Escapes Of Nazi Prisoners In Canada

OTTAWA, Nov. 1—(CP)—An unofficial tally of the number of reported escapes by prisoners of war in Canada reached 157 today with the escape of 19 German prisoners from Riding Mountain National Park in Manitoba.

The largest mass escape from a prisoner of war camp in Canada took place at Peninsula, Ont., in April, 1941. Of 28 men who escaped two men were killed and the other 26 recaptured. Last August 19 prisonesr escaped from Fort Henry at Kingston, Ont. but were all recaptured.

Of those who have escaped only one, Baron Franz Von Werra, made his way back to Germany. Subsequently he was killed in action

Clarify Status Of Senior Players

WINNIPEG, Nov. 1 — (CP) —A problem worrying hockey officials here — the status of junior players who since last season have joined one of the armed services — has been clarified by Frank Sargent of Port Arthur, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

He has ruled that a player still eligible for junior hockey and whose services have been acquired by a military team, does not automatically become a free agent.

As long as the player remains in the same area in which he played the previous season he continues to be the property of the club with which he played prior to joining the service.

Mr. Sargent gave his ruling at a meeting of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association here during the week-end.

Army—R. C. A. F. Recruit Jointly At Armouries

Joint service recruiting will be given its first real test on Prince Edward Island, this week in the Armouries at Charlottetown. Under the Joint Services Recruiting Policy recently adopted, all applicants will be first considered for Aircrew duties with the R. C. A. F. or for overseas duty with the Army. Those failing to qualify for either of these branches may then apply for enlistment in the ground crew branch of the Air Force. This latest innovation in recruiting for the Armed Services is designed with a view to better placement of Canada's manpower.

Lt. Col. R. C. Chandler, officer in charge of Army recruiting on P. E. I. and Flt. Lieut. A. T. Parkes of the R. C. A. F. Recruiting Centre, Moncton will interview all applicants applying at the Armouries this week and also men reporting to the Army Reception Centre on Thursday and Friday.

Each man will be given every opportunity of enlisting in the branch of the service for which he is best suited.

On Wednesday, November 3rd Lt. Col. Chandler and Flt. Lieut. Parkes will be at the Armouries in Summerside to interview prospective candidates there.

Establish Quinine Pool

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Establishment of a Canadian quinine pool, intended to recover all small quantities of quinine and related cinchona derivatives in the hands of physicians and pharmacists, has been announced here by the Munitions Department.

Contributions are being solicited through a joint appeal made on behalf of the armed forces fighting in Malaria infested areas by Brig.-Gen. J. C. Meakins, director of Medical Services.

An effort will be made to recover the thousands of ounces of these drugs now frozen in the stocks of doctor's private dispensaries and retail and hospital pharmacies.

Chemicals Controller E. T. Sterne said almost all the world's supply of quinine has been in the hands of the enemy since 1942 when Japan invaded the Dutch East Indies. Canada now has to depend on available stockpiles.

Address And Presentation

On October 18th, 1943, a very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. Lucy Paynter when sixty-five or more friends and neighbors from north and south Rustico gathered to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. E.C. LePage, two highly respected citizens of the community. Mr. and Mrs. LePage, heaving recently bought a new home, have left for Charlottetown where they will reside. After the guests had all arrived, Mr. Roy Toombs was appointed chairman and after some remarks suitable to the occasion, called on Mrs. M. Doyle to read the following address.

Mr. And Mrs. E.C. LePage
Dear Friends:—

We understand that you are leaving this community very soon to take up residence in Charlottetown and in consequence, we have assembled here tonight to express our sorrow at your departure and to extend our good wishes for a large share of happiness in your newly acquired home.

Many of us have lived beside you as good neighbors for a great many years, and all have been intimate with you, Mr. LePage in a business way for a long time and we wish to congratulate you both on the success of your career, and trust that you may have many happy years to enjoy your well earned leisure. We will miss you very much in the life of this community. You have contributed generously to every worthy cause and your places at our church services will be vacant, but we must remember that circumstances require changes and that our loss will be another's gain.

We expect you to often visit the "old familiar places" where a glad welcome will be awaiting you and we wish you both many years of health and happiness.

We wish the accompanying small gift to serve as a reminder of your friends, of North and South Rustico—many of whom are represented here tonight.

A well filled purse was then presented to Mr. and Mrs. LePage by Mrs. Flemming on behalf of the community. Both Mr. and Mrs. LePage in a few words of appreciation thanked them all for their thoughtfulness and generosity and invited all to visit them in their new home. A nicely arranged program of songs, readings and sing song was carried out and greatly enjoyed by all. A dainty lunch was then served by the ladies, after which a pleasant hour was spent with the honored guests, bidding them farewell and wishing them good luck in the future.

RECEPTION AT KINKORA

On Friday evening, Oct. 22nd, the friends and neighbours of Mrs. Thomas L. Shreenan gathered at her home to do honor to her son L.A.C. Leo Shreenan R.C.A.F. who was spending a short leave at his home.

When the company were all assembled Mr. J.W. Farmer was appointed chairman and in a few well chosen words explained the nature of the meeting and called upon Mr. Leonard McCarville who read an address. A well filled purse was presented by Mr. Cecil Trainor. Leo although taken by surprise, responded very fittingly in his jovial manner, thanking all present and telling how pleased he was to see so many familiar faces. All then joined in singing For He's A Jolly Good Fellow.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies to about one hundred guests. Dancing followed for a few hours, the music being furnished by Kinkora's old time violinist, Mr. Joseph Mulligan, with accompanist on the piano. The company then dispersed wishing Leo a safe trip back to his unit in Manitoba and assuring him of a hearty welcome back when the war is over.

The following is the address:

Dear Leo.—The writer who compared the years of man to a loom on which we weave day by day, gave us a striking picture of our lives. The bright threads and the dark are woven in and out intertwining to make at the end a complete pattern the beauty of which often surprises even the weaver. So it is in the lives of us all. Joyous days mingle with darker days which often serve as a background to make the former shine more brilliantly. It is thoughts like these that fill our minds tonight, Leo. The gloomy threads of the days of war interwine with brighter threads of days like this when we can salute with joy and pride one of our boys in the service of our country. We are happy to tell you that we are proud of you not only because you wear the uniform that marks you out as one of the brave defenders of our freedom, but especially because we are confident that wherever you may be, you will always be a defender of all the ideals of a true christian gentleman.

We rejoice with your family to have you with us for this all too brief visit, and we trust that it will not be long before the "lights go on again all over the world" and you will be home to stay.

We would like to have some fitting words to tell you how we appreciate what you boys in the services are doing, but somehow words are empty things. We shall, therefore, only ask you to accept this small remembrance which bears with it the good wishes and the prayers of your friends, for

"Friendship's House is made of gold
Its doors are open wide
And love and Trust and Happiness
Are ever found inside
It's in the city of the Heart
Where stars shine all year through
For Friendship's House is built of gold
By precious friends like you.

Pen And Picture To Depict Record Of Canadian Army

BY DOUG HOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov 1 —(CP)— The business of seeing that the overseas Canadian soldier of today gets into the history book of tomorrow rests upon a little group of professional historians.

They work under Lt.-Col C P. Stacey of Toronto, a former professor of history at Princeton University, who for two years has been associated with the Historical Section of Canadian Military Headquarters.

The section grew with a growing army and with the object of depicting its activities in word and sketch. Today a mountain of information is being gathered to be forwarded to Ottawa and compiled some day into an official history or histories.

Capt. William Ogilvie of Montreal worked near the front in Sicily, sketching the men and their weapons and the conquered country. As anofficial artist with fighting Canadian troops he was a pioneer. In Sicily, too, was Capt. A.T. Sesia of Hamilton, Ont., an Italian-speaking former infantryman who talked with hundreds of officers and men to gather the news of the fighting.

Their roles will be filled wherever the Canadians go into action. To their material the section can add the facts available from diaries of every unit in the army -- headquarters staffs, battalions and regiments; from the 23,000 subject files and the 180,000 - odd individual files at C.M.H.Q.; from observers like war correspondents; from the multitude of pictures obtained by the army's public relations cameramen; and, as after Dieppe, by talking with many of the men who saw action.

They pore over thousand of words and thousands of pictures, prepare what they think essential and forward it to the chief historian, Col. A.F. Duguid, D.S.O., at Ottawa as the "raw material" for a history. Their art work produced by a staff of four, numbers in the hundreds, ranging from scores of hasty pencil sketches to about 30 oil paintings.

Their written works are the results of laborious research. It took Col. Stacey, working alone, nearly a year to complete the story of Dieppe, His chief assistant, Maj. G.F.G. Stanley, former professor of history at Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B., is compiling the story of the Canadians in France in 1940. The story of Sicily is still a mass of information, not yet written into shape.

The third historian, Capt. W.E.C. Harrison, ex-professor of history at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., is working on the changes in organization and the growth of the army. The burden of preparing a pictorial record of the war rests up on Capt. Eric Heathcote, M.M., Toronto, director of art for T. Eaton Co. in peacetime, and the four artists.

The artists are Capts. Ogilvie and three Toronto men, Capt. Charles Comfort, R.C.A. and Lieuts George Pepper and Lorne Harris, all of them professional. If they work as Ogilvie did they will keep near the front, with sketch book and camera, catching the scenes they want for the time when they can finally drop back to some quiet spot and turn them into oil or watercolor history.

It will be as well for history if they don't have to work at the speed Ogilvie did. The Canadian went through Sicily so fast he had to take a jeep when it was all over and retrace their route to make his work complete.

Gold Big Factor In South Africa

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 1 —(CP)— The tremendous contribution which the South African mining industry has made to the war effort was praised by C.F. Stallard, Minister of Mines.

The government had wanted the mining industry to continue during the war, he said, and that industry was still contributing an enormous proportion of the national income. More than 27,000,000 pounds ($121,500,000) had been contributed out of a national revenue of 90,000,000 pounds, (405,000,000.)

—Some people say gold is not necessary for carrying on the war, Mr. Stallard said, but gold is exchangeable for anything nowadays. Handsome prizes are being paid for gold in North Africa and Asia and especially by people who want to provide against depreciation in currency. It is for the same reason that people are buying diamonds.

A union-wide drive has been launched by the National Road Transportation Council to encourage transport economy so that the country's limited stocks of public and private vehicles can be made to last untill new stocks arrive some years after the end of the war.

Big posters showing a woman shopper carrying parcels of fruits, vegetables and groceries, with the slogan "Save transport, carry parcels home yourself, avoid rush hour transport," have been put up in all large cities.

Wilfred J. Kennedy, chairman of the executive committee of the Associated Chamber of Commerce of South Africa recommends firms pool their transport, that cars be carefully serviced and driven at moderate speed, and that men get over their dislike of being seen carrying parcels.

Greetings for the fifth Christmas of war will be sent on cards of South African manufacture, with South African scenes and the Christmas wishes expressed in either of the official languages. This is the first Christmas since the start of the war that South African has not imported cards.

The Union now is building up a tradition of its own cards, with favorite scenes showing famous African homes. Others are decorated with delicate drawings of indigenous flowers, photographs of animals and sketches of South African scenery.

J.H. Hofmeyer, deputy prime minister and minister of finance and education, speaking in Johannesburg on the eve of the provincial council elections, said: "This is a bilingual country and it is going to remain one. It's therefore right, from the point of view of the country and bilingual citizens of a bilingual country.

National unity, Mr. Hofmeyer said, did not mean uniformity or that all South Africans should be cast in the same mould. It did not mean that the two sections of people should unite with their two languages and their distinctive traditions and that they should be united on the basis of mutual understanding in a spirit of co-operation.

"Speed the Victory" is Theme of Nation-Wide Rail Display

TO SUPPORT the campaign for the Fifth Victory Loan, public display space throughout Canada from coast to coast reserved for the Canadian National Railways is now being filled with colorful material inviting all who look and read to buy bonds. The large exhibit pictured above is being placed in stations at Halifax, Saint John, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver. In bright, bold color it presents a terse message with a dramatic emphasis on the winged V, the symbol of the loan accentuating the need to "Speed the Victory."

Supplementing these very large displays, there are eighty smaller exhibits following the same principle in appeal and scaled to fit the space available. These spots are in stations, and the windows of ticket, express and telegraph offices. Exhibits have also been prepared for the rotundas of Canadian National hotels beginning with a special display at the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa. No patron of Canadian National facilities is being overlooked, seven offices of Trans-Canada Air Lines providing backgrounds for appropriate appeals to buy bonds.

ANGUS SHOPS WORKERS BUY BONDS

Ready and eager to invest in their share of an allied victory, these stalwart members of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus shops, Montreal, await their turn to sign up for a Victory Bond subscription. Their example is being followed by C.P.R. workers across the Dominion who are out to surpass all previous campaigns by a wide margin.
