TAYLOR—At Brighton on April 4th to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred F. Taylor, a daughter.

DIED

SIMMONS—in Freetown, P. E. I. March fourteenth, Clifford Sifton, beloved infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie P. Simmons, aged ten months. When we see the precious blossom That we tended with such care Rudely taken from our bosom How our hearts almost despair Round the little grave we linger Till the setting sun is low Feeling all our hopes have perished With the flower we cherished so. 4915-4-7M11pd.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Richard C. Goff who fell asleep in Victoria, B.C., April 5th 1918. 4887-4-5M11pd.

Card of Thanks

UNDER INFLUENCE OF GREAT PHILOSOPHER

LONDON April 4—Upon a motion this evening to call attention to the war indemnity question many speakers in the House of Commons urged the necessity of exacting the fullest payment from Germany. Conservative opinion in England is especially up in arms upon the report that Premier Lloyd George now favors what is comparatively a moderate indemnity. Colonel Claude Lowther, in introducing the motion, coupled the name of President Wilson with the British premier's alleged present attitude. He feared that Lloyd George was being influenced by the higher philanthropy of "that great philosopher." The speaker particularly called attention to the necessity of payments from Germany to relieve the financial situation at home. In this connection it was implied by Lowther that the European money settlements should not be interfered with by Wilson, who is able to bear with perfect equanimity and splendid virtue the financial embarrassment of every country but his own. MacMaster blamed the league of nations for much of the delay in arranging the terms of peace. Bonar Law replying on behalf of the government, declared that there would be exacted from Germany whatever she could pay. He said it would be a mistake to assume that the British government has been influenced in its desire to obtain everything that Germany could pay by any action on the part of the President of the United States. The weight of tonight's motion cannot precisely be estimated. Many members of the House of Commons are in order a pledge to their electors to advocate payment to the uttermost farthing from Germany. Nevertheless, it is doubtful whether all these are prepared to seriously oppose a settlement judged by the government to be the best obtainable under the circumstances. Tonight's motion was not favored by the latest events in Germany, where the situation is again feverish, with movements in Stuttgart and Frankfurt also growing more serious.

THE PROMOTER'S WIFE

BY JANE PHELPS THE INTERIOR DECORATOR TAKES CHARGE OF THE HOUSE CHAPTER LVIX.

Lorraine Morton, of course, knew nothing of Nell's business matters. She had said to me: "You must make use of that handsome husband of yours to help you socially. Many of the men he must know in a business way are probably also prominent in a social way. It isn't easy to get into the set in which I happened to be born, but you are clever and educated, and so is your husband. It will perhaps take time, but you will get there in the end if you are persistent."

Lorraine, as she said, had been "born" into the set in which she moved. She hadn't much money, not nearly as much as we had, or rather as we spent, but she lived in an old mansion on Washington Square which has been in the family for years—"forever," she said—and was received nearly everywhere. I had no desire to be one of the so-called "four hundred." But I did wish to belong to the select coterie of people whom Lorraine knew, a few of whom I had met. In my new house I would entertain, in a way I could not think of in an apartment. So while I shopped Lorraine and I jumbled together over what we should do in the way of entertaining when all should be ready. Nell had gasped when I told her the decorator's price for making over the interior, but had said: "Go as far as you like! I just sold a big block of stock the other day. There's no need to economize. Just give me the figures so I can have some idea of what this thing will cost." Nell's generosity delighted me and made Lorraine gape. "Mr. Forbes must have slathers of money to give you carte blanche like this," she remarked. For all that she was one of the elect, Lorraine was dreadfully slangy at times. But she could do as she pleased in that, as in other things. Her position was secure. I really wanted people to fine my worth while. I longed to be a sort of leader—which I knew I could not be for a long time, if ever. The idea had rather gone to my head. I was so exercised over my new house, I shopped so indefatigably, that I was worn out. For the first time since our marriage I began taking my breakfasts in bed. My conscience pricked me at first. Often the morning was the only time I had to talk with Nell. But after a while that ceased to trouble me. I wasn't thinking where all this would lead; I only thought of what I, myself, wanted to accomplish, I did not even see where my domestic life was going, because I did not think of domestic things. And all the time I rarely saw Nell. I mean saw him to talk to him or to ask the questions which I used to ask about where he had spent his time and with whom.

Then one day I received quite the greatest shock I had had since the day I had listened at the door when Mr. Frederick and that Mr. Black were in the library with Nell. It was Lorraine who dealt the blow. "What is your husband's business, Bab?" she asked one day, "I thought he was a broker. I have heard him mention stocks, and you have also talked of them. Isn't he on the exchange?"

"No—he is a mining and oil promoter—or perhaps they are sometimes called brokers? I know nothing about business, Lorraine. Nell doesn't believe in talking of his affairs at home." "But Bab—a promoter! That accounts for it!"

"Accounts for what?" It had been a long time since I had given Nell's business any thought, so taken up was I with my new idea. "Why—I heard—that he had many undesirable acquaintances." I knew by the way she hesitated that she had more to tell me.

"Undesirable—" "Yes, men of shady character and vulgar habits. I hate to say such things to you, Bab, but it will be no use for you to try to do anything in a social way if this is so."

Queerly, there came into my mind the whispered expression I had caught when dear father talked to me: "A house of cards."

Tomorrow—Lorraine Dashes Bab's Hopes of Social Success.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS OPERATING ONE HOUR EARLIER Important Daylight Saving Change of Time at Two a. m. Sunday, March 30th, 1919. All clocks and watches used in operation of Canadian National Railways will at 2 a. m. Sunday, March 30th be advanced one hour. To prevent serious confusion and inconvenience to the public the attention of all concerned is directed to the following conditions resulting from the important change of time. If cities, towns, villages and other municipal bodies do not change their local time to correspond with the new Railway time all concerned should keep in mind that while trains continue to leave Railway stations on present schedule such schedule will be operated one hour ahead of present local time. Therefore any municipality where local time is not changed to correspond with the new Railway time passengers must reach Railway station ONE HOUR EARLIER than shown in current folders and public time posters. Where municipal time is changed to correspond with the new Railway time, passengers will not experience difficulty growing out of the change. 4827-4-2ME6L
