjorie Newman and assisted by their teacher, Miss Sadie Egan.

An appropriate address was then read by Mr. John Colwill while Mr. Buchanan was presented with a beautiful silver ring by Miss Sadie Egan and Mrs. Buchanan was made the recipient of a handsome silver tea service by Mrs. William McPhee. Mr. Buchanan responded in his usual pleasant and considerate manner thanking the people on behalf of himself and his wife, for their kind remembrance.

An excellent repast was then served to all present after which the evening was very pleasantly spent in vocal and instrumental music, dancing etc.

Following is the address:

With the joyous words of welcome that have greeted you everywhere on your return, we your friends and neighbors assemble here tonight to extend to you and your bride a hearty welcome home.

Words of ours fail to convey to you our heart-felt appreciation for the valuable service you have rendered in our behalf, in defending our King, our Country and our Homes against the most ruthless and cruel enemy that ever invaded a country.

You heard your country's call; you believed that call to be the voice of duty and, although you knew that you went to scenes of horror, you did not falter.

So, now you may rest assured that such a noble response to duty on your part, together with the very generous response and great sacrifices made by our Island soldiers shall not soon be forgotten; and this reception is but a feeble mark of the unlimited respect that is due you. Now, lastly, but not least, we heartily congratulate you on having won such a handsome young bride. We welcome you Mrs. Buchanan to our "Garden of the Gulf" and especially to this community.

In conclusion we will ask you to please accept these small gifts as a proof of the sincerity of the sentiments expressed by your friends and school-mates, who joyously assemble here and who now unite, in extending best wishes to you and Mrs. Buchanan for success in all your future undertakings and many many years of happy wedded life.

ROSE HAS CAUSE TO ENVY ME

CHAPTER XVIII

Rose wrote me occasionally. Walter Kemp had been of a roving disposition always, and they had decided to settle in Chicago.

"Walter has had a splendid business offer and has accepted it," she wrote. "My only regret is not to be with you in Hendon. But of course I would not think of that when he can make so much money by accepting this offer. Then, too, he is all the company I need. I have not tried to get acquainted at all, although there are one or two very pleasant young women in the hotel who have spoken to me. We have found an apartment—I did not want the care of a house—and shall furnish and move in at once."

But after the letter, in which she wrote of her home, describing the furniture, her trouble in securing maids, etc., her letters grew more infrequent—and different. Gradually she said nothing about Walter being all-sufficient for her, or about his wonderful love. At first her letters had been full of her happiness. She now made no complaints, but the buoyancy was gone. I felt she was unhappy without in the least knowing why.

When I answered her letters I made no mention of the change I had noticed, but wrote as usual. I never had said very much about Everett in my letters to her, simply "I'm glad he is well and glad to be remembered. I had never overcome the feeling that she didn't like my husband, and it made it hard to write of him. So I was astonished when, in one of her short notes to me, she said:

"You say very little about Everett. I shall make Walter hate his very name. I always hold him up as a model husband. He was so gallant, so courteous to you, as much so as if you weren't married."

"I wonder if, now he is married, Walter neglects all the little courtesies Rose thinks so much of?" I muttered as I read her letter. Had I known that he not only neglected the amenities of life, but was already, after only a few months, neglecting Rose, I should have been deeply sorry for her. That this was so, I did not know for some time.

But Buster and Toodles paid us a visit just at that time. They were with us about ten days. It was vacation for them, but as Everett facetiously remarked: "Anything but a vacation for us!" It didn't seem possible that two boys of their age could upset a house, and keep us all so busy.

I never had seen Everett so happy. He laughed and joked with both the boys; planned parties for them; took them to the shows and motion pictures; bought them all sorts of games; and generally dispersed himself in a way to win their lasting allegiance, and to make me wonder if he really were my devoted husband.

"You are as much of a boy as either of them," I told him upon their return from a ball game.

"They are doing me good," he returned, laughing at something Toodles said. "I only wish they were to be with us longer."

Mrs. Gray, James and Thomas were all slaves to my brothers' whims; and as for Hetty and the cook, I told Everett we never would get them straightened out again. Cook made the most delicious and indigestible dishes for them, and Hetty waited upon them until I complained I had no one to do anything for me. But it made me very happy. I love the boys, and they were considerate—that I was proud of them as well.

When they left it seemed as if someone had died. Everett complained more than did I of missing them.

But about a week after they left I had a fainting spell. When the doctor left, Everett took me in his arms, and said:

"Dear, we know how to borrow other people's children very much longer." The doctor had told him I was to be a mother.

I never knew anyone could be so tender, so thoughtful, as Everett, was. I forgot all the unpleasant things which had happened and was only happy to think I was to have a baby of my very own, and that Everett really loved me.

St. John Man Gains 26 Pounds

FINDS TANLAC TO BE JUST WHAT HE HAD BEEN NEEDING FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

"Yes, Sir, I have gained twenty-six pounds since I commenced taking Tanlac, and I am in such fine condition that I can do as hard a day's work as any man," was the statement made to a Tanlac representative recently by Charles Allen, who lives at 301 Union St., St. John, N. B.

"My health broke down while I was serving in the Boer War," continued Mr. Allen, "and since that time my condition has been getting worse all the time. For the past nine years my stomach has been in an awful fix and no matter what I would eat I was sure to suffer agony afterwards. Every night that came was misery for me for I couldn't sleep but would roll and tumble till time to get up. I was so nervous that when anybody opened the door I would almost jump out of my chair. Finally I could go no longer, so I gave up my work and started to the country to take a long rest."

"But when I left I decided to buy a bottle of Tanlac and take it with me, as I had heard and read so much about it. I went on to the country and began to take my Tanlac, and I want to tell you I felt so much better when I finished my first bottle that I was determined to have some more and I walked two miles and got it. It has been some time now since I finished my last bottle but I am feeling even finer today than I did then for I am heavier and stronger, and my work is a pleasure to me. My nerves are steady and every night that comes I can sleep as sound as a child and I get up of mornings feeling fine. My appetite is so good that I am almost ashamed of the way I eat, and everything I eat digests perfectly and I never have the least pain in my stomach. Tanlac has proved to be just the thing I have been needing for over fifteen years, and a medicine that can do what it has done for me certainly deserves every bit of the praise I can give it."

Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros., in Montague by H. J. Nelson, in Georgetown by Seymour C. Knight, in Souris by Jos. G. Ferguson and in Kensington by Kier & McEldagen.

VEGETABLE MARROW JAM

Two lbs. brown sugar and 6 pints water. Stir over fire until it boils and sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Put into an earthenware vessel—the marrow peeled and not stand 2 days. For each pound of marrow (weighed before putting into syrup) take 1 lb. lump sugar, 1 ounce ginger root, (well bruised) a tiny pinch cayenne, and the juice and yellow rind (finely cut) of 2 lemons. Stir thoroughly over fire until sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Now strain marrow from first syrup and lay in this. Cook until vegetable is transparent.

Farewell Gathering

A large and appreciative gathering took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Toombs on Monday evening, Oct. 27, when their many friends in North Rustico and vicinity met to bid them farewell.

Mr. Toombs, who has been for many years one of the most successful farmers in the province, is now retiring from active farm life, and he and Mrs. Toombs intend making their future home in Tryon.

Mr. O. M. Bernard was appointed chairman, and the following address was read by Mrs. B. C. Woolner:—

To Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Toombs:—

We, your friends and neighbors of North Rustico, having learned of your intention to move away from among us, have met with you this evening to assure you of our deep regret at your departure, and also our very best wishes for your future happiness in your new home. We would at the same time convey to you our appreciation of your sterling worth as members of our community, where you have been most active in church and Sabbath school work for so many years. You have ever been mindful of visiting the sick and sorrowing and, especially to you, Mrs. Toombs, may be said that your loving care and tender nursing in many a sick room will always be remembered. Our Women's Missionary Society is also called upon to part with an old and valued member. We wish you to feel that we are indeed grateful for all these services, and we trust that your life now may be happy and more free from care and that you may long enjoy your well-earned leisure. We will miss you in your hospitable home, where all have been so kindly received, but hope that you will often revisit your old friends where you are sure of a cordial welcome.

Please accept these small gifts as slight tokens of our friendship and regard. May our Heavenly Father bless you both, and may we all look forward to reunion in a "divine country" where there are no more partings and no more pain is the earnest wish of all.

Mr. Toombs was presented with a beautiful ebony gold-headed cane and Mrs. Toombs with a hand satchel.

Mr. Toombs made a suitable reply and on behalf of Mrs. Toombs and himself thanked the people for their kind remembrances, deeply appreciating this thoughtfulness on the part of his friends and neighbors.

The following address from the W. M. S. of North Rustico was also read by Mrs. Gordon Laird, and Mrs. Toombs was presented with a beautiful Bible:—

To Mrs. Wallace Toombs.

We, the members of the North Rustico Auxiliary, on the eve of your departure from our midst, desire to express to you our appreciation of your interest and helpfulness as a member of our Society. We deeply regret the loss we shall sustain in your departure, but rest assured, dear friend, the very best wishes of those who have been associated with you here in the Master's work will follow you to your new home. Please accept this small gift as a token of our love and esteem and may God's blessing abide with you and yours is our earnest prayer.

Signed on behalf of North Rustico Auxiliary,

Mabel Woolner,
Mrs. Granville Buntain,
Hilda McKenzie,
Mrs. James L. LePage.

Speeches, music and social intercourse made the evening pass all too quickly. Dainty refreshments were served, and after singing Auld Lang Syne and almost every industry was met again, all departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Toombs many years of health and happiness in their new home.

PROMINENT EDUCATIONALIST HAS PASSED AWAY

AMHERST, Nov. 3.—The last sad rites yesterday afternoon in connection with the death of (Amherst's great builder of education) the late E. J. Lay, supervisor of our Amherst schools, were very impressive in their character. Nothing was lacking to make them fully representative of the varied interests of the town which he loved so well. In this respect the funeral was probably the most eloquent of regard and feeling that has been in Amherst for a number of years.

The town was represented by the Councillors and Mayor. The schools by the teachers and school children of all ages, and almost every industry was represented by the Masons, who marched in a body, first to the residence for a short service, then to the Methodist church, which was filled to overflowing and then to the grave, headed by the Amherst Military Band. The church service was conducted by the different pastors of the churches of the town, and at the grave the service was conducted by the Masonic Order, which was never rendered more impressive. The floral offerings were many and beautiful.
