Silent and Superstitious.

Humble as the cockle is, it gives employment to several hundred men, women and children on the coast of Lancashire, England, and seems to have bred in them silence and superstition. Several villages depend upon the cockle as an industrial mainstay. The cocklers are humble folk and among strangers exceedingly shy and taciturn, as well becomes their lonely vocation. They inhabit stone cottages near the rustling marramgrass and bents. They subsist on the coarsest fare, and, while at all times their living is precarious, they suffer periodical hardships through destructive high tides, shifting channels and the break up or altered position of the skeers. These toilers are often seen in twos and threes far apart, not a word escaping the lips of those who work together. They are superstitious enough to believe that disputes among themselves over the skeers would be overheard and resented by the imbedded cockles, in which case those sensitive shellfish would perforce quit by the next tide.—Argonaut.

Wisdom of Woman.

Women are the inheritors of the oldest, most universal human wisdom. They have more sense than men, for the simple reason that a man has to be a specialist, and a specialist has to be a fanatic. The normal man all over the world is a hunter or a fisher, or a banker, or a man of letters, or some silly thing. If so he has to be a wise hunter or a wise banker. But nobody with the smallest knowledge of a professional life would ever expect him to be a wise man. But his wife has to be a wise woman. She has to have an eye on everything, an eye on the things that fanatical bankers forget. If the banker is melancholy she must teach him ordinary cheerfulness. If the banker is too convivial she must teach him ordinary caution. If she had four husbands she would be an optimist to the pessimist, a pessimist to the optimist, a Pagan to the Puritan, a Puritan to the Pagan; for she is the secret health of the world.—Chesterton.

A Poor Man's Hell.

The Caribbean tropics are a garden of delight for the rich man and an El Dorado. In sugar, in cotton, in cattle pastures, that world holds treasure today greater than the treasure shipped by the Spaniard through Panama the golden. The Caribbean tropics are good indeed to the man strong enough to be master. They are good, too, to their own poor, for they curse their natives with no cold and rarely with famine. But for the poor white man from the north they are hell.

It is not due only to the risks of the crop. It is due to the social conditions that forbid the white man in the tropics from laboring with the hands. No white man can do it in the islands or in central America and keep his caste. Only in Panama, where an entirely artificial and unique condition has been made by the creators of the wonder of the isthmus, can it be done.—Julius Muller in Cent

New Line of Art.

The redheaded and dissatisfied boarder was a large man with a large appetite. After dinner he went out into the narrow yard, shook both his fists at the silvery moon, hurled several imprecations toward the congress of the stars and burst forth into a picturesque and voluminous flood of abuse which was devoted entirely to the landlady. One of the other boarders who had been at the house a long time, thereby accumulating a pallid look and a palate with corns on it, drew near timidly and ventured to ask what the special kick was.

"What's the matter?" echoed the large man. "That old dame's the first woman I ever knew who could literally paint food on a plate."—Popular Magazine.

Too Much For the Scot.

A Scottish farmer paid a visit to a south of England cattle show and while walking around got talking with a native farmer. Neither could well understand what the other said. The Scotchman got a little nettled at this and put it down to the Englishman's stupidity.

"Man," he said at last, "yer cows moo a' right, and yer cocks craw quite plain, but I'm banged if I can mak' you oot!"—Exchange.

Looking Far Ahead.

"What was the basis of Mr. and Mrs. Futill's separation?"

"Well, you know their baby—the one that was born last month?"

"Yes."

"Futill said he should go to Yale, and Mrs. F., who is from Boston, insisted on Harvard."—New York Sun.

Nothing Else.

George Washington's personal expense accounts during the Revolution amounted to $7,000 and his balance was within 30 cents of right. That is the only thing about the immortal Father of His Country that looks like 30 cents.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Look to the Future.

The moment that the face is turned away from the dead past and looks toward the living future, a new power comes. Hope is awake and hope is infinite.—Phillips Brooks.

Afghanistan's Fruit.

Much fruit is raised in Afghanistan. During August, September and October a special daily fruit train of about fifteen cars is run from Quetta to different cities in India.

Wise men read very sharply all your private history in your look and gait and behavior.—Emerson.

Sites of the Capital.

The capital of the United States has been located at different times at the following places: At Philadelphia from Sept. 5, 1774, to December, 1776; at Baltimore Dec. 20, 1776, to March, 1777; Philadelphia, March 4, 1777, to September, 1777; Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 27, 1777, to Sept. 30, 1777; York, Pa., Sept. 30, 1777, to July, 1778; Philadelphia, July 2, 1778, to June 30, 1783; Princeton, N. J., June 30, 1783, to Nov. 20, 1783; Annapolis, Md., Nov. 26, 1783, to Nov. 30, 1784; Trenton, N. J., from November, 1784, to January, 1785; New York, Jan. 11, 1785, to 1790. Then the seat of the government was removed to Philadelphia, where it remained until 1800, since which time it has been in Washington.

Decimated.

We speak of a city or an army being "decimated" when we mean to imply that it has suffered from many fatalities. The term is taken—and taken wrongly—from an old and barbarous custom of punishing mutinous regiments, town defenders, etc., by killing one man out of every ten ("decimus" being the Latin word for "tenth"). Thus, unless we mean that precisely one person in ten was killed, our use of "decimate" is incorrect.

Very Considerate.

"Dis ain' de same umbrella I lent you," said Uncle Rasberry.

"Cohse it ain'," replied Erastus Pinkley. "Wif all dem good umbrellas to pick f'um you didn' s'pose I were g'ineter bring you back yoh same ol' cotton rain proof, did you? When I borrows I pays interest."—Washington Star.

The Reptile.

Schoolmaster—So, then, the reptile is a creature which does not stand on feet and moves along by crawling on the ground. Can any one of you boys name me such a creature? Johnny—Please, sir, my baby brother.—London Tit-Bits.

Rain Gauges.

Although the invention of the rain gauge is attributed to an Italian contemporary with Galilei, such instruments were in use in Korea at least two centuries before his time.

A Counsel For Living.

Let not future things disturb thee, for thou wilt come to them if it shall be necessary, having then the same reason which now thou usest for present things.—Marcus Aurelius.

Plain Goodness.

Do not be troubled because you have not great virtues. God made a million spears of grass when he made one tree.—Henry Ward Beecher.
