

Queen Square School Annual Sports Tonight

The Queen Square School annual ice sports will be the big attraction at the Forum tonight when young and old alike will be eagerly looking forward to the many and varied attractions on the program. If the enthusiasm of the fans for the past two school events sponsored by W. K. S. and P.S.S. is any indication of tonight's reception, then excitement will be at fever pitch for the wearers of purple and white when they make to the ice for their annual display of skill in speed skating hockey.

The feature of tonight's sports will be the exhibition hockey match between the Prince of Wales College Juveniles and the Queen Square School team. Under the capable coaching of Elmer Blanchard, Queen Square has produced one of the smartest little hockey squads this year that has been seen in a number of seasons, and have already proved their ability this year in downing some strong teams and are at present leading the Interscholastic series by one game over West Kent, last year's Provincial Interscholastic champions. Although they will be meeting strong opposition from P. W. C. Juveniles, the school youngsters certainly have plenty to come and go on. They have already taken the measure of this same squad by a score of 6-2 in a previous exhibition encounter and should be a good match for the Collegians tonight.

The game is expected to be really closely contested, top-notch affair, and with all the other speed skating attractions which are assured of producing plenty of keen competition, the Queen Square School event should be one of outstanding success and a splendid evening of athletic entertainment.

As tonight's game could not affect the final order of standing, interest centred in the race between Beaver Dick Wray and Santamarian George McGregor for the scoring leadership. Each was tied with 67 points before the contest and each picked up two more, leaving another deadlock.

Paul Schurman looked particularly good in flashes in the game lost to the Charlottetown boys. His first goal was the result of as smooth a bit of stick-handling as we have seen in quite a few moons. Paul is still in the midge age group and might be better playing in that class. He got some stiff checks at the enemy blue-line Wednesday night.

Ben Champion, manager of the Kensington rink, certainly did his utmost to give the Summerside home fans the low-down on how the game was going. Ben telephoned the local radio station every period and the score was relayed to the Summerside fans. He also got the results of the Able-Amherst game in Charlottetown and announced to the fans watching the game in his rink the score at different intervals.

Hickey Nicholson's boy was one of the forwards on the Abegweit team and Chick Gallant's youngster played with Summerside. Old-time fans remarked that the two kids resembled in their styles of play their respective fathers but each has to improve considerably before he gets to be as good as his dad.

Morrison's Pee-Wees of Summerside played the Kensington Pee-Wees this week in Kensington and the result of the game was a victory for the Summerside boys, 4 to 1.

1. The goals were scored by: Somers assisted by Whalen and Darby; Warren assisted by Somers; MacQuinn assisted; Whalen assisted by Morrison. The Kensington tally was the result of a solo effort by Freddie Bridges.
