

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever found. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membrane. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even the severest coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

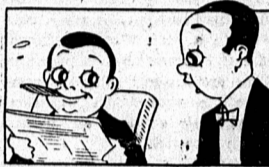

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

SMILES

GABBY GERTIE

"Individual mugs used to be popular in barber shops—now the movies get 'em."

"Did Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck accept the compromise?" "Yes, they agreed to it with one voice." "Ah, I see. Mrs. Henpeck's voice."

He: Woman was made from Adam's rib. She: And man hasn't been "all there" since.

Tommy: What name, please? Caller: Edward, why? Tommy: Sis wants to know whether to be prepared to greet you with a kiss or just shake yer hand.

THEY HAD TO SEE PARIS

By Homer Croy

"They're all blithering idiots to come out to-day," he thought as he surveyed the people, "but I haven't got any hell to raise—it's paying me good money. There's a new Studebaker. Whose is it, anyway? I'll get up closer. . . . Now dart in there. . . . It's old Tupper. Bet he didn't make more than the first payment. He's going to get caught short one of these days, then he'll have to turn it in. Somebody's going to get that car—it might as well be me. He ought to have a ford anyway—best danged car in the world."

They neared the towering derricks. The closer they came the thicker the cars and the greater the press of people. Hot-dog stands had been set up by the side of the road and people who had missed their dinners were crowding about, jostling, laughing. The word had flashed over the county that the Maginnis tract was to have its test-to-day, and cars were now arriving from all directions, covered with a thin red coating of Oklahoma dust, and as the drivers maneuvered their cars in and out there was a great honking and a constant clamor of horns, and if an unwieldy flock of geese had settled upon the little sagebrush hills and were calling to one another in a comforting squawking. There was in the air the excitement of a gold rush, although there was little possibility of anything more than a pump-well being discovered. A pump-well was one in which the "crude" was so low that it would not flow of its own accord, but must be lifted by artificial means. Such wells, delivering only a few barrels a day, meant little in a district of giant oil properties.

There was the feel of many feet moving in the same direction, the dull clump-clump of a hodge-podge army, the wild, excited followers of the oil fields—scouts for other companies, pipe salesmen, rig-timber salesmen, gamblers. A picturesque lease writer—an old man with white hair falling to his shoulders—had set up a little wire music rack and on it he had set up a little wire music rack on it he had an enlarged drawing of a tract under development in another county. He was striking the map with a pointer and droning out, his sing-song:

"Right this way, la-dees and gentlemen. Why be poor? The next big strike is going to be in White Owl. Ge. in on the ground floor. Buy your share now and cash in while fools wait. . . ."

The cars were now behind; the crush of people pushed forward, young and old—men who had strange adventures in the once wild West; cowboys who had ridden the range in

"PINKHAM'S COMPOUND IS WONDERFUL"

Read This Letter from a Grateful Woman

Vanessa, Ont.—"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is wonderful. I have had six children of which four are living and my youngest is a bonnie baby boy now eight months old. I have gained 25 pounds since I have taken your medicine before and then was born. I have certainly received great benefit from it. I urge my friends to take it. I am sure they will realize the good I did."—Mrs. MURPHY McTULLEN, Vanessa, Ontario.

the savage, picturesque days now more and more who were now following the oil; rough, swearing drillers—if oil were found they would have all the work they wanted; pool-room loafers; now and then a "blanket Indian" who is an old-fashioned Indian who still kept to his blanket. The younger ones wore the clothes of the whites, some even the snappy sophomore clothes of the "sore windos."

The two wells which were to be brought in were a quarter of a mile apart, and around the one which was to be the first "shot," the crowd pressed. Ropes had been put out so that the people could not get too close, for not only were there secrets to be guarded, but the dangers of shooting as well. The rig builders and drillers and rough day hands now rushed about in a frenzy of last-moment preparation. A small system of dikes had been built up around the wells, draining off into an excavation. If oil were found in any quantity it could be held in these until it could be pumped into the pipe line and sent on its way to the refinery.

The first well was "shot"; a puff of air, a moment's intense excitement, a slight gurgle of oil, and it was all over. It would be a pump-well, one hardly worth the working. The crowd moved over to the other well.

"Just like I expected," said Pike. "dry as a barrel of ashes. That's the reason I didn't waste any time getting excited. There's one born every minute," he continued, waving his hand over the throw, "and two to keep 'em."

Again the process of shooting was gone through a galvanized tube as long as a yard stick and as big around as a quart cup was carefully lowered by a wire from a pulley in the crown-block—that is, the block at the top of the oil rig used for hoisting and lowering pipe. Down, down went the long white tin; the crowd grew silent; the creaking of the pulley arose for a moment what this meant—nitroglycerine. If this failed it was the end of the well. Hope would move on to some new place—the Hope that rides triumphant in all this section of the Southwest.

The nitro was down; the oil drillers ran away, all except the boss driller. It was his show and all eyes were upon him and in high laced boots and greasy cap he moved about his oily stage in complete happiness. Cars no longer honked the lease seller had folded up his little rack and had crept into the crowd. The boss driller now came running with an iron bar balanced on his shoulder. He got down on his knee, bringing the bar nearer and nearer. The top of the cast-iron pipe that ran straight down into the unknown. There was a tip, a tilt, and the bar slid with a grating creaking into the pipe; a quick flash and it was out of sight. Leaping to his feet, he ran his hands sheltering his head, looking back, stumbling, continuing to run. There was a breathless hush, a long silence then a rumbling of the earth a curious quivering, a slight lurching; then a giant puff of air; a cloud of powdery dust flew up, violently whirling and tumbling like a miniature tornado, a peculiar hissing—and a great brown-black spray shot high into the sky, spreading out like a huge geyser . . . a roaring, growing louder.

What About the Feathers On the Turkey?

$50.00 to the Person who counts them correctly — Other awards from $20.00 down

The feathers on the Turkey are made up of figures 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8. The problem is to take these feathers off the Turkey and add the figures. The total of the added figures will be taken as the number of feathers on the bird.

PRIZES—For the correct, or nearest correct, solution prizes in order as follows will be paid in cash.

1st Prize	..... $50.00	5th Prize	..... $4.00
2nd Prize	..... 20.00	6th Prize	..... 3.00
3rd Prize	..... 10.00	7th Prize	..... 2.00
4th Prize	..... 5.00	8th Prize	..... 1.00

IT COSTS NOTHING
There is absolutely no responsibility, obligation or cost of any kind to try for a prize. The solving of the problem will provide a few hours most interesting work.

COMPETITION CLOSURES
The competition closes Saturday, January 25, 1930, at midnight. All solutions to be considered, must reach the address below before that hour.

In case of a tie the prize will go to the one who had sent a new subscription with his solution in accordance with condition No. 3.

If those who tie have both, or all sent in new subscriptions; then the prize will go to the one whose subscription on which he or she became eligible, is paid the farthest in advance into the year 1930. If both or all are paid in advance to December 31, 1930, then the money will be divided among such proportionately according to the number of winners.

Conditions

- 1 Every one in any family where there is a regular subscription of this paper paid in advance, is invited to try the solution and compete for the prizes.
- 2 Anyone not eligible in accordance with No. 1 condition, may compete by becoming a subscriber or sending in the subscription of some member of the family with $4.00 for country or $5.00 for the city for the first year in advance.
- 3 Every competitor may, if he or she so desires, send in a new paid in advance for one year subscription with the solution. This is not obligatory; but the winner of each prize who does send a new subscriber will be awarded double the amount his or her prize calls for. Thus if the winner of the first prize had sent a new subscriber, he will be awarded $100.00 cash instead of $50.00, and accordingly with all the prizes. No one can so secure double money unless the new subscription is actually forwarded with his solution.
- 4 Each competitor, by sending in his solution, agrees that the decision of the judges shall be indisputable and final.
- 5 All solutions must be sent in on the following form, clipped from this paper.

Cut this out on the border lines, fill in and mail early. Mark on outside of envelope "Turkey Feathers Competition."
