That Body of Hours

By James W. Barton, M.D.
THE HEART IS A TOUGH ORGAN

As the greatest single cause of death is heart disease, it might be thought that the heart is a complicated and delicate organ. As a matter of fact, the heart is about the simplest acting organ in the body—just a pump—whereas the liver stores sugar, filters poisons from the blood, manufactures bile which breaks up fats, kills harmful organisms and is a natural purgative.

What about the strength of the heart? It is because it is a weak or delicate organ that it is the most frequent cause of death?

Dr. Paul D. White, Harvard, in Clinical Medicine and Surgery, says:

"The undue stress which is now being laid on heart disease has caused many cases of heart neurosis thinking you have a heart disease when none is present) and has made many patients miserable unnecessarily. A patient with a damaged heart may live long and happily. We must learn to recognize the difference between immediate and later danger in these cases. The heart is a "tough" organ which will stand much abuse and recover even after serious damage."

"Most people think that if coronary disease (damage to little vessels carrying the blood to the heart walls or muscles) occurs, the patient will die in a short time, or be an invalid the rest of his life. The fact is that thousands of such cases die of fear, free from all heart symptoms."

"A patient with coronary disease can live happily for many years if he will use common sense and follow his doctor's orders. If he will remain in bed for a few weeks at times, avoid large meals and late hours, he may not be permanently disabled, though he may be for a short while."

Dr. White says that the above statements apply also to other forms of heart disease such as tachycardia—very rapid beating of the heart—and rheumatic heart disease.

The point then is that the heart is a tough organ—muscle—and can stand a great amount of damage without death occurring. One of the greatest dangers in cases of including the heart, by fear.

The heart may be damaged but can still carry half its former load. Heart disease is always a serious condition but you may last for many years by "using common sense and following your doctor's orders."

Are Chauffeurs For Royalty

OTTAWA, April 26—The two chauffeurs who will drive for royalty in Canada next month have never been involved in automobile accidents nor have they ever been summoned for traffic regulation offences. Thomas Southgate, private chauffeur for the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, and Robert Lay, Prime Minister Mackenzie King's private chauffeur, were chosen today by the Inter-Departmental Committee in charge of the tour of the King and Queen.

The Canadian Government has ordered four special automobiles built for the royal tour. They will each have a wheelbase of 155 inches, longest in Canada. Two of the cars will be on hand wherever Their Majesties need such transportation. The other two will be in transit to the next such point.

WANTS SHARPENING UP

CAPE TOWN — (CP) — Sixth third annual report of the Hamilton South Africa Rugby Club here reports a favorable season, but deplores the "lack of keenness" of younger players. The club was established in 1875.

WINNERS LOSE
 MELBOURNE, Australia — (CP) — Here's one contest where the winners don't get the prizes. In the Victoria Soap Derby, one of the prizes, won by a boy, was a permanent wave, and another, a box of cigarettes.
