VITAL STATISTICS OF ENGLAND.

Healthiest and Deadliest Places—London Healthy During Last Year.
Heartburnings will ensue from the Registrar General's annual summary of "births, deaths, and other large towns, 1902." For the Registrar in his recent statistical way, has weighed the health and virtues of these towns, and many are found wanting.
The deadliest town in the land is Merthyr Tydfil, where people die half as fast again as in the country as a whole. Its infantile mortality (185 die out of every thousand born) is second only to that of Preston. Merthyr Tydfil had ten cases of smallpox, for fever it was the worst town in the country but three, (Ipswich, Grimsby, and Birkenhead), for diarrhoea the worst but seven, and for "deaths by violence" it was absolutely supreme.
The second deadliest town is Liverpool, and the next deadliest Wigan, Manchester, Middlesborough, Burnley, Hanley, Dootle, and St. Helens, and Newcastle-on-Tyne, Oldham, Preston, South Shields, Rhondda, Stockport, Sunderland, and Birmingham are thoroughly bad in this relation.

The healthiest of seventy-six great towns in England and Wales is Hornsey, where the death rate is only 9.80 per thousand. This is much better than the whole of England and Wales, whose death rate is 16.28, and better even than the smaller towns and rural districts, whose rate is 14.80.
Other most healthy great towns are Walthamstow, Leyton, East Ham, Willesden, and Croydon; and the healthiest seaside towns of size are Bournemouth, (13.05), Hastings, (13.91), Yarmouth, (15.50), and Brighton, (15.59). London cannot be called healthy, for its rate is 18.64, which is well above the average and places the metropolis forty-eighth down the list.
The worst towns for measles were Burnley, Bristol, Barrow, and Cardiff, and for scarlet fever West Bromwich, Burnley, Bolton, St. Helens, and Wigan. Diphtheria was worst in Hanley, Rhondda, and Middlesborough, and whooping cough in South Shields, and Barrow.

In London itself the healthiest suburbs are Hampstead, (10.8— a shade below Hornsey), Stoke Newington, (13.4), Wandsworth, (13.5), Lewisham, (13.6), Paddington, (14.6). The worst places to live in are Finsbury, Southwark, Holburn, Brompton, Bethnal Green, Shoreditch, Stepney, and the City.
The year was a healthy one for London, and disease was much below the average, excepting smallpox, cancer, suicide, and homicide. There were 329 deaths in the streets from horses and vehicles, 3,410 from other violence, 535 suicides, 71 homicides and 7 executions.
The death rate in Bombay was 62.2 per thousand, Paris 18.4, Vienna 19.4, and St. Petersburg 23. — London Mail.

TO FLY LIKE A BIRD.

English Genius Invents a Winged Mechanical Air Ship.
Despite manifold discouragement in high places T. Hugh Bastin of Brixton, England, with the indomitable courage of the inventor who is assured that he has mastered a great problem, has succeeded in bringing very near to perfection a winged mechanical air ship, says a London correspondent.
He has superseded his small model of 1901 by one of very considerable size whose powers of mechanical propulsion on the bird's wing principle, without the aid of any balloon attachment, are placed beyond a doubt, and the new air ship will probably make its first public flight at the forthcoming exhibition at St. Louis.

The machine consists of a cylinder which for practical purposes will be from thirty-four feet to forty feet long and will contain two saloons each eight feet square fitted with two pairs of wings which by means of a differential crank are capable of reproducing every movement of the natural wings of a bird.
Each wing of Mr. Bastin's model can be controlled separately, and one man working at one lever can regulate every requisite movement of soaring, steering, flying, hovering or descending. The motive power is supplied by a petrol engine, and propulsion is achieved by the air resistance to the beats of the wing.
The model is a twelfth part the size of the air ship which when the necessary funds are forthcoming he hopes to build. Shaped cylindrically, it has a pointed nose and tail, while all the weight is below the wings, thus maintaining the equilibrium. The two pairs of wings are exactly the same in size, and neither of them approaches the extremities of the ship's body. When they are set beating the model needs two men to hold it back.
The little air ship has made a flight round the workshop, and the inventor is confident that his full sized air ship will when completed be able to attain a speed of from 150 to 200 miles an hour.

The Bible contains 3,566,480 letters, 73,746 words, 31,173 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books. The word "and" occurs 46,277 times, Lord 1,855 times, "reverend" once in the ninth verse of the 111th Psalm. The twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Ezra contains all the letters of the alphabet except "J." The nineteenth chapter of II Kings and the thirty-seventh chapter of Isaiah are alike. The longest verse is the ninth verse, eighth chapter of Esther. The shortest is the thirty-fifth verse, eleventh chapter of St. John.

GLADSTONE AND HIS WIFE.

Their Married Life Was Known to Be One of Love & Harmony.
A pretty glimpse of Gladstone and his wife is afforded by some reminiscences of Mr. George W. E. Russell, in his new volume, "The Household of Faith." It is well known that their married life was a long honeymoon, and that Gladstone entrusted her with all his secrets.
The jocose and genial side of the life of the Great Premier and his wife is very attractive. With quaint enjoyment Gladstone used to grasp his wife's hand and sing the refrain of his favorite "Fiddler's Song":
"A ragamuffin husband and a ranting wife,
We'll fiddle it and scrape it through the ups and downs of life."

Gladstone's confidence in his wife was delightful. At the outset of their married life Gladstone saw that he was destined for a public career, and gave her the choice between these alternatives—to know nothing and be free from responsibility; to know everything and be bound to secrecy. Fifty years later Gladstone said to a friend:
"My wife has known every political secret I ever had, and has never betrayed my confidence."

There was one exception, which shows the real strength of the rule. When Gladstone was first a member of the Cabinet, his young wife dropped a word in the presence of some of his colleagues which implied that she was acquainted with a matter of great importance. Realizing that she had made a slip, she left the room and wrote a note of apology, which she sent to her husband by a servant. The reply that came back was to this effect:
"Dearest C.—Don't blame yourself. I don't blame you. It's the only little mistake you ever made. Your affectionate,"
"W. E. G."

In later years, when people tried to "pump" Mrs. Gladstone, her look of ignorance was bland and convincing. "Well, Mrs. Gladstone, what is Mr. Gladstone going to do about the Irish Church?"
"Well, I wonder? What do you think he ought to do?" And the questioner retired as wise as he came.

Why He Never Married.
The late Paul du Chailly was on one occasion asked why he had never married. "Well, once upon a time," he answered, without a smile, "an old African King who was very fond of me offered me my choice of 858 women as a wife. 'Your Majesty,' I replied, 'if I should marry one of these beauties of yours there would be 852 jealous women here.' 'Well,' replied the King, 'that is easily settled. Take them all.' That was a little too strong for me, however, and as I have never had such a field to choose from since I am still a bachelor."
