TWO COMEDIES AT CHAUTAUQUA YESTERDAY

Two comedies, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, were presented at Chautaqua yesterday befor large audiences. The first play "Mrs. Plimpton's Husband," related the rebellion of the spouse belonging to a lady interested in clubs, politics and reform movements. The revolution is incited by the son-in-law with interesting and mirth provoking results.

"Old Crusty Takes the Air," the play of the evening centres around the inconsistencies of a hard boiled old father, who in spite of his blustering, has a heart of gold. Unknown to him his daughter invests a considerable sum in an air transportation service, the very thing to antagonize dad—if he knew. In an attempt to prevent an elopement between the daughter and her aviator partner, "Old Crusty" takes to the air, and is inveigled into purchasing the controlling interest in the air transportation company, with the result that the daughter and the aviator do not need to attempt a second elopement.

Mackmen Take Opening Game From Cardinals

St. Louis Pound "Lefty" Grove For Nine Hits But to No Avail —Cochrane And Simmons Get Circuit Clouts.

(Canadian Press)

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 1—Setting a world's series record, the world's champion Athletics combed Burleigh Grimes for five hits, all for extra bases and converted them all into runs to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 2 in the opening game of the championship battle today before a crowd of 32,295 fans, including President Hoover.

Made Nine Hits But Lost Game

Although the National Leaguers slammed Robert Moses Grove, southpaw ace of the Athletics for a total of nine safe hits, they were able to score in only one inning, while the world's champions made every hit off Grimes count. Home runs by Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane; triples by George Haas and Jimmy Fox, plus a rousing double by Jimmy Dykes, combined to start the Athletics off triumphantly in their fight to retain the world's baseball championship.

INAUGURAL

said he would not hamper the work of the Conference dealing with economic issues by anticipating their difficulties or suggesting how they be overcome. He made none the less what was generally interpreted as a reference to Lord Beaverbrook's Empire free trade campaign by stating, "though we find that a great deal of talk in which people indulge is sadly remote from practical reality and takes no account of costs and consequences," we shall strive to lay hold of every chance we can find for our common advantage. Trade will not keep our affections vital, Premier MacDonald said in another point of his address, "but vital affection will keep our trade ample."

Since the dark days of the war no empire conference has faced issues of greater importance. The last Imperial Conference produced the momentous document of equality of status. The present Conference will seek to make equality of status a reality in terms of trade, and as the Conference of 1930 opens there is to be found among the delegations a feeling of confidence that the Conference will have effective results.

Previous Conferences

The previous Conferences were held in the cabinet room of drab old number ten Downing Street, the official residence of the Prime Minister. The present assembly opens in the great room of the foreign office where the Locarno Treaties were signed. And in the Conference it is hoped there will be something of the Locarno spirit. Its main purposes are two-fold. To discussions on Empire trade public opinion has been almost entirely directed. But the British government is also hoping that the Conference, as representing the whole British Commonwealth, will make a new move towards disarmament and arbitration of all disputes.

Premier Bennett Met By Lord Byng

Detained in Ottawa by the holding of the emergency session of the Dominion parliament, the Canadian delegation was the last to reach London. As the Canadian Prime Minister stepped from the train at Waterloo station the first man to greet him was Lord Byng of Vimy, former Governor-General of the Dominion. With Lord Byng were the Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, secretary of state for the Dominions, and Malcolm MacDonald, representing his father. The customary battery of press cameras clicked and there were the usual endeavors to secure an interview.

After exchanging greetings with members of the Canadian colony the Hon. Mr. Bennett passed on. To interviewers he had little to say. The ground he took was that it would be inappropriate to discuss the conference at the present time, the essence of the Conference would lie in exchange of views and he wished to approach the deliberations with an open mind.

Earl Of Birkenhead Colorful And Brilliant

LONDON, Oct. 1.—In the death of the Earl of Birkenhead, Great Britain loses not only one of her most picturesque personalities but a man who by common consent possessed one of the half dozen brilliant minds in the country.

Brilliance was the key-note of his career. It was not that he could not work as hard as any six normal men when he felt inclined—for long years during his early struggles at the Bar his industry was proverbial—but there was nothing of the steady plodder about him.

He was simply a genius with the ability of the genius to plunge to the heart of a knotty point whether in law or politics while merely clever men were nibbling at its edges, and with also the waywardness of genius who is a law unto himself and who fights his battles more easily alone than in co-operation with other men.

Was Disappointment

Yet with all his brilliance Lord Birkenhead's career was something of a disappointment to himself and certainly a disappointment to other men To suggest that of a man who held three important cabinet posts and attained to the dignity of Lord Chancellor—a place second only to the Archbishop of Canterbury in those offices to which a commoner may aspire—may seem ridiculous.

With any other man it would be so, but when young Frederick Smith first flashed like a comet into the legal world, dazzled with his eloquence and astounded men twice his age with his extraordinary grasp of the most abstruce legal points, it was felt that there had arrived a new phenomenon in public life and that the entire course of British history might be altered by this one man.

Perhaps it nearly was. When Great Britain was worried over the Irish question in early 1914 no name was more frequently on men's lips than that of "Galloper Smith," the redoubtable aide de camp of the Ulster leader, Lord Carson.

Bullet Settled It

But a revolver fired in the Balkans settled all of that and "Galloper" found another outlet for his adventurous temperament in France and Flanders. That too passed away. The "Galloper' became a baronet and Lord Birkenhead and His Majesty's Secretary of State for India. Then the luck of politics and failing constitution conspired together and the great lawyer-politician withdrew, not indeed from the public mind but from the front pages of the newspapers.

Few men in British history had more fervent admirers than he, and few have aroused more bitter animosity. A poem by G. K. Chesterton of which each verse ends "Chuck it Smith" probably will remain known for a long time as one of the most bitter invectives ever perpetrated by a major poet.

There will be some who will quote it today. But generally friends and enemies alike will join in regret at the passing of a great fighter, a lawyer of almost super-human ability and one of the most colorful personalities that has ever appeared on the British political stage.

Henry. Altogether he was an enthusiastic, fair, tactful and competent director of the Board. It is likely that changes will be made. He felt that in losing Mr. Rattenbury the Board would be losing a valuable advisor. However he felt sure that he would be replaced by a friend to Prince Edward Island.

Prince Edward Island is a veritable Garden of Eden. There has been much progress and development carried on and the province is in a sound economic position as is evident from the fact that there seems to be less unemployment here than elsewhere. We rejoice in this, as Prince Edward Island's progress helps to relieve our problems. The erection of the new hotel should tend to further increase the tourist traffic. With regard to the speeding up of the ferry service he promised to give that careful consideration.

Relative to the difficulties encountered by potato shippers at Vanceboro, Sir Henry said:

"I will immediately take up the matter with the Customs Department."

Mr. S. A. MacDonald, President of the Associated Boards of Trade, endorsed all that had been said by Mr. Crockett. Mr. MacDonald stated that he was a member of the delegation that had waited on Sir Henry when the hotel project was first brought up and spoke of the sensations experienced when Sir Henry announced that the railway proposed to build a million dollar hotel. This should result in a greatly increased tourist traffic.

Mr. MacDonald brought up the need of a daily passenger service between Charlottetown and the mainland and of the boat making Sunday trips.

Sir Henry said that the average person on principle may say that Prince Edward Island, being a province, though a small one should not be without daily communication with the mainland. A serious business situation may arise or there may be a case of illness, which would emphasize the need of such a service. "Whilst the principle is absolutely sound," said Sir Henry the matter of expenses and revenue have to be taken into account. Part of my job is to make as much money for the C. N. R. as possible and to reduce deficits, but I am glad the matter was brought specifically to my attention and I will give it careful consideration.

Mr. F. T. Hiles paid a high tribute to the wise and businesslike administration of the C. N. R. under the direction of Sir Henry. He said it must be gratifying to him that the Board of Trade had practically little or no complaint to offer. He also thanked Sir Henry for his kindly references to Mr. Nelson Rattenbury, who may be termed the father of the Board of Trade of this city.

Hospital Campaign District Meeting

Everybody was delighted with Monday night's district meeting in the Prince Edward Island Hospital campaign at St Peter's. Speakers, entertainers and audience enjoyed the occasion tremendously. One of the most highly pleased men at the meeting was Mr. C. Chester Pratt, District Chairman for St Peter's who presided. In a glowing speech he expressed his appreciation to Executive Chairman, W.F. Tidmarsh, Memorial Chairman W.K. Rogers and the other Charlottetown folk who had gone to St. Peter's for the evening.

"The meeting was held in Holy Name Hall, thanks to the hospitality of the Rev. Father A. McAulay, Pastor of St. Peters Church. A large audience filled the hall and gave generous applause to the excellent program provided by the Charlottetown entertainers, as arranged by Mrs. J.A.C. Rodgerson, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee.

Classical and popular musical numbers were rendered by a trio consisting of Messrs. Roy Quigley Jack Sterns and Leigh Dingwell. Messrs Quigley and Dingwell also sang duets. Miss Roberta Spencer was the accompanist.

Executive Chairman Tidmarsh told how completely the present Prince Edward Island Hospital was out of date, and explained the need for an entirely new building of much larger size. He set forth eloquently the value of the proposed 100-bed Hospital to all the people of Kings and Queens counties, and made it clear that the medical men would be able to render still better service to their patients through a modern house of healing than in the present inadequate structure.

Convincing facts and figures were given by Memorial Chairman Rogers in his address. District Chairman Pratt, in concluding the meeting assured the Charlottetown visitors that the people of St. Peter's would do their full share towards raising the necessary $250 000.

Just before the meeting a delegation of St. Peter's boys walked on to the platform to shake hands with Executive Chairman Tidmarsh. They were Arthur McInnis, James McKenzie and Alfred Lewis. Mr Tidmarsh welcomed the lads warmly and expressed the opinion that they would distinguish themselves in community service when they grew to manhood. The boys felt highly complimented by the Executive Chairman's friendly words and throughout the meeting they listened to the speeches with marked attention.

Liquor Seizures By Officers At And Near Tracadie

Twenty-three cases of whiskey and three cases of rum, part buried in the sand and part anchored in the water at the sand bar on Tracadie Beach, were seized by Prohibition Officers yesterday at noon. Nothing was found to indicate the ownership of the cache.

In a store at Tracadie on Tuesday, the officers report having seized five kegs of rum, and eleven cases of gin and wine.

Customs and prohibition officers on Tuesday at Tracadie Cross also seized fifty gallons of rum and ten cases of assorted liquors, consisting of champagne, whiskey, and wine. The latter was found in a well, the remainder was cached in the woods about two miles from the shore.
