REPAIRS TO CITY CONSERVATORY

Very extensive repairs have been required on the City Conservatory, which is located on Richmond Street west, not far from the water front. This is necessitated by the fact that during its forty four years of useful service, only the most urgent repairs and replacements were undertaken, with the result that the structure has become very dilapidated. It will be remembered by many that this building, and in fact the whole project of making Queen Square the beauty spot that it now is in summary was undertaken by Mr. Arthur Newberry to whose faithful and untiring labours the citizens are deeply indebted.

Mr. Newberry states that at present the work is held up for a short time through lack of a special kind of putty which must be used to fasten the glass panes in the frames. Further more, the appropriation of $800.00 of which $300.00 was given by the Federal Government, and the amount by the Provincial Government and the City Council, has been exhausted.

It will require about $200.00 more to pay for the repairs to the fabric of the building, and a further sum to put the hot water heating system in order. This latter is very old. It was installed in 1884, and was the first hot water heating installation to be used in Charlottetown, and it, too, is in need of extensive repairs.

Mr. Newberry paid the cost of the original structure out of his own pocket, the money later being refunded to him, when it was seen that the people of the Province and the citizens will be equally ready to support the undertaking by furnishing the further sums required to have everything about the building put in first class condition, so that the lovely plants which so beautify Queen Square, may be preserved intact over the winter.

While the repairs are in progress the plants are being provided with frost proof protection in the Post Office Cellar and elsewhere.

The report says the average yield per acre will approximate 190 bushels and predicts that digging will be practically completed this week.

Ground For Prosecution in Horan Case

(Special to The Guardian)

PARIS, Oct. 18.—Although the French government has turned over the Horan case to the judicial authorities, it is not certain that any of the persons concerned in the diplomatic document dealing with the Anglo-French naval accord will be prosecuted.

French lawyers declare there is sufficient ground for prosecution not only of Denoblet, a Quai D'Orleans attaché who gave out the secret document, and the French journalist, De La Planque, but also of William Randolph Hearst, for whose newspapers it was procured, and Harold J. T. Horan, the Hearst correspondent in Paris who obtained it from De La Planque.

"What's the use?" asked the French press. "The two Americans could not be extradited so they would risk nothing. They have only to keep out of France."

WOULD PLACE PRODUCTS ON FREE LIST

Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance to Extend Trade With Australia.

(Special to The Guardian)

OTTAWA, Oct. 18.—Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, told a delegation of British Columbia lumbermen this afternoon that he is prepared to greatly extend trade with Australia.

"As far as Canada is concerned," said Mr. Robb, "we are prepared to give them our full British preference if they will give us their full British preference. If Australia is prepared to let our fruit in free during the season when they are not producing I would not be afraid to stand up in parliament and say, 'We will let Australian fruit in free during the season when we are not producing.' I am satisfied that if we all work together, we can enlarge the scope of the Canadian-Australian treaty."

"I believe we can get the full British preference from them, but we will never get it by lambasting them and keeping their products out. They want to do business in a big way. We hear the argument every day that we should pay the United States with our goods. I am not only prepared to sell to Australia, but I am also prepared to buy from them. As I said I am ready to give them the whole British preference. We will do business in a big way and they cannot open it out too wide for us. We don't want to sit around the corner and trade jackknives."

JARVIS SEEKS NEW TRIAL

Toronto Financier will Endeavor to Clear His Personal Reputation.

TORONTO, Oct. 18.—A special despatch from Ottawa to the Evening Telegram today says: "Aemilius Jarvis, Toronto financier, although free from prison, and long since back at his affairs, is seeking a new trial, to end that his personal escutcheon may be cleared. The Minister of Justice has a petition about it under consideration. Power is vested in the Minister to order a new trial, but the precedents for it being used number but one or two, and that was a long time ago. The position which has always been is that the courts have a right to order new trials, and that there is no need of the Minister of Justice exercising that authority."

"The Jarvis case, however, is peculiar. His case is all over and the courts cannot re-open it. He was accused, tried, convicted, and served a term of imprisonment. Besides, he was fined $200,000. It was alleged conspiracy with Andrew Peppall and Peter Smith, former provincial treasurer of Ontario, over certain bonds which Peppall bought from Jarvis and which were alleged to have been given to Smith. When it came Peppall's turn to try the bonds were accounted for, and Peppall having been used for any purpose at all.

"Not long after this, Mr. Jarvis was released and it is submitted that the verdict of not guilty in the Peppall case knocked the entire ground from under the mainly to clear his name, the return of the heavy fine he paid, and the removal of his finger-prints from the records of criminal justice may have signed a petition with these requests."

No Word From Missing Flyer

Commander MacDonald Over Atlantic in Moth Plane and Grave Fears are Held for His Safety.

(Canadian Press)

LONDON, Oct. 18.—The weather officer, who is flying alone in a Moth plane across the Atlantic. The hours passed without word of the airman, who had hopped off at Harbor Grace, Nfld., at 11.51 (Eastern standard time) yesterday morning and when the circle of 24 hours had been completed, and no news of the sighting of the flyer from sea or land was received, grave anxiety began to take the place of pride over the intrepid adventurer.

First calculations were that the little moth would reach Ireland between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning, Eastern standard time, or if MacDonal continued on to London at that his journey would finish between 11 a.m. and 1 p. m. Eastern standard time.

Hope continues that MacDonal might have passed over the objective point in Ireland and was proceeding onward, possibly to the Croydon aerodrome which would add about four hours to his flying time.

British Doctors to Aid in Medical Inspection

(Special to The Guardian)

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Great Britain has received with satisfaction the announcement that examination of prospective emigrants will not be left entirely in the hands of Canadian doctors. The statement of the new government policy from Hon. Robert Forke yesterday, it is recognized, will remove a contentious point in the movement of settlers.

A roster of 350 doctors is being formed for the medical inspection of emigrants. Canadian doctors will be retained, each doctor being in charge of a zone and British doctors will be responsible for the inspection of the Western Overseas Settlement Society, says her society warmly will welcome the establishment of domestic training schools for women migrating to Canada. Sir George MacMunn of the Church of England Council for empire settlement says domestic training schools will be of great benefit to the migration movement.

Ex-Convict Now Millionaire

(By British United Press)

LONDON, October 18.—The sensational romance of a convict who left the great Berlin prison Plactensee a year ago without a penny and has in twelve months become one of the leading financiers of Germany, it is announced that Michael Holzmann, who for his share in a great finance scandal was sentenced to a term of imprisonment, is trying in every way possible to obtain permission to acquire a undreamed-of pinnacles of financial power.

When Holzmann walked out of the gates of Plactensee Prison at the beginning of the last year he was faced with starvation. The only asset remaining to him of the ordeal he had amassed during the German inflation period was a solitary typewriter. This he pawned, and with the proceeds took a third-class ticket to Paris, where he still had a few faithful friends.

He became acquainted with Baron Joachim von Bethmann-Hollweg, a nephew of the former German Chancellor, and in a few days had sufficient faith in the financial genius of this remarkable man to entrust him to carry out certain financial transactions on his behalf. These transactions were the beginning of Holzmann's rapid ascent to undreamed-of pinnacles of financial power.

Holzmann, after receiving optimistic reports on the process from a German expert, founded an oil factory which at once proved a great success. He was able with the vast profits of this enterprise to acquire a French bank for 7,500,000 francs.

His uncanny genius again made for him a fortune within a few weeks, so that he was able to purchase a partnership in a French motor-car factory and in refineries in France and Italy. He also purchased an estate on the French Riviera near Cannes, where he has started rose growing on a vast scale for the supply of European flower and perfume markets.

His latest coup has been to buy up a fashionable watering place with four first-class hotels, a magnificent complex of luxurious thermal baths.

This penniless ex-convict financier in the space of a little more than twelve months has thus built up a fortune which even at conservative estimate is reckoned to amount to more than $5,000,000.

He does not attempt to live on a scale in accordance with his vast income, but he owns a palace in the Bois de Boulogne, opposite the residence of M. Poincare, and has in addition to an army of servants,

Plymouth Raised to Rank of City

(Canadian Press)

PLYMOUTH, Oct. 18.—Plymouth, of glorious naval traditions, has just been raised to the dignity of a city by His Majesty. This honor may seem a tardy one—Plymouth was incorporated as a town 400 years ago and now has a population of 200,000—but in England the rank of a city rests on no rigid line. Every place boasting a cathedral, for instance, is a city.

One of these, Ely, has been a city for eight centuries by virtue of this fact that it is still governed by an urban district council.

Plymouth was the first town to send a woman to parliament, Lady Astor succeeding to her husband's seat in the House of Commons in 1919, when he was raised to the peerage. Among its distinctions too is a stone on the historic quay recording that Plymouth was the last spot on this side of the ocean touched by the pilgrim fathers. The Prince of Wales is lord high steward of the city.

HOPES FLIGHT WILL INTEREST CAPITALISTS

Dr. Ekener, Pilot of the Trans-Atlantic Dirigible Graf Zeppelin, Admits That Voyage is Not Fast Enough.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Dr. Hugo Ekener, pilot of the trans-Atlantic dirigible Graf Zeppelin hopes that the flight from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst will interest American capitalists to the extent of $14,000,000 in a plan he has for regular trans-ocean airship service.

He wants to have four ships, running on a 50 hour schedule, with the first terminal in Switzerland, and the American port somewhere near Washington or Baltimore, believing that the best weather conditions prevail at these places.

The $14,000,000 would be just enough, Dr. Ekener estimates to build the ships and the hangars to house them. He would spend $2,500,000 for each dirigible and the hangars would cost $6,000,000.

The trip just ended has convinced him that the Graf Zeppelin is not fast enough for such service. The ships he hopes to build would be only slightly larger than the Graf Zeppelin, but would have a cruising speed of 80 or 85 miles an hour.

Some passengers would be carried but Dr. Ekener believes that more revenue can be made by carrying letters at perhaps 50 cents a piece and people at $3,000 each. Each landing field would have one hangar large enough to house two ships.

Dr. Ekener was told that Henry Ford has pictured the airplane of the future as a combination dirigible and plane. "I love Mr. Ford," he replied, "I saw a good deal of him on my last trip. But he is not yet an expert in air matters. His combination ship is not feasible."
