FIERCE RIOTING IN A PENITENTIARY

(Special to The Guardian.)

PITTSBURG, July 18.—Prisoners in the Western Penitentiary here today broke all bounds of discipline, fired four buildings and for a time kept the institution in an uproar while prison guards, deputy sheriffs and policemen, reinforced by armed citizens, battled to put down the disorder. Six convicts were shot and two others cut in the battle. Prison officials said that three of the four wounded would likely die.

The outbreak, timed to start with the ringing of the first fire gong, began in the dining room, where the convicts sought to detract the attention of guards from the fires. Alarms sounded from four places in the institution almost simultaneously, when guards discovered the prisoners had fired the buildings. Six hundred prisoners had just taken their seats in the big dining room when one of them sent a scotch bowl careening down one of the long tables. Instantly the same moment the fire gong sounded an alarm from the construction shop, the linen shop, the kitchen and the chapel.

Status of a Nation Is What Ireland Wants

(Special to The Guardian.)

LONDON, July 16.—It is almost universally agreed in political circles where every scrap of information available regarding the Irish negotiations is eagerly discussed, that on Friday morning Lloyd George managed to obtain from de Valera a statement of the Irishman's demand for an independent republic.

As one English journalist put it: "So long as Ireland is given the status of a nation, de Valera and his friends are quite willing to sing 'God Save the King.'" This was a graphic way of putting the idea that if Ireland obtains her claim for self-government, she will determine to remain within the commonwealth of British nations.

Under ordinary circumstances there would be a wide opportunity for hair-splitting over the formula in which it would be necessary to set forth such a position and great danger of offending Irish loyalists of both North and South, but in the present atmosphere of official optimism and unofficial hopefulness it is thought that miracles may be accomplished.

An Irish correspondent draws attention in "The Sunday Times" to one of the most significant symptoms of the moment, namely, that "Rarely has a plenipotentiary, de Valera can be so described, departed on a pacific mission in such absence of criticism. His whole party is behind him, and if he can bring back peace few voices will be raised in dissent. Much comfort is drawn from the knowledge that Michael Collins, under whose direction it is generally supposed the gunmen have worked, is strongly desirous of peace. He is tired of being a hunted man, and a safe political post in the Dail Eireann is said to be more in accordance with his wishes than a dangerous, if heroic, existence as a fugitive."

Most informed discussions on the situation finish up with the remark that everything depends on Ulster. How much will de Valera concede and how much will Craig accept?

POWERS FOR ULSTER.

In this connection importance is attached to a report in the Belfast News Letter from its London correspondent, which reads: "What I hear of de Valera's attitude is that the crisis has been reached. His compromise demand, it appears, is dominion home rule for Ireland on Canadian lines. Ulster can have all self-governing powers with such safeguards as may be required provided she derives them from a central Irish authority. On the unity of Ireland the Sinn Fein leader is insistent. Furthermore, he takes the view that it is for him and Lloyd George to arrange the terms and for the latter to settle with Ulster, and he has intimated that any settlement which he might regard as satisfactory would have to be submitted for ratification by Dail Eireann."

"Whether this line of argument will appeal to loyal Ulster or not remains to be seen. It is being freely pointed out in Ireland that the unity of Ireland, if it becomes a political reality, means the complete domination of Ulster, and that Ulster has nothing to lose but everything to gain."

Though, as stated, some importance is attached to the Belfast News Letter's report, which is regarded as likely to be fairly authoritative and a good guide to the general principles of a settlement, the Irish Office today issued the following statement: "Reports to the effect that Mr. de Valera has offered Ulster all powers possessed under the Home Rule Act should be accepted with reserve. But at any rate, nothing has occurred to destroy hopes of an eventual settlement, which is the desire of all parties."

The impression which Lloyd George and de Valera have made upon each other is said to have been favorable and conducive to a successful continuance of the conversations. There was nothing dramatic or overbearing on either side. Each was impressed by the others desire of peace.

Paris, July 17.—The latest news from Asia Minor shows that the Greeks have bitten deep into the Turk defenses. The chief point of interest today is the strongly fortified position of Koutahia, about midway between Afium Karahissar, which the Greeks took a few days ago, and Eski-Shehr, where they suffered their disastrous defeat last spring. The Greek forces are assailing Koutahia from the west and southeast and it is expected the position will have fallen by the time these lines are in print.

The Greek advance will then be directed against Eski-Shehr, which is the centre of the Turkish defenses and the principal Greek objective. Greek circles in Paris stress the fact that their army has learned a lesson from its former defeat. The latter they attribute to the rashness of the Greek general command. The northern forces, who broke alone at Eski-Shehr from Brussa without waiting to synchronize the turning move of the main body of the Greek forces east and north from Afium and Koutahia, it is the latter strategy that is to be put into effect now.

The Gallipoli and Palestine campaigns proved the strength and weakness of the Turkish army. Against a frontal attack their defence is magnificent but once they are outflanked and in danger of their retreat being cut off they won't stand.

A raid of Greek cavalry, which has been doing good work during the past week around the left flank of the Turkish defenses at Eski-Shehr would open the way for an advance of the main forces which are reported amply equipped with artillery and machine-guns.

The French press affects to minimize the Greek successes and declares the Turks have not yet been forced to fight, but Turkish circles here are not devoid of real anxiety. Meanwhile the Eclair, which is believed closely connected with Premier Briand, announces today that an agreement virtually has been reached between France and the Turkish plenipotentiary Bekir Sami Bey.

The chief points are: (1) France renounces the benefits of the Treaty accorded by which Asia Minor was divided into spheres of influence by Italy, France and England. (2) The French give up the demand that the Turkish gendarmerie be established in Cilicia. (3) The French army, (4) France agrees to withdraw from Cilicia. (5) The Turks agree to engage French instructors for the army and gendarmerie in general. (6) The port of Alexandretta which the Turks claimed to remain a part of French Syria but the Turks to receive economic privileges.

The Eclair says nothing about French help for the Turks to achieve their national aspirations—expulsion of the Greeks from Smyrna and the establishment of a single independent Turkish Government at Constantinople, which, it is understood, the Turks were asking before. Nor is there anything about a separate peace between Japan and Turkey. If France is to maintain solidarity with Great Britain that point of the new agreement must be ratified by the respective governments before its becomes valid.

De Valera issued the following statement this evening: "The press gives the impression that I have been making certain compromise demands. I have made no demand but one—the only one I am entitled to make. That is that the self-determination of the Irish nation shall be recognized."

The issuance of this statement is believed to have been directly due to reports in Paris and London that de Valera was shelving the independent republic claim on the understanding that he would be offered what was termed "a practical equivalent." Exactly what equivalent was meant was not explained.

De Valera has already said that as he had received a mandate for a republic from the Irish people he could not withdraw from that position unless so instructed by the people themselves. It is considered possible that he may receive the Government proposals, modified by his own views, conditional on his submission later to the Irish people for the decision.

When he attended mass at Southwick Cathedral today, the Republican leader had another audience at the hands of Irish sympathizers. What is happening behind the scenes in the consultations of the Irish parties preliminary to the renewal of the conversations between Lloyd George and de Valera on Monday is screened by what Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, termed this morning "a rigid silence."

Sir James used this phrase in explaining to interviews his belief that everything depended upon the way the question was handled.

"The slightest indiscretion or misrepresentation," he said, "may easily cause incalculable harm. What will best aid the attainment of peace is for everyone concerned to withhold comment outside of official consultations."

SOCIAL WELFARE WORK DISCUSSED LAST NIGHT

(Special to The Guardian.)

Important problem, namely, the care of delinquent boys. At Truro an institution for the care of delinquent girls is provided but the boys have no place of this kind. The speaker emphasized the importance of getting busy at once and providing a place suitable for the subject.

Professor Tait followed with an admirable and comprehensive address upon the care of mental defectives. His address was illustrated with lantern slides, operated by Dr. Shearer.

The meeting was a most inspiring one and at the conclusion both speakers were warmly applauded.

Yesterday Dr. Shearer conferred with the executive of the provincial Social Service Council upon the subject which he so strongly advocated in his address last night.

Next week Prof. Tait will make a careful inspection of the children at this Orphanage. Dr. Shearer in an interview last night expressed a hope that this splendid institution would be re-named "The Children's Home" as this conveyed a truer meaning of its purpose. "The orphanage already shelters many children who are not orphans," he pointed out.

A Truce Ordered In LaPres Riot

(Special to The Guardian.)
MONTREAL, July 19.—A truce was ordered last night by Mr. Justice Lamer between the forces of rival detective agencies who are trying to get possession of the LaPres, one set acting for Eugene Edouard Berthiaume and other for the eldest brother Arthur. According to the operatives left the building last evening and Eugene and Edouard once more had access to their office from which they were shut out on Friday last. The men are still on duty near the building however, ready to step in on a moment's notice if some sort of a compromise is not effected to-day. It was stated that the situation has become so desperate that unless they intervened there might be an open breach of peace which might result in somebody being murdered.

N. B. Gold Hunters

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 17.—From Victoria County comes the story of gold hunters swarming over the country drained by the Waplesse River, and panning the sands of the stream in search of the yellow metal. Prospectors are there from all parts of Canada and the United States. The most experienced miners of the continent are seeking to find gold that has been vainly sought for many years.

The Giberton lode is what they are looking for. The story of that gold has been a favorite in New Brunswick for years and many a legend has centred about the lode. The searchers claim to have made discoveries that indicate the presence in the district of large quantities of gold, but so far the location of the Giberton lode remains a mystery.

RAIN CHECK FIRE MENACE

FREDERICTON, N. B., July 19.—Although no reports were received by the forest department today it is thought that last night's rains will have extinguished several forest fires which were reported to be burning briskly in different parts of the province yesterday.

STREET CAR TROUBLE

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 19.—An application presented at the city hall today protesting the use of the one man car because the safety exit at the rear entrance was not an adequate protection was countered by a protest by the Power Co. Hiney cars to be run by its former employees. It was shown that jitneys were not provided with a rear exit and that the only door they were equipped with was placed on the wrong side of the car.

REGINA, July 19.—Saskatchewan's leadership over the other provinces of the Dominion in the production of oats and hard spring wheat is clearly shown in a summary that has been completed by the Provincial Department of Agriculture. The bulletin covers the growing season of 1920 and it shows that out of a total of 530,709,700 bushels of oats grown in the whole of Canada (Saskatchewan produced 141,549,000 bushels.

Saskatchewan Leads In Oats and Wheat

(Special to The Guardian.)
OTTAWA, July 19.—Dr. Magill, Secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange who was here yesterday, is of the opinion that there will be no difficulty in marketing the Western wheat crop despite the United States tariff. Dr. Magill intimated that English buyers are already in the market for vast quantities of Canadian grain and that the United States will have to buy large quantities in any event. Indications at present are for a banner crop.

U.S. Tariff No Bar Against Western Wheat

(Special to The Guardian.)

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 17.—Residents of the Oakwood district were aroused early Sunday morning by two shots fired in rapid succession, and then, after an interval long enough to reload, they heard two more, while duckshot splattered against walls and windows some distance away. Citizens sticking their heads out of upper story windows saw a man pressed in his nightgown blazing away at a tree with a shotgun. To a policeman who arrived, he explained that the sparrows had disturbed his slumber, and he was trying to bring them down. He gave his name as William Hendrie, and he was taken to the police station, where a charge of drunkenness was entered against him.

Potted at Sparrows In His Nightshirt

At the Geddes Memorial Church in French River, near which stands a fine monument to the heroes of the community who died in the war, a deeply impressive memorial service was held last Sunday July 17th. The monument was unveiled a year ago and it is the intention of the people who erected it to have an annual memorial service as the years go by and the greatness of their service to humanity becomes more and more manifest.

The surrounding of the monument was made beautiful with moss and flowers, such as the boys love so well, and upon the flowers were laid copies of the Kings Scroll. Some solace to the hearts of those who have been bereaved.

The service was conducted by the Rev. George Millar and the Rev. C. W. Neish.

Greater love hath no man than this and greater death hath no man than this. That a man lay down his life for his friends, rang clear through the whole service.
