Mental Tests to be Given at Queen's

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 18.— Within the next few weeks the Department of Philosophy of Queen's University will give a series of mental tests to all freshmen and sophomores in the university. In a result of the tests it is hoped to gain much information which will be of value in assisting students to pick courses suited to their various types of mentality. It will also be possible to determine with in a fair degree of accuracy, whether or not students will have a reasonable chance of success in the profession they propose to follow after leaving college.

Manchus, In Exile, Cling To Etiquette

TIENTSIN, Oct. 18.—Court etiquette of centuries casts a shadow of the once regal supremacy about the throneless majesties of China.

The household clings tenaciously to a vestige of traditional form and decorously observes respect for the young emperor without an empire.

Quaint Greetings Survive

In the small, carefully guarded house in the Japanese concession to which Hsuan Tung, tenth of the great Manchu line of emperors and empress dowagers, adventurously fled two years ago, "Ching An!
Ching An!" the quaint and musical early morning greeting of immemorial usage, are the first words that daily reach the ears of the "Son of Heaven". The Man-chus still are punctilious in their observance of age-old etiquette in the present day travesty of the once great Court now in exile.

As his tutors and more important follows tender their daily greetings to the head of the fallen Ching Dynasty, so does the second consort of Hsuan Tung repair daily to the apartment of the empress and bid her "Ching An!"

But Democracy Knocks

Some of the ancient forms have been modified as a result of more democratic leanings on the part of English official in the East, and of the foreign influences which have had so great a part in the moulding of his character and intellect. His acquired taste for many foreign things occasionally involves him in situations at variance with traditional royal usages, but without loss of inherent dignity.

The new tastes came through his distinguished tutor, a former
the young emperor has admitted to his friendship several of the more cultured foreigners in Tiensin, where his exiled household is established.

Fond Of Dancing

He reads and speaks English, is fond of Western dancing, is learning to drive the new touring car he has just acquired and is particularly interested in Western engineering and mechanical contrivances. He recently visited the leading foreign newspaper and printing offices here and betrayed a most naive and intense curiosity in the various machines and appliances. He went, of course, incognito, and as hundreds of Chinese are employed in the establishment the foreign staff was at great pains to see that there were no untoward occurrences.

The last of the Manchu ruler does not find life too monotonous. He is an active young man with an alert and intensely curious mind and although his movement outdoors is dictated by the cautious

Percy, being down to recite at a "temperance concert" stood up to do or die. He got along all right until he reached the words, "He stood beside the bier!" Then his memory failed him. "He stood beside the bier," he repeated trembling. Some of the audience on the back benches murmured one to another. "He stood beside the bier," groaned Percy, and drew a moist hand across his forehead.
"Go on," cried a voice from the rear. "I'll go flat while you're waiting!"

grimly, "but judging from the
