AN EDUCATION IN PAINT

Sister: "Daddy won't like you using his paints."
 Brother: "Why not—I guess paint's meant to paint with—and Dad said to save the surface was the best thing any fellow could do."
 Sister: "Well let me paint some of it—I can paint."
 Brother: "No, who ever heard of a girl paintin' anyhow, 'cept her face maybe."
 Sister: "You're horrid". (Starts to cry.)
 Brother: "Oh well, take a try at it then, but mind you don't run over the roof with that red."

And so they learn, and they cannot learn too young, the lesson that will stand them in good stead throughout their lives:—Save the Surface and You Save All.

paid by the Department of Immigration. A member of the Dominion Government, the Hon. J. E. Sinclair, had introduced Mitchell to the Immigration Department and to Premier Bell, and the Dominion Government should therefore pay those who had lost their money as a result of the false representations of Mitchell. Mr. McDonald pointed out a contradiction in the sworn statement of Mr. William Mayne at the enquiry, and in the statement made by Hon. Mr. Sinclair in the House of Commons. No doubt Mr. Sinclair had acted in good faith in introducing Mitchell and securing his appointment by the Provincial Government, but the unfortunate issue of the affair, and the failure of Mr. Sinclair to notify Premier Bell when he had received word that Mitchell's conduct in London was not satisfactory, made the Dominion Government, of which he is a member, the responsible party.

It has been intimated that the Government was actuated by political partisanship in the holding of the Mitchell enquiry. This was absolutely untrue. Hon. Mr. Sinclair was treated by the Attorney General with the utmost courtesy and was permitted at the enquiry to make practically his own statement of the case. The Provincial Government would have been negligent had not the matter, so important to the province, been investigated as thoroughly as possible, with a view to fixing the responsibility where it belonged. The Conservative Government in this province has never been known to act in other than a fair way in these matters. Mr. McDonald reminded the members of the Opposition to the fact that the former Liberal Government tried to blacken the character of the former Conservative Commissioner of Public Works, Hon. Mr. McNeill, who stands high in the estimation of the people of this province, and against whom the finger of scorn cannot be pointed with impunity. Mr. McDonald quoted an article from the Patriot of Dec 28, 1915. To day however, the leader of the Opposition eulogises Hon. Mr. McNeill. The insinuations referred to was in the nature of a smoke screen which the Liberals at that time put up. He did not believe either the leader of the Opposition or the member for Summerside would even suggest that Hon. Mr. McNeill could be charged with the slightest wrong-doing. His record of service as Commissioner of Public Works is a high one.

MR. McDONALD: "Here, here." MR. McDONALD: "But they tried to blacken his character, nevertheless. An event occurred in this House at which I was a spectator, when Mr. George E. Hughes presented an affidavit with respect to some matters in regard to Falconwood Hospital. He withdrew it when he was unable to substantiate his argument. Yet these gentlemen will have the hardihood to say that the Mitchell enquiry was inspired by political partisanship. The leader of the Opposition made the statement that the Attorney General should have acted for the enquiry into the defrauding of Mitchell, instead of advising them to retain counsel. He is a lawyer himself, and knows well that a lawyer cannot serve two masters. How was the Attorney General going to protect the interests of the Province which were at variance at that time with grievances of these men? When he makes a statement of that kind he knows that it is something which is not in accordance with facts."

Mr. McDonald in conclusion warmly supported Mr. McLure's remarks in respect to the importance of co-operative marketing. The Government should do all it possibly could to assist in opening up markets for the farmers of this Province. He was sure this would receive every attention from the Commissioner of Agriculture. In regard to the Technical School, he was convinced that a good many farmers are doubtful of the value received from this institution. With the withdrawal of the Federal agricultural grant it was just a question if the Government would be warranted in expending the money. Compare the Technical School teaching expenses with the salaries paid the teachers at Prince of Wales College. They are equivalent or greater. As the Technical School was only running for about five months of the year, he submitted that this was not getting value for the money expended.

Mr. McDonald referred to the existing high freight rates. The express companies are not asking for an increase. He would support a resolution of the House to the Railway Commission calling attention to the fact that our farmers are suffering on account of these freight rates. He cited particular instances, showing the rates to be almost prohibitive. The Western provinces have been given concessions in these matters, but it seems so far the policy of the railway authorities to neglect the Maritime extremists in Parliament all anxious to further their own pet schemes, has proved most embarrassing to the Labor Cabinet, and its efforts to please all shades of opinion have merely served to diminish the prestige of the first Labor Ministry. Actually, Ramsay MacDonald and his colleagues have steered remarkably clear of serious trouble, and they have astutely allowed the more extreme schemes of their followers to be killed by the force of public opinion, without having to turn them down personally. But the effect has been damaging all around.

Some of the "wild men" from the Clyde district have thoroughly scared the sober section of the electorate by the extravagance of their schemes and, while the MacDonald Government is given credit for scotching them, the fact remains that the extremists are of the Government's party.

Labor's political opponents gleefully point out that the saner element in the Cabinet is unable to control the extremists who, if they had been elected in sufficient numbers, would have been able to force their views on the saner old-type Labor leaders. The inevitable result will be that the personal policies of every candidate standing on the Labor ticket will be carefully inspected at the next elections.

Had the new trade union leaders been content to progress slowly they could have ensured the MacDonald Cabinet a fairly lengthy term of office, with the possibility of an actual majority in Parliament at the next election as a sort of welcome relief from a succession of Conservative and Liberal Governments.

But the extremists have overreached themselves, according to the experts, and if an election were held this Summer Labor would lose rather than gain in Parliamentary strength, despite the benevolent approval accorded the MacDonald Cabinet by the mass of voters. Nobody wants an election this year, but Conservative and Liberal organizers are emphasizing the belief that no more favorable moment could be found for throwing out their opponents.

Nobody wants an election this year, but Conservative and Liberal organizers are emphasizing the belief that no more favorable moment could be found for throwing out their opponents.

Hurt the Government

To a certain extent they obtained concessions, but they rendered a great dis-service to the Labor Government. As the strike organizers had reckoned, the Labor Government was reluctant to take strong measures against its own class, but it declined to be "held up" and dominated by the trade unions, which the old-time labor leader recognized to form only a section of the community—and more important still, of the electorate.

When Ernest Bevin prepared to call out the electricians, subway employees and others in support of the London tram and bus strikers Ramsay MacDonald had to tell him bluntly that this could not be permitted by any Government, and he got King George to sign a "state of emergency" proclamation and showed it to the strike leaders.

The proclamation was never enforced, the threat being sufficient. But the fact of the proclamation having been drawn up, yet never enforced, proved damaging to the Government. Extremists in the labor ranks were angry that the threat had been used, and "die hards" among the anti-labor forces were equally enraged that it was not applied before.

The general public was sore over the inconvenience to which it had been subjected, and disposed to blame, first, the unions for starting the strike and, secondly, the Government for not stopping it.

PRESENTATION AND SURPRISE PARTY

The evening of the 15th of April, saw a very enjoyable time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Younker, Kingston, when a number of friends and neighbors assembled for a small supper in support of the war opened and Mr. Frederick Younker was appointed chairman. After a few remarks by the chairman explaining the purpose of the party, which was to thank Mr. Younker for using his barbering skill so freely, Mr. Charles Willis was called upon to read the address while Mr. Harrison Green presented the gift. A few remarks were then made by the chairman, Mr. Hubert Willis and Mr. Leonard Willis. The rest of the evening was spent in games and social intercourse, after which lunch was served by the ladies present. Among the ones present were Mr. and Mrs. Tyrus Holmes and family. All returned to their homes after having an enjoyable time.

The following is the address: Mr. and Mrs. Owen Younker, Dear Friends—We a few of your friends and neighbors have assembled here this evening to endeavor to show you in only a small measure the deep appreciation we feel towards you in return for your un- tiring hospitality and many kindnesses which you have, from time to time, bestowed upon us.

We know that we have often come to have hair cut, at the busiest seasons of the year and more than one at a time, still we can honestly say to you, Owen, that we never have we found you unwilling to use your barbering skill, a skill of which you seem to be amply possessed.

While we are thanking you for your kindly and generous manner towards us, we do not want to forget your congenial wife. She has been most kind and courteous to us at all times, even though it may have meant some sacrifice on her part to do so. We would now ask you to accept this small gift from us tonight, not for its value, but just as a small reminder that we do appreciate favors when they are given to us.

Now, in closing, our sincere wish for both of you is long life and happiness; and for ourselves, that you may long be spared to live in Kingston so that our barbering bills will be as easily paid in the future as they have been in the past.

Signed on behalf of those present.

Soaking takes the place of rubbing—

JUST by soaking the clothes in the suds of this new soap, dirt is gently loosened and dissolved.

Even the dirt that is ground in at neckbands and cuff-edges yields to a light rubbing with dry Rinso. Not a thread is weakened. The mild Rinso suds work thoroughly through and through the clothes without injury to a single fabric.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux. For the family wash it is as wonderful as Lux is for fine things.

All grocers and department stores sell Rinso.

"Tiz" Puts Joy In Sore, Aching Feet

"Tiz" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters and bunions.

"Tiz" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, how long you remain on your feet, "Tiz" brings restful foot comfort. "Tiz" is wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Your feet just tingle, for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a box of "Tiz" new from any drug or department store. End foot torture forever. Wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy.

ONLY ONE IN THIRTY SETTLERS IN AREA IS LIKELY TO FAIL

Fine Shoying of War Veterans of Former Indian Reserve in Alberta.

Out of thirty settlers on the Bobtail Indian Reserve near Ponoka, Alta., but one is classified by the soldier settlement district supervisor as likely to fail.

This reserve was taken over by the Soldier Settlement Board in 1919 and divided into farm units of an average size of 214 acres. In the season 1923 all the settlers had from one-third to one-half of their acreage under cultivation—in one case 140 acres—although none of the land was broken when the district was opened. Buildings have been erected, farms fenced and other improvements completed. The district has a school house and roadwork has been done. There is a Dominion Government Stock Association in the district and the supervisor reports a marked tendency towards mixed farming. The settlers are well equipped with producing stock and machinery.

In the present collection period, 28 of the 30 settlers had payments due; nineteen have made full payments and seven very substantial payments, with prospects that before the end of the period not more than ten to fifteen per cent. of the amount will be outstanding.

A number of the settlers have large families and were under the necessity of having to build large houses at first. This was rather a handicap to them as they needed all their resources for the development of their land. While they were not particularly favored by the weatherman, the whole district having suffered from damage by hail last year, they have made a splendid showing, in large measure due to their fine spirit and industry.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep children's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Cycling Far Easier than Walking

FRANK Jones used to complain about his feet getting so hot and aching from his long walks to and from work on the hard roads and pavements.

One day when he felt more tired, and his feet hurt him worse than usual, he happened to see a man going by on a bicycle.

"Cycling is far easier than walking," said Frank to himself. And all day long while he was working that thought kept running through his mind.

That night, on the way home, he dropped into a C.C.M. dealer's and looked over the different C.C.M. models, choosing one that suited him in every way.

Since then Frank's feet have had a much easier time and he's quit complaining. In fact, he's boasting now about how fine, and fresh he feels since he started cycling.

He also tells how quickly and easily he cycles to work and home again—how he saves the shoe leather he used to wear out on the hard cement walks—how he saves valuable time by cycling instead of walking.

If you gave Frank a chance he would tell you all about the C.C.M. Triplex Crank Hanger—the wonderful power plant that responds to the slightest pressure on the pedals and makes the C.C.M. run so smoothly, quietly and easily.

He would show you the strong, powerful frames of English Seamless Tubing—the bright silvery nickeling that won't rust because it is done over copper—the sparkling enamel that is baked over a coat of anti-rust so it will stand rain, snow and all kinds of weather—the new Gibson Pedal with its rust-proof aluminum frame—and the C.C.M. Hercules Coaster Brake that coasts so easily, has such braking power, and is ounces lighter than the old-style side-arm type.

The C.C.M. dealer will, also, be glad to tell you all about the C.C.M. and to show you the new models—the Standard, the Special, the Sport model, the C.C.M. Flyer, the Curved Bar model.

Prices are $15 to $20 lower than the "peak" prices. A Big Dollar's value for every dollar you invest in a C.C.M.
