SPORTING NEWS

The big boxing tournament staged by the Kinsmen Club at the Sporting Club next Tuesday night promises to give the sporting public plenty of action for their money. Boxing teams from the army at Beach Grove Inn, the H.M.C.S. Charlottetown and the R.A.F. will compete.

• • • •

Coaches of the different teams have been training their fighters for over a month now and the fighters are reported to be in tip top condition. A total of fourteen bouts will be held with practically all weights represented.

• • • •

The Provincial government which has always shown a keen interest in the military forces has generously donated silver cups for the winners of the various bouts. In addition a large silver trophy, donated by the Kinsmen Club, is to go to the winning team of the tournament.

• • • •

Another good feature of the fights will be that the seating plan has been arranged so as to avoid congestion and confusion. A number of ushers will be in attendance to conduct fans to their seats.

• • • •

Proceeds of the tournament go to the Kinsmen Milk for Britain Fund. This fund which was started a year ago by the National Association of Kinsmen Clubs has already delivered nearly 5,000,000 quarts of milk in Britain to the needy children. The need is extremely great and a steady supply will have to be maintained in order to defeat Hitler's most useful weapon . . . malnutrition.

• • • •

Patriotic citizens as well as the sport lovers are therefore urged to make it a point to attend next Tuesday night's show and in addition to witnessing a general boxing card also help out in a most worthy cause.

• • • •

It is doubtful if ever before in the history of professional sports a manager has been faced with the task which confronts Manager Lester Patrick of the Rangers. But it is one which he gladly faces because, as he proudly points out, "Nine of my boys have joined the armed forces of the United States and Canada since the close of last season."

• • • •

When Manager Patrick and Coach Frank Boucher watched their regulars file on the ice for their first practice of the season only eight of last year's team were on hand. Babe Pratt and Ott Heller were on the defense, but among the missing were Art Coulter, now in the U.S. Coast Guard and Bill Juzda of the R.C.A.F.

• • • •

The forward line of Lynn Patrick, Bryan Hextall and Phil Watson that finished the season with Hextall leading the league's snipers, Lynn in second place two points behind and Watson in fourth position only two points back was very much in evidence. But to offset this the equally strong trio of Neil and Mac Colville and Alex Shibicky was gone. These boys enlisted last week in the Canadian Army.

• • • •

Clint Smith, Alf Pike and Grant (Knobby) Warwick are being counted on, but a third line is just a hope right now, as Alan Kuntz, Norm Burns and Norm Tustin have already joined the colors.

• • • •

Patrick and Boucher's biggest headache, however, will be finding a suitable goaltender.

• • • •

Clarence (Happy) Day, striving mightily to justify the nickname but not quite succeeding, bleakly predicted that Detroit Red Wings will win the National Hockey League title this year.

• • • •

After cartfully assessing the problems confronting his Toronto Maple Leafs in hockey's fourth wartime season, Day took Red Wings as first choice, selected Montreal Canadiens as contenders declared "the rest is wide open" and declined to speculate where Leafs will finish.

• • • •

"I see by the papers that the race is supposed to be between our club and the Wings," said the 41-year-old former defenseman now starting his third term as coach of the Stanley Cup champions. "All I can say is that I'll be a very happy fellow if the press notices are correct. Frankly, I'm not that optimistic."

• • • •

Day's worries began even before training sessions opened October 13 at this Niagara peninsula city. From last year's team which brought the Stanley Cup to hockey's hottest centre after one of the most amazing comebacks in playoff history, eight men have been taken by the armed forces — Wally Stanowski, Bingo Kampman, Ernie Dicken, Pete Langelle, Don Metz, Nick Metz, Johnny McCreedy and Bob Goldham. Also missing from the 1941-42 cast is Gordie Drillon, now with Canadiens.

• • • •

On top of that, tightening of selective service regulations and government draft laws prevented four promising players from even reporting at camp, and nipped four others after their arrivel here.

• • • •

Last year at this time, Leafs had seven defencemen in camp. This season there are only two seasoned rearguards—Bucko McDonald and Reggie Hamilton. McDonald probably will be paired with Hank Goldup, a left winger now being converted into a defenceman.

• • • •

It's a question whether Goldup can learn to play the strange position defensively as well as offensively. Hamilton's defence partner will be Bob Copp, Slim, 160-pound Port Elgin, N.B., youngster who has never played professional before. Walter (Turk) Broda has no opposition for the netminder's job.

Bruins Keep Rookie Strength A Secret

By OWEN CHANNON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

MONTREAL, Oct. 2888 — (CP) — Art Ross, coach of the Boston Bruins of the National League, is keeping his rookie strength a secret this year. When asked today if he had formed any decision, he answered briefly: "I have nothing to say."

The Bruins have only 11 players left from last year's team and in order to fill up his ranks is seems certain that Ross will have to select at least some of the youngsters who have been participating in the Boston training sessions.

The most likely choice should be the kid-line of Bill Shill, Armand (Bep) Guidolin and Donny Gallenger, for this trio has outshone all other rookies who have turned out to date.

All three were in Junior Leagues last year, Shill, 19 years old, coming from the Toronto young Rangers, Guidolin, 17, from Oshawa Generals, and Gallenger, 17 from the St. Catharines Junior B entry.

The trio has been working well as a unit, although their individual performances have not been spectacular.

When a member of the kid-line has been separated from the others, the calibre of play has dropped, for each seems to depend on the others in and so far cannot co-ordinate properly with other forwards.

But they have scoring ability, and that is what counts in the final analysis.

Whirlaway Wins Easily

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 —(AP) — Sixty-nine horses raced for all they were worth at Pimlico today, but the 70th ran around the track unopposed and won all the glory and a major portion of the money distributed.

Warren Wright's Whirlaway, running his 55th race in nearly three years, won his 30th victory in a walkover to take down the $10,000 invitational Pimlico special.

The purse raised his all-time winnings to $538,336, or $100,606 more than the record of his nearest rival, Seabiscuit whose mark Whirly surpassed when he won the Massachusetts handicap on July 15 of this year.

The Exterminator handicap, the gruelling test which shared the spotlight with Whirly's walkover, went to I. Bieber's Bright Gallant, the even money favorite.

The winner covered the two miles and 70 yards in 3:30 4-5, and returned $4.00, $2.70 and $2.20 at the mutuels.

Whirlaway walked across the infield as the Exterminator was over and when the bugle sounded he went with his lead horse and the two outriders up past the stands to the head of the stretch.

With jockey Georgie Woolf aboard, starter Jim Milton waved his flag and the Calumet Comet was off.

A crowd of 8,000 persons gave him an ovation as he came to the wire in 2:05 2-5 for the mile and three sixteenths.

The nine other horses invited to compete, including Mrs. Albert Sabath's Alsab, had declined to contest the sixth running of the special.

LONDON, Oct. 27 — (C P) — One of this old world's oddities, the Society of One-Armed Golfers, held its annual two-way tourney and proved once again that absence of an arm is no deterrent to first class golf.

George Jackson, for instance, made a 280-yard drive. He gets distance consistently and holds the long-drive title of the society.

A field of 50 toured the Sudbury course and the Sir Ian Hamilton Trophy for disabled ex-servicemen went to G.L. Watson of Edinburgh with a gross of 87. Sandy Lewis of Saltcoats, Scotland, won the Kemsley Cup, for players injured other than in the war, with a gross 94, less a 20 handicap.

Sandy plays with his left hand and thereby hangs a tale: The arm was injured in the Battle of Jutland and was useless ever after. A few years ago, Sandy, as a disabled service man, won the Hamilton cup. Later, the arm was severed in a railway accident, thereby making him eligible for the Kemsley competition. He says it was "sheer good luck" when he lost the arm outright because "it was no darn good anyway."

With players from throughout Britain competing the English team won the International match.

The society was formed after a tournament conceived in 1931 by a man who lost an arm 11 days before the Armistice.

Baron Von Cramm internationally-known German tennis ace of pre-war years, has lost both feet as the result of war wounds, according to a report from the Nazi-held countries. He is one of six brothers in the Nazi armed forces.

Von Cramm was convicted of "moral delinquencies" by a German court in 1938 and sent to jail for a year. The offence, however, didn't prevent his being accepted as a soldier soon after war began.

Another of the rare items of underground sport news from Europe has it that the last heard of Mlle. Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Poland's leading woman tennis player, she was working as a waitress in a small restaurant on the outskirts of Warsaw. Her family was said to be destitute.

The report added that Jadwiga made herself more popular than ever when she snubbed Max Schmeling in this restaurant after he held out his hand to her. The previous time they met was at a joint dinner in their honor in New York.

Even before the war Miss Jedrzejowska was popular with everyone — except newspaper typesetters. That name got them.

LONDON, Oct. 28 — (CP) — Hard-luck story of the week: Eddie Steward, formerly of Bradford and Southport Football Clubs, is 26, hard as a drill major's heart, and until recently was a physical training instructor in a crack British regiment. He wanted more action and applied for transfer to the air force as a gunner or to the Commandos or the Paratroops. In short, Eddie yearned to liquidate a few Nazis.

He received his transfer just the other day. He went to another unit—as a helper in the stores' department.

Tragedy: Preston North End were travelling to Scotland to play Glasgow Rangers in a charity football match and broke their journey to visit their former winger, David Willacy, a fighter pilot.

They arrived at the station in high spirits only to find that a couple of hours earlier David had been killed in action.

Perseverance: Jimmy Tompkins fought his way up through Fulham junior soccer teams until in 1939 at the age of 27 he was a regular left-half on Fulham's big-league team. When war came Jimmy joined as a private and fought his way up all over again. Now he's a major and believed to be the only peacetime professional footballer to have attained this rank.

Oddity in the News: Police attended a Bath City-Swansea Town soccer match with a bucket of disinfectant. Each time the ball went out of bounds into adjoining fields, ball and shoes of the men who retrieved it were washed in the liquid. Foot and mouth disease has struck nearly every head of cattle in the district.

Dynamo Sports Club, one of the oldest sports societies in Russia, replied thusly to a message of greeting in which the Arsenal Gunners football club expressed desire to visit the Soviet and play some football after the war:

"We certainly await with impatience the day when we shall be able to meet you on the football field. Just now we are possessed by a single thought—to rout the Hitlerite hordes.

"You write that the hour is near when the sportsmen of Britain will display their fighting ability on the territory of Europe. We are glad to read this statement which reflects the spirit of our

Queen Square Winners Over P.W.C. Team

The Queen Square School rugby team beat the second P.W.C. High School team 13-3, in yesterday's game at Victoria Park. The game was fast and scoring started early in the first half when DeCoste of Q.S.S. picked up a loose ball at ten yards and went over. Goodwin, Q.S.S. quarter man converted the try.

The play continued and on a long kick by a Q.S.S. forward the ball went towards the P.W.C. line. Richard quarterman on P.W.C. rolled off the ball and Bradley of Q.S.S. in close pursuit touched the ball. The try for the extra points was missed. Scoring opened for P.W.C. when Stewart ran fifty yards for their only score. The convert was missed by Bagnall. In the second half as the game was drawing to a close the ball came out of a scrum on P.W.C.'s five yard line and Wilson, flying quarter of Q.S.S. raced through for the touch. Goodwin converted the try.

The game was very fast with some very nice tackling by the forwards of both teams.

NEW YORK Oct. 28—(AP)—The real story behind Bob Pastor's retirement is that Rapid Robert got a shot in the eye from Jimmy Bivins in their Cleveland shindig last week, and it strained an eye muscle. . .so the Saratoga Kid decided to hang 'em up for keeps, especially since he'd planned to quit in January, anyway, to enlist, and there was no use taking any more chances. . .with Bob out and Joe Louis, Billy Conn and Melio Bettina in the armed forces, heavyweight blue-book society now consists of Bivins and Tami Mauriello, who grew up from middleweights to the big boys' league, and Lee Savold, who "grew down" to it. . .Remember when Savoid was a 240-pounder tending bar out west?. . .Savoid and Mauriello will cut part of the pie Friday night in Madison Square Garden . . .Then Bivins will work on the winner next month. . .

Dis-a and dat-a:

The word is Max Baer is coming back—its not as a fighter, so don't worry. . .The Glamor Boy will take another shot at a Broadway show. . .

Rose-colored glasses dept.

Optimist of the year award easily goes to Ned Irish, basketball's impressario. . .With transportation so tight it's even getting tough to ride the rods, scheduled teams like Oklahoma, Colorado, Oregon State, Brigham Young, Southern California, Washington State, Wyoming and West Texas State to show in Madison Square Garden this winter. . .

Keep moving, you're a target.

Al Schacht is asking the baseball writers to name an all-star all-time ball club for him. . .so he can hang it, with suitable decoration in his new East-Side Eatery . . .In spite of the way Whirlaway and Alsab have been ringing the cash register, the country's top breadwinning stable so far this year is Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Outfit with $389,792 up to this month.

Adams Not So Sure Of Chances

DETROIT, Oct. 28 — (CP) — The only National Hockey League spokesman who doesn't think Detroit Red Wings will win the league title is — Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings.

Until today, the N.H.L. coaches and managers had been practically unanimous that Wings, with 12 holdovers from last season and a crop of promising rookies, would simply gallop. But Adams differed. He broke a long silence to declare that Montreal Canadiens will beat out Toronto Maple Leafs for the Championship.

Adams said Detroit "probably" would land third place ahead of New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks.

Dorothy Dix Says—

Quit beating her so that she will cease to live in an atmosphere of fear. And pray God that you can still wipe out from her mind the memory of your brutality to her. Try harder to win her love than you would that of any stranger.

Stop punishing her. A child of 4 who can stand up and take beatings and go right back and do the thing it was beaten for doing, has will-power and a strength that you canont break by force. You have to appeal to her mind and her heart instead of her bodily fear of you. You have first to win her confidence, which you have lost by the way you have treated her, and make her understand why it is best for her to do certain things. You have to win her love, which you have also lost, in order to make her do things because it will make you happy.

You have a job before you but it is worth all it will cost in effort, for you have a child of rare quality, worth a thousand of the soft little lambs who always mind when they are spoken to. And, for goodness sake, don't try to use a little reason in dealing with your child. Don't expect too much of a 4-year-old baby. Don't expect her to be perfect in her conduct or her manners. She is just beginning to learn how to handle herself and you have taken the rough way of teaching her. You ought to get down on your knees and ask her pardon for the way you have treated her.
