There's the doorbell again

SUPPOSE daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

HAMPTON NEIGHBORS

"Fire!" In the country just as dusk. When comes that stately, solemn hush.

On night-time settling down, The mercury hovered round below Hills, valley and houses were covered with snow.

The winds had gathered and gone on To blow on some far horizon, No man moved out, Relaxed they sat at home.

And read disaster far away They sighed—"Too bad," you heard them say. And turn the page.

"Fire!" Hark! What was that then, Footsteps running, Again the cry "Fire in the stove! Turn out the men!"

And red sparks leaped into the sky, They came, those neighbors, as if on wings. They came, and did the very best they could.

They stayed all night and stood their ground To check each errant spark. That we might sleep in safety, Neighbor, accept our thanks this morn'g.

We rest secure for you are near The law again to us you have fear. For without thought of self "You loved your neighbor as you love self."
