'Captains Courageous' "Cherokee Strip" At Prince Edward At The Capitol

The power of Rudyard Kipling's saga of the sea, "Captains Courageous," remains its greatest force in the dramatic picture now playing at the Prince Edward Theatre.

The characters are portrayed with rare artistry and the medium, of course, provides a scope far beyond that which the writer is permitted. Mr. C. M. with characteristic vigor, has omitted no detail that would bring into visual and audible play the genius of the master writer.

Freddie Bartholomew, as the boy who is swept from the deck of a liner to be reared by the Gloucester crew of a fishing schooner, performs his first American role and unquestionably it is equal, if not superior, to anything he has ever done in his distinguished young career.

Spencer Tracy scores as Manuel, the Portuguese fisherman, as do Lionel Barrymore as the picture and Captain Disko, skipper of the schooner, "We're Here," and Melvyn Douglas as Freddie's father.

In the large supporting cast distinguished work is contributed by Charles Grainger, Mickey Rooney, Jack Larrin, John Comedee, Walter Kingsford, Donald Briggs, Sam McDaniel, Dave Thursty and numerous others, as well as the actual crew of the Gloucester schooner which was sailed to the Pacific coast for the picture.

Just as Kipling knew and respected the sea, so has the picture caught and reflected its majestic moods and the beauty of calm and storm, sunlight and fog. The players, individually and collectively, have grasped their respective parts with a remarkable depth of understanding.

LETTERS ARE RELEASED BY DUPLESSIS

New Brunswick Proposed Joint Representation On Tariff Question.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, Jan. 1—Letters exchanged by Premier Dussart of New Brunswick and Premier Duplessis of Quebec regarding possible co-operation between the two provinces "in matters of mutual interest," were made public today by the Quebec Government head.

Two days before Mr. Duplessis stated at Shawinigan Falls an alliance between the Maritimes and Quebec and Ontario would be "desirable," the New Brunswick Premier wrote to Quebec seeking the Union Nationale Government's views on contemplated tariff changes between Canada, Great Britain and the United States.

Premier Dussart said since there was a lack of official information, it would be "desirable" to discuss the question of possible changes in the British preferential tariff on lumber, and other matters which may be of mutual interest.

"In the event that the British preferential on lumber is altered to enable the United States to enter the United Kingdom market on a competitive basis, or nearly so," Mr. Dussart wrote, "would you consider a freer entry of fish, apples and potatoes to the American market a satisfactory quid pro quo?"

He felt if views of the two governments coincided, "joint representations may prove effective."

Premier Duplessis replied he could not voice an opinion because there was no essential information regarding the changes and added he had "often declared" Quebec would be prepared to cooperate with New Brunswick "in any matter of mutual interest to both our provinces."

"My colleagues and myself," he said "I appreciate sincerely your offer of cooperation, and would be pleased to confer with the representatives of New Brunswick on any such matters, at any time and at any place which may be convenient to all concerned."

Questioned by newspapermen after the letters were released, Premier Duplessis asserted again the eastern provinces were not attempting to "gang up" against the west. Any alliance between the provinces was to "prevent a raid on Confederation."

CHINESE CLAIM JAPS REPULSED AT HANGCHOW

Relieve Threat To Strategic Rail Junction North Of Nanking.

(A.P. by Guardian's Special Wire) HANGHAI, Jan. 12—(Wednesday)—Chinese said today they turned back a Japanese drive south of Hangchow, capital of Chekiang Province, and relieved the Japanese threat to Suchow, strategic rail junction north of Nanking, the capital which fell to Japanese arms.

They said the Japanese in the Hangchow area sought to cross the Chientang River by steam launches for an advance toward Ningpo but were forced to withdraw before Chinese artillery fire, losing one troop-lade launch.

A heavy movement of Japanese troops and big guns from the interior was reported. Shanghai observers believed they were reinforcements for the Hangchow area, where Chinese reports have indicated Japanese efforts to push inland were being held up.

Attack Thwarted

In southern Shantung Province on the Yellow Sea, Chinese said Japanese forces failed in an effort to take Tsinan, 120 miles south of Tainan, and that their own troops launched a thrust toward Yenchow, now in the hands of Japanese, relieving the threat of Suchow, principal objective of the Japanese in North China.

Meanwhile, the Japanese continued bombing raids on widely separated cities and took steps to consolidate their gains in conquered areas.

The raids, none causing serious damage, were principally in Fukien, Chekiang, Kwangsi, Kwangtung and Hupeh provinces where they directed at airdromes or railways.

Reopen Consulate

At Tientsin, Shantung Province seaport, Monday, Consul General Shojiro Ota landed from a warship and re-opened the Japanese Consulate, closed since early in the conflict. The Japanese took over civic government.

Paris, the French Government instructed its Ambassador at Tokyo to deliver an "energetic protest" against the bombing of a French Catholic Mission at Nanking, South China, Jan. 9, when a French monk was killed and another wounded.

Soil Survey History Is Modern Story

The history of soil surveying in Canada is a comparatively short one. The first attempt at mapping soils in the Dominion was made by the Topographical Survey of the Dominion Department of the Interior in 1919. Stakes A. Leahy, Soils Specialist of the Division of Field Husbandry, Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, in Scientific Agriculture, issued by the Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists. In 1921 the Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan commenced soil surveying in their respective provinces. In the succeeding years, other provinces entered this field of work, until the present time seven of the nine provinces are carrying on soil surveys. In 1925 the Topographical Survey greatly curtailed its services and in 1930 withdrew entirely.

With the exception of the mapping done by the Topographical Survey, soil surveys have always been under the direct control of the Provinces, the Colleges or Departments of Agriculture. The Dominion Government, however, did not lose interest in this work on the cessation of activities of the Topographical Survey, as, through the Dominion Department of Agriculture, financial aid has been given to the provinces for the encouragement of soil surveying. However, the Dominion Department of Agriculture has never assumed any direct responsibility for the field work, nor for the manner in which the data were presented on the maps.

In the organization of soil surveying in Canada, therefore, there are at the present time seven distinct bodies in charge of this work, each of which receives financial assistance from the Dominion as well as the Provincial Governments. Except for such voluntary co-operation as is possible, no provisions have been made for keeping these bodies in contact with each other. While this setup has the merit of placing direct responsibility of soil surveying in the hands of the men who are most familiar with the soils and the problems of each province, it has resulted in a lack of uniformity in the system in use of soil classification in the kind and amount of

Money Jingles For John Bull He Needs More

(By Pat Usher Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Jan. 13—(CP)—The Royal Mint is working overtime to meet the growing demand for coins. This is one of the disclosures in the report of Sir Robert Johnson, deputy master and controller of that busy institution, which stands across the road from the Tower of London.

Improved trade and higher prices are responsible for the mint's activity, according to Sir Robert. In 1936 a double shift was introduced to keep pace with demand and in recent months overtime operation has become necessary.

The report is the first to be issued for two years. Publication a year ago was postponed because the abdication of King Edward VIII made it necessary to prepare new coinage.

CONCESSION TO DOMINIONS

At the expressed desire of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa the use of the uncrowned effigy of the sovereign has been extended to the Dominions, the report says. Use of the crowned head on coinage has been retained for British India and the Colonies. On the coinage of George V the uncrowned effigy appeared only on

United Kingdom coinage, Sir Robert explains.

The mint in its present form dates back little more than a century. But there was a "master of the mint" as far back as the reign of Henry I. Heads no longer fall from the chopping block across the road in the Tower of London, as they did in Plantagenet and Tudor days. But the mint still goes ahead with its job of turning out coins to speed the country's commerce.

Sir Robert explains in the report the old tradition that with each reign the direction of the sovereign's head on gold and silver coinage is changed and has not been broken. No coinage was issued bearing the likeness of King Edward VIII but his reign intervened between that of George V and the present King.

Other highlights of the report: Pieces struck in 1937, it is estimated, will total 400,000,000. Two hundred coin dies had to be scrapped after the abdication.

The portrait of King George VI on the new coins put in circulation in 1937 looks to the left, as did that of George V.

There is little prospect of gold coinage being struck for general circulation.

Members of the mint advisory committee regarded the idea of the new twelve-sided threepenny piece as "distasteful" but accepted in the face of a decision to make the experiment on commercial grounds.
