HOPE

A little while the labor, Eternal the repose; A little while the trials, That with this life will close And then unending gladness And an unfading crown, A day on whose calm beauty The sun goes never down, A little while in exile, With no abiding place, And then the Home eternal Unveiled the Bridegroom's face, Is any cross too heavy Or any task too hard That Jesus lays upon thee And Jesus will reward? One night the shadows linger, And then the morning breaks And God's own hand the burden From weary shoulders takes And thou shalt see His glory, And hear His words "Well done," The strife forever over, The battle fought and won We need so much the Cross we bear. It draws us to Thy feet in prayer, And scotches our weary weight of care.

NO CROPS BUT FOR BIRDS

The statement made by the Dominion Entomologist that the annual loss to Canada in field, orchard and garden crops, due to destructive insects is more than $200,000,000 emphasizes the importance of relationship of birds to agriculture. Were it not for the consumption of insects by birds the injury and loss to domestic animals and crops would be far greater than it is.

At present prices the droppings of a hen for one year are worth about $2.

A Rare Treat for Music Lovers Of Prince Edward Island

FOUR BIG DAYS OF OPERA AT THE PRINCE EDWARD THEATRE COMMENCING WEDNESDAY JULY 19TH.

It is contrary to the genius of light opera to expect that any of the species can be turned into a thing of beauty for the spirit. Yet it must be said that the Boston English Opera Co. does precisely this with Auber's melodramatic but melodically sparkling light opera, "Fra Diavolo." This opera has always been a favorite on account of its melodic charms—its radiates pure melody all the way through. But, it is also a dramatic and melodramatic opera, the exuberant fun and satire would remain just hilarious fun and nonsense, if it were not elevated, as it is in several places, by special episodes of music and dramatic seriousness which affect the spirit with a sort of religious emotion and pure lyric beauty. That is to say, the Boston English Opera Co., with Auber's "Fra Diavolo" as their offering for the night of their engagement full heart. As the two bands will be not only feasts of dulcet tone in solo, duet, trio, quartet and chorus, and of sheer mirth-making as "side-dishes" of the menu, of incisive drama, genuine melodrama, but sent away merely entertained, also somewhat purified in spirit by certain winning episodes, the whole proving conclusively that the company when it undertakes to achieve distinction does so with an artistry beyond criticism. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the music-lovers of the city will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear the Boston English Opera Co's production of "Fra Diavolo."

Remarkably impressive is the production of "Fra Diavolo" with its lilted choruses, the pretty costumes and carvings reveal nothing of the mountain back of the inn, and the really fine stage set is a real achievement by Mr. Gregor. The "pieces de resistance" of the opera, Thomas. The "pieces de resistance" of the opera, Thomas. The "pieces de resistance" of the opera, Thomas.

of one supreme being later emerged, while pointing to the evolutionary nature of religion, throw no light on the origin of the monotheistic concept.

WOULD CARRY MAILS BY TRUCKS

If it should happen that every mail train throughout the United States would cease to run the Postoffice Department announces that it would continue to transport the mails throughout the country by motor truck and aeroplane. The department has in service 4,300 motor trucks, with approximately 2,000 in storage. The War Department has thousands of trucks stored in every section of the country. All of these stored trucks would be available for use within a very short time. In order to be ready for a possible complete tie-up of mail train service, the War Department is preparing for the Postoffice Department a complete list of its motor trucks and their location.
