THEY HAD TO SEE PARIS

By Homer Croy

Had Pike only known it, Mademoiselle Claudine's appearance had nothing to do with anything so variable and uncertain as the wind.

And she put her little hand into his in a good-by. The indignation of Versailles was upon him. How charming and refreshing it was to talk to one so vivacious and blooming.

"Don't be rushed off, Say," he said boldly, "how'd you like some tea?" Never in his life had Pike taken anybody to tea; and only a few times, since he had come to Paris, had he gone with Mrs. Peters. In his opinion it was not a man's drink.

"Oh, I am always happy in my little apartment," she said. The tea was delicious; Pike no longer felt tired. In some marvelous way the world had turned from flat drab to golden sunshine.

"Now, Minou, you must make yourself on ze floor," said Claudine, and in lifting Minou out of Pike's lap her hand lingered like a sweet perfume on his arm. "Don't you like Minou?"

"All right, let's do that." In a few minutes Mademoiselle Claudine pushed a button; from some mysterious part of the building there was an answering click, and the street door opened. A moment later Pike

New Brunswick Lady Gives all the Credit to Dodd's Kidney Pills

Turtle Creek, N. B., Jan. 28.—(Special)—"I have used Dodd's Kidney Pills for my kidney trouble and find them to be a wonderful help," states Mrs. W. Berry, a well known resident of this place.

That Mrs. Berry's trouble came from her kidneys is evidenced by the relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. Many women suffer periodically with backache, and, as middle age approaches, the pain increases in severity.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. MICHAEL MURPHY

A sad gloom was cast over Panmure Island and vicinity, when it was learned on the afternoon of Dec. 31st, that Michael Murphy a beloved and respected citizen of Panmure had passed to his eternal reward at the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

His remains, accompanied by his three sons and two daughters, arrived in Montserrat on Friday Jan. 3rd, where it was met by a large concourse of his neighbors and friends and conveyed to the home of his brother Philip at Sturgeon.

Mr. Murphy married early in life. His chosen partner was Margaret, daughter of the late Adam Wright. They moved shortly after to a new farm on Panmure where by industry and thrift they built for themselves and their large family one of the finest homes in Sturgeon parish.

The late Mr. Murphy was one of the outstanding citizens of King's County, always taking a deep interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the community.

found himself in a tiny elevator, standing quite close beside Claudine. She touched a button, there was a soft whirring, and the little box began to mount. Mysteriously it gave a click and stopped of its own accord at the right floor and they got out.

"Zat ces Minou," said Claudine as a sleek cat came stretching toward them. "Yesterday she was a very bad Minou. When I go out to practise my singing she creep along ze wall and go into ze next apartment and when I come back and look into her eyes I know somezing ees wrong. Now zey have no golden feesh."

"Oh," said Claudine, "she loves you. I will tell you eet ees ze bon compliment."

"She's a nice cat," said Pike and stroked Minou. "Nice kitty, nice kitty," he repeated while his eyes searched the room.

"Tea was prepared and Claudine came in with a little table and placed it in front of him. She fluttered charmingly around the room, singing snatches of songs, floating by to give a stroke on Minou's back as she passed.

"Yes, I am always happy in my little apartment," she said. The tea was delicious; Pike no longer felt tired. In some marvelous way the world had turned from flat drab to golden sunshine.

"Now, Minou, you must make yourself on ze floor," said Claudine, and in lifting Minou out of Pike's lap her hand lingered like a sweet perfume on his arm. "Don't you like Minou?"
