Wood Islands Car-Ferry Schedule And Time Table

The local Directors of the Northumberland Ferry Ltd. Messrs. E. E. Mutch, George J. Tweedy and D. F. Archibald have returned from a visit to Ottawa where they were in conference with the Government in connection with the inauguration of the car ferry service between Wood Islands and Caribou, Pictou County, N.S.

The time table arranged for is as follows: Leave Wood Islands at 7.00 A. M., 11.00 A. M. and 3.00 P. M. every day including Sundays. Leave Caribou on return at 9.00 A. M., 1.00 P. M. and 5.00 P. M. daily.

In addition on Friday, Saturday and Sunday during the months of July, August and September the car ferry will make an additional round trip leaving Wood Islands at 7.00 P. M. and Caribou at 9.00 P. M.

With regard to the rates, those for passengers and autos will be the same as in force between Borden and Tormentine notwithstanding the fact that the steamer will have to run a distance which is fifty per cent greater than that covered by the car ferry at Borden. An endeavour is being made to have the tickets interchangeable between the two ferries, though it is not known whether this will be practical. The car rate is $3.00 return plus sixty-five cents return for each passenger and auto are similar there will be a tremendous reduction in the rate for trucks. At present it costs sixty dollars to transport a truck to Borden. A loaded truck, between Wood Islands and Caribou the rate will be $4.50 return for trucks up to twenty foot long. For longer trucks a charge of twenty-five cents for each additional foot. This is a much better rate than the most optimistic truck owners anticipated and is sure to be appreciated.

These rates are available for every run of the car ferry.

The car ferry commences operations on Wednesday May 1st.

In Memoriam

JOSEPH G. JENKINS

The sudden and unexpected passing of the late Joseph G. Jenkins at his home, Green River on Saturday morning, March 18th, 1940, came as a shock to his many friends and relatives in the Community and especially so to his family who mourn the loss of a loved one.

The deceased was in his 72nd year. About two years ago Mr. Jenkins had a severe heart attack, but recovering was able to attend to many of the lighter duties of the farm, which by industry and hard work had become the basis of a comfortable home.

On Friday, he drove to Murray River and after passing some time there returned home in the evening in apparently usual health and spirits. Some time after retiring for the night, he suddenly became ill, and medical skill being summoned the treatment responded giving almost immediate relief.

This continued during the night, but in the early morning without visible movement of sound, he passed peacefully away as in a gentle sleep. Mr. Jenkins was kind and genial to all. This with his ready wit and cheerful manner won him many friends. It was a pleasure to visit his home and family. Besides these qualities the deceased had a keen insight of the things pertaining to the future life.

Ever ready to help those in need, his place is not easily filled in the Community.

The funeral services were held in the home and in the Presbyterian Church at Peters Road and were conducted by Rev. A. MacPherson in charge who spoke most impressively and comforting to the large audience assembled, basing his remarks on the 13th Chapter, 24 in part and on Psalm 46.

The speaker was able to give an encouraging assurance of the love and tender thought of the one who walked and talked with men. Consoled by these thoughts let us hope that his loved ones put their trust in Him who doeth all things well.

The Hymns sung were: "The Lord's My Shepherd" Solo, "There'll Be No Shadows" by Willard McLean, "O Christ The Solid Rock," "Will The Circle Be Unbroken?"

Besides the bereaved and sorrowing wife the family are: Maudie (Mrs. Robert Adams) Worcester, Mass.; Stella, (Mrs. Thomas Marshall) Melrose, Mass.; John L. Suddaby, Ont.; Harry Everett, Mass.; Rachel A. (Mrs. Benjamin Reid) deceased; Alma, (Mrs. Edgar Vanderstine) Peters Road; Jean, (Mrs. Gerald Johnston) Greek River, Edm.; The following brothers and sisters survive: Alice (Mrs. Malcolm Reid) Peters Road; Mary Irene and children, (Mrs. Donald) Peters Road; John and Henry, Greek River; Benjamin, Point Pleasant; Joshua, Trenton, N.S.

One brother and four sisters predeceased as follows: William and Annie who resided in Worcester, Mass.; Isobel and Caroline who resided in Greek River and Mt. Allison, P. E. I.

Several other tributes were donated as follows: Crescent—The Family. Spray—Minnie, John and children. Road—Harry, Irene and children. Spray—Mrs. Henry, John, Will and Edna.

Wreath—Peters Road, Alma Institute. Wreath—Betty, Jack and children. Also many letters of sympathy were received by the family.

The pall bearers were: Borden Munn, Lester MacSwain, Harry Van Iderstine, Raymond Jenkins, W. E. Jenkins and Gerald Johnston. Interment was in the Peter's Road Cemetery.

On the day after he got back to Hawaii, he had dinner with Lanaya, and she told him she was going to Los Angeles to see Joyce, but had not told her way.

"Now, as they sat opposite each other, their dark eyes studied him slowly."

"You didn't stay away long," she remarked. "I didn't expect you back so soon. Did you have any news?"

"I don't know whether it went wrong or right," he said glumly. "Joyce and I had a show-down."

"A show-down?"

"Yes—over her friendship with Roger Channel."

"Lanaya raised her brows. "Phil, I'm surprised at you! Do you mean to say you let those newspaper clippings really get you down?"

"There was one I didn't show you. Channel has been acting like a Jew. She claimed she didn't know it was valuable, but she must have. There were other circumstances too. On at least one occasion that I know of, she went to his home alone. After that, I felt it was time to demand an explanation."

"So you and she quarreled again?"

"I went further than that. Phil said, 'She's going to get a divorce.'"

"Phil! No!"

"Don't look so shocked," he said. "It's not one of those things. It's too late now to be helped. Lanaya sat staring at him, her thoughts and feelings in turmoil. So that scheme of Channel's and Channel's had actually worked! Phil and Joyce had really broken!"

"Seeing the wretchedness in his eyes, she had an almost irresistible impulse to tell him the truth. It was too late to mend things. If she told him what she knew, she checked the impulse, and she wanted the divorce would mean to her."

"Not He doesn't—not any more. It's he who wants the divorce." Sam said incredulously.

"No, in so many words, but he implied that he wanted it."

"Then, rapidly, Joyce told of Phil's visit to her and all that had been said. When she finished, Sam was scowling darkly.

"So Roger Channel gave you a costly brace, making you believe it was worthless. Then a hold-up man took it and the story came out in the newspapers. That devil Channel! Sam raised a fat finger and wagged it at Joyce. "He's after himself! You can bet that he's pleased about the divorce!"

Joyce shook her head. "No Roger has been a good friend. He meant no harm when he gave me that brace!"

"Maybe not—but still, it smashed your marriage."

"The marriage would have been smashed anyway."

"Way are you so sure?" Sam demanded. "It all goes back to Channel. If he hadn't got your name linked to his, Phil wouldn't have got jealous—and everything would be all right."

"I don't think so," Joyce said slowly. "Phil and I never got on—not even before our marriage. He told me long ago that I was a flirt. He thinks I'm man crazy. Well, if that's his opinion of me, it's just as well that we separate."

Sam sighed heavily and rose. "All right, I guess I'm just wasting my breath. Thanks for worrying about me, Sam—and I'm sorry I've done so poorly on the set lately. I'll try not to let you down again."

Sheer force of will heaped Joyce to do better in her work during the next two weeks. Her part demanded that she go away and vibrate, and she somehow managed it while the cameras were grinning—but it was hard, when her heart was grieving.

That night, Sam came to her with a newspaper.

"Maybe this is why Phil wants a divorce," he said.

He handed her the paper, which was turned to the society page. On the page was a picture of Phil and Lanaya against a Hawaiian background, and she was smiling happily. Beneath the picture, was the caption:

Miss Lanaya Corey vacationing in Hawaii, is shown at Waikiki Beach with Lieutenant Philip Randall, U.S.N.

Joyce handed the paper back to Sam without a word.

He said solemnly, "You're making a mistake, Joyce. You're letting Lanaya Corey get away with grand larceny. Why don't you put up a fight?"

She made a helpless gesture.

"What can I do?"

"Go to Phil. Fly to Hawaii as soon as this film is finished, and show him you're the only girl in the world!"

"I'll not make a fool of myself!"

"You'll be a bigger one if you don't go!" Sam said a contraryly. "You've got to go home and think it over—think over a fat and lonely man's advice."

With that he moved massively away. Joyce, looking after him, wondered if he knew as much about people and their hearts as he thought he did.

That night in Hawaii, Phil received an overseas telephone call. When he was told that Los Angeles was calling, his heart quickened for he thought it must be Joyce. But it was not she.

"Is that you, Phil?" said a man's voice. "This is Sam E. Blayman. You remember that fat man?"

"Oh, hello, Sam! How are you?"

"Fine, thanks. Now listen—I'm going to talk fast, and I don't want any senseless arguments. I'm paying big money to make this call."

"Okay—shoot."

"I've been talking to Joyce, and I want to know what sort of mugs you call yourself—letting Roger Channel come between you two youngsters. I warned you once that he'd do it if he got the chance, and you gave him the chance. It seems to me that, for a professional fighting man, you haven't shown much fight!"

"What are you getting at?" Phil asked.

"This. Don't let Joyce set a divorce and run both your lives. You love her—I know you do. And she loves you."

Phil said angrily, "I think a certain fat man should mind his own business!"

He slammed down the phone.

CHILDREN'S COUGHS QUICKLY RELIEVED

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

CHAPTER XXX

Joyce talked with Channel's lawyer and told him all he needed to know in order to handle the divorce case. It was arranged that she should go to Reno upon completion of the picture on which she was then working.

"You have adequate grounds," the lawyer said. "Everything will be all right."

Yes, Joyce told herself, everything would be all right. . . .

But it wasn't all right. Everything was all wrong. That became increasingly evident as the days passed. Her work before the camera suffered. She had no heart for it. She knew she was falling Sam Blayman, who was directing the picture, but she couldn't help it.

Sam was patient with her, but he was worried. Also, he was puzzled by her sudden slump, for he didn't know the reason for it. Joyce hadn't told him of her impending divorce—hadn't discussed it with any one but Channel and the lawyer.

Finally, after a particularly unsatisfactory day he came to her studio dressing room for a heart-to-heart talk.

"What's the matter, Joyce?" he asked. "You're unhappy—and I needn't tell you that it shows in your work. What's worrying you?"

"I—Phil!" He knew of the quarrel that had occurred just before she left Hawaii.

Joyce bit her lip and nodded. "It's all over, Sam—I'm getting a divorce."

He frowned. "So? And why? You haven't given your marriage a chance."

"It's no use—we can't make a go of it."

"Why not? You love Phil, don't you?"

"Yes—I do."

"And he loves you—"
