OUCH! LAME BACK

Rub Backache, Lumbago, Soreness and Stiffness Away—Try This!

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.

CASH! CASH! CASH!

We wish to announce to our many customers that we are going out of credit business, and in future will sell for CASH only. We are confident that this will save money for you.

A Modern Story of Home and Business

GERRY SEEKS HELP

CHAPTER 82.

Robert was so quiet all the evening that Betty asked:

"Is Robert ill? I never knew him to say so little. He's usually full of life. We used to say things commenced to hum when he came around." We were alone in the kitchen. Betty was getting supper.

"No—he isn't ill. But, Betty, he is discouraged over his work. He doesn't get on, you know." My cheeks flushed as I said it. I had been so proud of Robert that even this half apology hurt. But I had to say something.

"Come on out, boys!" Betty called.

Robert still showed no animation. He ate his share of the creamed chicken; then he and Frank smoked while Betty and I cleared away.

"I'm sure he is ill," she remarked. "He doesn't look well, and he is so quiet—and different."

I made some excuse, and we soon left.

"Betty thought you looked ill, Robert. Aren't you feeling well?"

"I'm all right."

He said nothing more all the way home, and scarcely spoke after we reached our room save to answer a question.

"Mary, I want you to lunch with me," I said the next morning. "I have to talk to someone and you're the only one with whom I can talk over my private affairs."

"Little Mary is always on the job when secrets are being told. Reason—she's a clam. Never talks—forgets if it is necessary.

At luncheon I told her first of how Robert had again been staying out, that he had been drinking a little, and frequented the pool room oftener than was good for him. It may not have been a dignified thing to do, but I could not decide upon anything that offered any reasonable surety of making him happier.

"That ail?" she asked, her elbows on the table, he face in her cupped hands.

"No—it isn't all, Mary, and the rest is even harder to tell."

"I guessed there was more."

"I went to see Marion Hovey the other day, and she insulted me terribly, and—"

"Marion Hovey insulted you—I didn't know she had spunk enough."

"She has plenty of spunk," Then I told Mary faithfully all Marion had said. When I repeated what she had said about loving Robert and her father's desire that he would marry her, Mary emitted a prolonged whistle that focused all eyes upon us.

"I'm sorry, Gerry, but honest I couldn't help it," she apologized.

"Don't do it again, please," I begged her, then went on with my story.

"You poor child, you certainly had to take it, didn't you?"

"I should say I did! I was going to tell Robert but after I thought it over I decided not to. I feared it would do more harm than good."

"Wise little Gerry! Never let a man know another girl is in love with him. It makes her more interesting, you know. He likes to find out for himself if it is true. Lots of damage comes from men knowing or thinking girls are in love with them."

"Mary, what shall I do? I will not lose Robert! Marion Hovey shan't have him."

"That's the stuff! He's yours, hang on to him. But, Gerry, do you honestly want me to tell you what to do? What I KNOW you will have to do if you and Robert are ever to be happy?"

"Of course I do, or I shouldn't have asked you. I am nearly crazy, Mary, and so unhappy over all this I have tried so hard."—

"Now listen to little Mary. Then go do as she says."

HINTS FOR The Motorist

BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

PUTTING THE CAR BACK "ON THE JOB"

Disuse Stiffens Car Mechanism As It Does Human Muscles

The following are some of the things to do to a car that has been "jacked up" all winter, when the time comes to put it into service again: Assuming that the tires have been taken off inspect the casings that are to be used, carefully test out the inner tubes, put new valve-plungers into their valves, clean all rust from rim parts and wheel felloes and apply graphite rim compound to the same, then put the tires upon the rims fully inflate them, and mount the rims on the wheels. Take the battery out of storage, make sure that it is fully charged by testing it with the hydrometer and see that it has plenty of water, mount it securely in the car, taking precautions that the holding down clamps are tight, then connect it to its cables using great care that each of these is returned to the terminal from which it was detached in the fall. The surfaces of the terminal posts and cable clamps must be perfectly clean, the parts should be applied to the metal violently, and a coating of vaseline should be applied to the metal around the connections. The engine will most likely be found stiffly "set" and hardly capable of being cranked at first. If so, attach the hand crank ,remove the spark-plugs and squirt a little gasoline into each cylinder to free the gummed oil. Do not try to use the self-starter, but when the engine can be turned over by hand inject oil into each cylinder through its plug hole and spin the engine until it turns perfectly smoothly before replacing the plugs. Close the drain-plugs in the gasoline tank vacuum tank and carburetor bowl (if these were opened to empty the fuel system) and fill the gasoline tank. Also remove the plug in the top of the vacuum tank and put into it a quart or so of gasoline, then after a few minutes, loosen the drain plug of the carburetor bowl to make sure that gasoline enters it as it should, and also look for any tendency to overflow and for leaks in other parts of the system. Replace drain plugs and close drain cocks in the radiator, pump housing and other parts of the cooling system and fill it fully with water, following any special directions that apply to the particuar car. Probably the screw clamps on the hose connections will have to be tightened and the packing-nut on the pump shaft screwed down, in order to stop leaks and the rubber connections and pump packing may have to be replaced. (To be continued.)

WANTED—A POKER-PLAYING PASTOR.

Many unusual advertisements have found their place in the papers from time to time, says the New York "Post," but perhaps none of them can claim precedence over a recent one which reads:—"Wanted, a minister of the gospel for Athapapuskow camp. Must be good poker player. No namby-pamby dude preachers need apply." The best part of it is that the profession has not been seen to hold up its hands in horror at the implication, but on the contrary a young Presbyterian minister has come forward who believes that he can fill the bill. He is undaunted by further details sent out by the copper miners of northern Manitoba to the effect that they want a "heman, who wears a mackinaw jacket and stuffs his pants in his boots, can paddle a canoe, play a good game of poker, and give a good account of himself in a knock-down and drag-out row."

Rev. Arthur R. Basham of Columbus, O., possesed of most of these rare accomplishments and ready to perfect himself wherever he is not yet adept, said that he would rather "be a Santa Claus to the bunch of miners in that Canadian copper camp than a minister to all the elders in Christendom," and that he did not thing the church would fail to supply the kind of preacher wanted. As a circuit rider in northern Manitoba before he went to France as a Y.M.C.A. worker, he had opportunity to know the country well He can tell stories of times when he had to leave his sled and run on the snow behind the dogs to keep from freezing to death, and he says that one of the happiest recollections of his life is of meeting in the North Country with a Cornell graduate turned derelict. "Many a night I have played chess with him all night, trying to help him forget liquor, and one night it was necessary to knock a man down in a saloon because he tempted my friend with a bottle of whiskey. After that they let him alone."

Mr. Bashman has found the deck of cards more help than hindrance in his career.

At the age of eleven years this minister was himself a coal miner in Wales, and he has six brothers working in the mines of Wales at present. Another brother was killed in the world war, in which all of them took part and all were wounded.—From the Toronto Saturday Night.

Mr. Richard E. Johnston, formerly of this city, is a member of the New England Committee of the Nova Scotia Old Home Summer Exposition.

A violinist works a bow—and some girls do likewise, but they spell it differently.

Why do similiar opportunities make a hero of one man and a fool of another.

Medical Quarterly

The Medical Quarterly, the official publication of the Medical Services of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, has completed its first year.

The original purpose of the Quarterly was to place on record the work of the Medical Service of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment, in the broadest interpretation of the term including various allied phases of reconstruction work.

Contributions have been invited not only from the staff of the Department, but also from medical men and others throughout Canada, and abroad, who are in a position to contribute to the general subject of reconstruction medicine.

One of the special objects which it is hoped to realize, and which is new and peculiar to this publication is the presentation of special sectional medical problems and work. Each Province has medical problems and interests more or less peculiar to itself, which it is hoped to be able to present for the mutual benefit of all.

While the scope of the Quarterly covers every branch of medicine, there are several departments in which it has a major interest, owing to the special types of disability with which it has most to do. such are for example the departments of occupational therapy, tuberculosis, neuropsychiatary, incurable conditions and orthopaedics.

During the year numerous articles have been presented dealing with these subjects.

The record of the first year of the publication is an encouraging one and it is believed that it will fill a definite place in the medical literature of the country. It can only succeed, however, through the co-operation of the profession including all members interested in the special problems concerned, and all such are invited to forward contributions.

Youthful in Body And Mind

Never mind your age—as measured by years. How do you feel? That's the thing that counts!

Men scarcely in their thirties—haggard, listless, weak, nervous—men who take no interest in life, just dragging out a weary existence, all in, tired and worn out. Though young in years, they are, nevertheless, old men. Their vital forces are on the wane. They've lost their "punch" and "pep." They feel old—and they look it!

Stay young by keeping your body fit. Keep your nerves, stomach, bowels, liver, kidneys and bladder healthy and active. Build up your strength and health. Nothing will accomplish these results better than

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

The people of Dover and vicinity met at the home of Mr. Peter Matheson on the evening of Friday, March 12 to bid him farewell as he and his family are about to leave Dover and take up their residence at Miltown. An address was read by Robert Whiteway, sr., and a substantial purse presented by Mrs. Angus MacDonald. Mr. Matheson was completely surprised but made a fitting reply thanking the people for the kindness shown towards himself and family. The remainder of the evening was spent in music and games, the music being furnished by Mr. Russel Bowles. After this all done justice to a lunch provided by the ladies. The following address was read:—

To Mr. and Mrs. Matheson and family,

We your friends and neighbors of Dover and vicinity having heard of your intention to depart from our midst have since learned that your intention is about to become a reality. It is with sincere regret that we have met here this evening to bid you farewell and to express our sentiments toward you.

Before you met with the sad accident which caused your disability you were ever ready to assist in any movement that was for the good of our community. And although you have been deprived of associating with your neighbors as on former occasions, yet, we are pleased to notice that the same friendship, the same cheerful greeting, the same genial hand-shake still exists.

In Mrs. Matheson we lose a kind and sympathetic friend, ever ready to help in time of need.

The associations of your family with those from whom they are about to separate is a token of their careful training. When you get settled down in your new surroundings we wish you all peace and happiness for many years to come. Please accept this small gift not for its intrinsic value because friendship, true heart to heart sympathy cannot be purchased with gold or silver but it conveys a more tangible proof of our esteem than mere words.

(Sgd) In behalf of the people of Dover and vicinity.

LIVE HOGS WANTED

We are ready now to receive live hogs, paying as follows, delivered at our packing house, Charlottetown:—

150-275 18 cents
275 up, 16 cents
Brood sows, any weight, 14 cents
all good quality, well fatted.

Delivery may be made on any day except Saturday.

Light hogs, under 150 lbs., are of very little use for packing purposes, and as the chief profit from feeding comes in the last few weeks of finishing, it is respectfully suggested that farmers hold any small hogs, under 150 lbs., until of weight and quality more profitable for all concerned. But should it be necessary to dispose of any such under-weights they will be received at market value, proportionate to above prices.

We also buy at various points throughout the Island and full information can be obtained from our local representatives.
