JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

BY DELLA E. STEWART

We women are great at organizing. We can plan and carry out the plans for new societies and public efforts; we can organize our friends and our church associates and our families; we can coordinate our daily work. But sometimes we forget that we can organize ourselves, too—our muscles and our nerves and our minds.

It's amusing to watch some people work. No wonder that night finds them with every power of body exhausted, with nerves a-tingle. They have not learned to organize their movements. When we consciously try to see how much we can accomplish with the greatest saving of energy and motion we are surprised sometimes to see what a surplus we have been putting into even the smallest tasks. We think that home work is so insignificant that we just need to go ahead and do it; the method does not count for much if we only accomplish the tasks set for that day. But a few minutes spent in planning the work, in thinking just what order the tasks should take, and making one doveltail into the other—this will surprisingly simplify our day, give us a little of spare time here and there, and leave us when evening comes not "all tired out" but with some energy left for family pleasures or outside diversion.

The useless movements, the retracing steps for little, forgotten errands or details, the fatiguing effects of worry and ill temper and of feeling rushed, all these can give way to well-ordered and pleasant endeavor. We can so organize our mental and physical powers that whatever our work may be, it may be accomplished with zest. Isn't such organization well worth while?

FORTY FEET OF CLOTH IN AN INDIAN TURBAN.

In India the turban worn to protect the head from excessive heat, and the thickness varies according to the climate in each locality. These turbans are made of cloth of from twenty to forty feet long and wrapped around the head in endless variety, according to rank and taste. All those who can afford it wear a band ten to twelve feet long, made either partly or wholly of gold thread, on top of the turban. There are a number of accessories worn in combination with the turban. One beautiful ornament, limited to the use of kings, princes and nobles, is a beautifully embroidered velvet band about six inches long and two broad, in the middle of which is inserted a gold plate set with precious stones. This is worn obliquely in front of the turban, and the band is tied behind by means of a silk thread fastened to each end.

On a Sunday morning in March, 1917, while he was in the county jail at San Bernardino, Switzerland, awaiting trial, Ramon Garcia, ex-convict, drew upon the wall of his box-like cell a picture of Christ on the Cross. John N. Hilliard, in Everybody's, tells us that "With the stub of an old pencil borrowed from an accommodating jailer—genius has ever made use of the first tool that comes to hand—the first fashioned a remarkable picture. And straightway certain events outside of the established order happened. Like concentric rings upon the face of the water, the fame of it spread, crossing the Sierras of the Snows, going beyond the Rockies, eventually reaching the Atlantic hinterland. The man who had penciled the picture on the steel wall had long since gone to prison, but the cell he had occupied in the county jail had become a veritable shrine. And the town of San Bernardino had become a place of great pilgrimages."

A man went into a barber's shop and, taking off his hat and coat, said he wanted his hair cut. He was completely bald save for a little fringe of hair at the back of his head! He sat down in the chair and the barber put the sheet around him.

"Oh, barber," said the man, "shall I take off my collar?"

"No, sir," said the barber, "you can keep yer 'at on if yer like."

Several Killed In Rome Riot

(Dom. Press Special.)
ROME, May 25.—Four policemen and a civilian were killed and two policemen and nine civilians, including two women were seriously injured in a clash resulting from a demonstration by students in connection with the celebration on the anniversary of Italy's entry into the war. The police attempted to disperse a crowd of students when some one unknown fired upon the authorities. The police returned the fire and a small battle ensued.

EDITING AN ADDER
The paragraphs that appeared in some of the English papers stating that a number of school children in Leicestershire had been "attacked" by a 3-foot adder, should have had a little sub-editing, says a writer in the London Daily Chronicle. To many people every British snake is an adder, but neither kind attacks anything but its natural small prey. It was probably the children that did all the attacking. Adders have very rarely been found approaching a length of 3 feet.

In the present case the reptile, no doubt, was the inoffensive, and non-poisonous grass-snake, as indicated by the finding of its "nest," containing many eggs. The adder does not lay eggs, but retains them until the young are hatched. With these corrections the item of news may pass.

FINGER PRINTS FOUND IN BABYLON.

A group of valuable historic tablets from the excavations of the city of Babylon, bearing dates as far back as three and a half centuries before the Christian era, was recently secured. Several of the pieces carry the distinct prints of the fingers which molded them over 4,000 years ago. One sundried contract bears the name of Darius, the Persian King of Babylon, and is dated in the second year of his reign. The system of characters on the tablets is composed of horizontal, vertical or oblique triangular strokes. This cuneiform writing, it is said, was first adopted by the Babylonians after its invention by a people called Sumerians, and was used by them from about 4500 B.C. It passed from them to the Assyrians, who used it with some changes, notably in recording the life and deeds of the kings on the surface of terra cotta bricks.

TWO WELL-KEPT SECRETS

There are two trade secrets at least that the world at large may never know, but which it is well worth the while of inventors to study, writes Mr. Albert Wildson in the "Electrical Experimenter." One is the Chinese method of making the bright and brilliant colour known as vermilion, or Chinese red, and the other is a Turkish secret—the inlaying of the hardest steel with gold or silver. Among the Chinese and Turks these two secrets are guarded well. Apprentices before they are taken for either trade, are compelled to swear an ironclad oath to reveal nothing of what passes in the workshops. They must also belong to families of high standing, must pay a large sum of money as a guarantee, and must furnish certificates of good character and honesty. These secrets have been handed down faithfully from one generation to another for hundreds of years.

He was a Chinaman. He ran a laundry and no one ever heard him speak a word of English. I often wondered why he had not learned our beautiful language. But to my queries he only shook his head.

One day when I paid for my weekly wash he returned less change than usual. "You've short changed me, Ping Pong!" I cried.

Ping Pong smiled blandly, showed me his Americanization of Foreign Merchants certificate and, speaking for the first time in faultless English, replied: "No; I've raised."

Delays are Dangerous. Order your Fox Netting today; tomorrow may be too late.

Don't forget to state width, size of mesh, and gauge of wire when ordering.

LAWN GRASS

CARTER'S CHOICE EVERGREEN LAWN GRASS SEED.

To quickly secure a permanent, rich, green grassy carpet sow our Evergreen mixture. It is the purest, cleanest and heaviest lawn grass seed offered. No weed seeds. A beautiful lawn can be made in six or eight weeks by sowing this mixture. Quantity required per acre (4,840 square yards) 80 lbs., or for a plot 20x20, 1 lb. 35c., postpaid 40c.

Our own Grass Seed is American grown. The different grasses composing the Mixture are imported separately and blended in the proportions and after the formula of a celebrated American Lawn Maker.

On nearly all lawns there are unsightly bare spots under shade of trees, which have baffled all efforts to get into grass, but with this mixture there need be no further difficulty. It is a combination of lime, dwarf-growing, evergreen varieties, hardy, and will stand a long season of dry weather. The ground for a new lawn should be a rich, mellow soil, perfectly free from weeds. Sow the seeds as early in the spring as possible, roll the ground perfectly level; the grass should be cut often and never allowed to attain a length of over three inches.
